With reference to the question of establishing a Civic Guard station at C'Curry street, the Secretary said he had received a copy of a letter which Mr Bourke, an official of the Board of Works, had forwarded to his authorities. The necessity for a Garda station at the docks had been conceded, and as the Corporation required the old militia barracks in C'Curry-street for extension of the electric power concern, they were willing to hand over the office in their possession for the use of a Garda Station at the end of C'Curry-street, and adjacent to the docks.

CITY YOUTHS' ESCAPADE.

Auditor's Surcharge.

At a special meeting of the Newcastle West Town Commissioners, Mr Scau Brouder, Chairman, presiding, and the etter members present being Mesers. D. Kennedy, J. Merbert, M. Flynn, and M. McCanr,

The Chairman said that meeting had been called to deal with a strange and indefensible thing. As they were aware, a Local Government auditor had recently surcharged him and other members of the Town Commissioners in connection with a contract declared in 1921, when the British Government was in power. He thought it well to put the facts before the public. After the Truce, when he and others had only just returned to civil life, they obtained a loan from the White Oross to repair three houses, the property of the Commissioners, which were burned by the Black and Tane. They advertised for contractors, and received two tenders-one from Amos Reidy, a Volunteer during the struggle, whose house had been burned, and who was then out of employ-ment. As the White Cross Funds were meant to relieve the distress occasioned by the struggle, they believed they were perfectly right in accepting his tender though it was £10 higher than the other tender. He knew they had the full approval of the people in doing so, and they had also the approval of the White Cross. After an audit extending back four years that was the only possible fault that could be found in their work. But he was not there to apologise for They would do the same thing in the

Mr Herbert said it was a very strange thing that the men who took their lives in their hands during the struggle should be treated in that way. It logged like a very bad form of ingratitude.

The Town Clerk said they would appeal against the surcharge, and it was decided the Town Clerk should lay the full facts before the L.G.D.
