

able to do, but the question at the moment is the possible location of the industry. Nothing can be ascertained for some time, in view of the fact that Messrs Fairies have quite recently entered a combine with the firms of Messrs Tait and Lisle, and are not at the moment in a position to say what turn events will take in connection with the proposed factory in the Free State. Limerick, the Mayor emphasised, has all the facilities for an industry of this character, notably its proximity to the electrification scheme, and its geographical position as a centre of distribution. The most essential, he added, from the viewpoint of sugar refining, was that it had an abundant supply of fresh water, eliminating the costly process of distillation of salt or brackish water. This was a factor that was stressed by the representative of the firm of Messrs Fairies, and may be the one that will induce the firm to select Limerick.

THE LATE MRS M. FITZGERALD.

A large and representative congregation was present at St. Colman's Cathedral, Cobh, on Wednesday morning, assisting at the Requiem High Mass celebrated for the repose of the soul of Mrs M. Fitzgerald, wife of Mr W. J. Fitzgerald, director of Fitzgerald and Co. (Limerick), Ltd., whose sad demise has been already referred to in the CHRONICLE.

Although very ill for some time past, her death was unexpected, and caused much regret amongst the people of her native place (Cobh), where she was well known as a woman of much culture and great natural refinement of character, which gained for her a large circle of sincere friends. The deceased was the eldest daughter of the late Mr Daniel Hurley, who was long connected with the administration of the public affairs of Cobh.

The funeral procession to Ballymore graveyard was of large proportions, and included representatives of Limerick City, and the priests attached to St. Colman's Cathedral, viz. Very Rev. Canon Fouhy, Adm; Rev. W. F. Browne, C.C.; Rev. D. O'Keeffe, C.C.; Rev. D. O'Leary, C.C.; Rev. M. J. Bowler, C.C.

LORD CARSON.

Resigns His Office as Lord of Appeal.

It is officially announced that Lord Carson has resigned his office as a Lord of Appeal-in-Ordinary.

Lord Carson has been a Lord of Appeal for eight years. He is now in his 76th year, and from 1900 to 1905 was Solicitor-General. From 1906 to 1914 he chamshowing that five and a half dozen out of one parcel were rejected, a matter that calls for closer supervision and vigilance. This could only be accomplished by arming the Inspector with a better type of testing apparatus.

The Mayor said it was common knowledge that producers withheld supplies from the market from this until the advent of Christmas, when prices were at the peak.

The Committee decided to give the Inspector an up-to-date apparatus for testing and for the purpose to give him the service of one of the Mayor's staff at the weekly market.
