formance were paid the highest tribute to by musical critics, while big houses applauded him to the echo. He gave a recital in Waterford last week, and this is what the "Standard" says of him:—"In the presence of a supreme master we have a difficulty in finding an adequate form of appreciation. We have been so used to praising mediocre talent that only by resorting to absolutely extravagant language could we do justice to Adolphe Borovko. His pianoforte recital on Thursday night in the Large Room of the Town Hall was a revelation of musicianly genius. It is not alone his wonderful mastery of technique that impresses, but the feeling which he imparts to his playing. Every mood of the composition is mirrored in his face and expressed in his execution. We are glad that he received such fine appreciation from the audience, which was one of the most discriminating gatherings in Waterford for a considerable time. Lady Susan Dawnay's magnificent grand piano responded beautifully to the demands made upon it by the master pianist."
