INSPECTOR DROWNED IN LONDON DOCK.

The body of Inspector Berry, Chief of the Port of London Authority Police, was recovered from Tilbury Dock last night.

STREET ACCIDENT.

The perils run by pedestrians were exemplified at midday to-day in an accident that occurred in O'Connell street. A Ford van was coming up the thoroughfare, and after the driver getting the signal to proceed from the Guard on point duty at Shannon street corner, the van swung round, mounted the pavement outside Messrs Leverette and Fry's, and dashed into the electric standard. So terrific was the impact that the standard was broken at the base and the metal came down in fragments on the sidewalk. Fortunately the place was free of anybody at the time, otherwise the consequences might have been fatal.

WATER SUPPLY FROM SHANNON CANAL.

The delay occasioned by the Ministry for Industry and Commerce in forwarding to the Corporation the specification in connection with a water supply from the Shannon canal at Clonlara to Clareville Waterworks was mentioned at a meeting of the Public Health Committee last night. The Borough Surveyor considered that there should be more expedition, and the work of running a pipe line undertaken at once. He was instructed to write the Ministry again in the matter.

BRITISH COAL MINING INDUSTRY.

Mr W. North Lewis, chairman of Insoles Limited, Cymmer Collieries, at the annual meeting on Tuesday, said that the coal-owners were looking forward with the gravest apprehension to the legislation which the Government had notified it was their intention to impose in the autumn. "It will be nothing short of a tragedy if, just as we are beginning, after enormous sacrifices, to regain markets lost to us through the strike, we are once more thrown back into the position where we shall be unable to see our output."

the Countess in a wretched little bed chamber. Later James VI of Scotland stayed at Worksoop on his way south to assume the English crown. In after years the manor was honoured by a visit from Charles I.

Worksoop came subsequently to the Dukes of Norfolk. In 1761 the Tudor Manor House was destroyed by fire and the ninth Duke of Norfolk began a new mansion, which was to surpass all others in England. In 1840 the estate was sold to the Duke of Newcastle. Fifty years later it was bought by the late Sir John Robinson, for whose executors it will be offered by auction in October by Messrs Knight, Frank and Rutley.
