or in about twelve hours

Doubtless, as the such more time will be ering correspondence on t is, the air service marks ture in this country, and ollowed with no ordinary and commerce at both should be no difficulty in rish Metropolis with the at event Dublin would not at the South of Ireland

Hence it may be taken the Free State Government take action, in which event it believes no real difficulty act if the Government make to the proper quarter the y the Air Ministry on the lities of the airway, will, it "be more valuable, and it a business-men opportunities y respect to those of their editors." This is a very im-of the question for the South on of Mr Walsh, the Post-whose progressive ideas in ent of the Postal Services and over-seas have more than oisted in the Dail. There is c, therefore, that in time to generally, will participate in this air service which though ely experimental has the pros-usney before it as part of an

DEATH OF MR M MACNAMARA.

We regret to record the death, which occurred on yesterday morning of an old and highlyesteemed citizen, Mr Martin Macnamara. He had reached an advanced age, and been in failing health for a long period. Mr Macnamara will be remembered as a valued and courteous official of the Limerick Post Office, which he entered in 1867, and from which as Overseer he retired on pension, after full service, now many years ago, when he was awarded the Meritorious Service Medal. His kindly and affable manner was ever characteristic of him in official and private life, and he enjoyed the friendship and high esteem of a wide circle of friends, who will hear of his demise with sincere sorrow and deeply sympathise with his relatives in their bereavement. One of his sons, Mr P J Macnamara, is Director of the Carnegie Free Library. Funeral from St Michael's Catholic Church, at 3 p.m on Sunday.
