House had to be hurriedly improvised into an additional receiving office, and, even here, the crush of subscribers was so great that the great Round Room had to be allotted to them as a waiting room, and a number handed to each subscriber as he or she arrived, so as to preserve order. The staff is now 3,063, an increase of 165 since last week.

A number of notable persons have already intimated their attention of attending the draw, including many members of the Dail and Seanad and foreign ministers and consuls.

A very large number of journalists are coming, among them being Mr Edgar Wallace, Mr R. D. Blumenfeld, Mr Tom Clarke, and Mr George Allison. In addition, a special party, consisting of members of the British House of Commons has been organised by Mr Joseph Toole, M.P.

The machine for separating the counter-the work to be done with great efficiency and speed.

DEATH OF MR H. BLACKALL, SOLICITOR.

The death of Mr Henry Blackall, solicitor, which occurred in Dublin, where he has been in residence for some years past, has been regretted in this his native city. He was for many years in practice in this city, where he was born seventy-five years ago. He was son of the late Mr Jonas Blackall, a prominent member of the solicitors' profession in his day, and on his death his practice was carried on by his son. In social life the late Mr Blackall was a gentleman who made numerous friends, who will extend sympathy to his widow and family in their bereavement.
