GRAND CENTRAL.

"Down Hill."

Large audiences at the Grand Central last evening followed with keen interest the various episodes in a thrilling story entitled "Down Hill," which unfolds the adventures of a youth in the world of illusions and of shadows, leading, however, to his ultimate recovery. It is, therefore, a most interesting theme, which is an adaptation of the play by David LeStrange. Ivor Novello, who appeared with great success in London, plays his original part, "Reddy Berwick," and Isabel Jeans ably fills another leading role, and there is an all-round star caste.

This fine picture will be presented each evening during the week, and at matinees on Thursday and Saturday at 3.30, and should draw big houses. The programme also includes a two-part comedy and Gazette, always popular features at the Grand Central.

DROWNING FATALITY.

While playing near the King's Island Baths on Saturday evening with two little companions, Sean Gleeson, aged six years, accidentally fell into the Shannon, and before help was at hand he was drowned. It appears that the children were playing with a ball which went into the river, and in attempting to get it, Gleeson slipped in and was taken down by the swift current, the body being recovered some short time afterwards. An inquest was held yesterday by Mr J. S. McNeice, City Coroner, and after hearing the evidence of the two companions of the deceased, a verdict of accidental drowning was returned.
