THE COST OF LIVING.

The cost of living is a matter that touche the pockets of all classes of the community in these islands. For long we have been up against heavy prices prices that continued to soar until one might wall hak or speculate when the limit would be reached. There have, it is true, been some reductions in the price of seasonable produce during the year now passing, but staple articles of food, such as bread and sugar, went up particularly the former, by the reduction of the State subsidy. The increased cost of bread, therefore, but added to the burthen of the house holder, and particularly that of the poorer classes. Is is, however, comforting to learn that there is a possibility the Government may be in a position to reduce the price of flour before Christmas, which would of course, mean a cheaper loaf, and there is talk of a decrease of a penny or three halfpence, to be followed by a further reduction later on. The continued fall in prices of American whether in comment in the property of the possible consequence of the possible consequence in the prior of bread should have received finish among and it is against the state of argument, and whether we agest master of a great master of argument, and whether we agest master of a great master of a great master of argument, and whether we agest master of a great master of American wheat is one of the reasons assigned for the possible cheaper loaf, which it is hoped will materialise. Indeed in some

The " Evening Mail" learns to-day of a sen. sational incident which occurred yesterday morning at Exchange Court, as a result of which three men lie dead. Their names are Richard McKee, Peter Claney, and T. C. Clane. It appears they were screeted during the week end, and they were kept in a room in the old detective offices in Exchange Court. It is alleged that while thus in waiting they selzed arms which were stored in the room and attempted to make their escape. A bomb was thrown but it did not ex-plode. It is alleged that the members of the guard were fired at. The guard returned the fire, with the result that the three prisoners are now dead. It is impossible to ascertain the exact details of what occurred.

The rocm in which the three prisoners were shot while alleged by the authorities to have been attempting to espape is a mixture of a storeroom
