

given to it. The letter had already appeared in the Press. A precis of it. Acquired if a similar letter from other bodies in the city to the Corporation. It was sent to the Development, T.D., said the Council in a majority had voted in favour of the Mayor's recommendations, and the appointment of a City Engineer. The Minister undertakes to the recommendations a possible delay by introducing legislation in the Dail. That the members of the Council, that pending the enactment of the Bill, the Commissioner should be appointed. The Council were called upon to vote on the proposal for £31s 10d in the £. That was the rate, but the proposal was rejected by the Corporation, rather than to clear out and let the social classes go to pot. A section endeavoured to force the Minister in such a way as that would have to take notice, but it did not succeed. The Council were forced to strike a balance rather than that there would be looting by hungry men. The discussion that took place in favour of a Commissioner was only a desire to hold up the Government. He could not visualise the Government being held up or relief withdrawn.

He said the best the Minister could do was to introduce legislation to give effect to the recommendations. That would take twelve months, but in the meantime the Council endeavoured to get the Minister into appointing a Commissioner. He said the motive behind the proposal was to have everything in favour of the new Corporation. There would be nothing as holding up the Government would be the last to approve of the countenance.

He said the Council had been very incompetent and wasteful presented. As the majority of the Council had no intention to give effect to the Mayor's recommendations he would be nothing short of a failure. The members resigned in the meantime made room for a Central Labour Party had accepted of a Corporation that would be created, through the rose covered pergolas in the kitchen garden, seats were provided where visitors could view through sylvan vistas dark Knockmealdown wreathed in ever-changing clouds, like some Ethiopian princess toying with her silken lingerie.

Bowls, clock golf, croquet, and other games provided pleasing variations for many of the visitors.

In the room of this fine old Georgian mansion in which tea was served the walls are hung with ancestral portraits of members of the ancient and important house of Rochfort, Earls of Belvedere, one of whom was Speaker of the Irish House of Commons about 1641.

ERNEST H. BENNIS.

THE LATE MR. JAMES CARR.

The funeral of the late Mr James Carr, Water Superintendent of the Limerick Corporation, took place from St. John's Cathedral to Mount St. Lawrence Cemetery on Sunday, and was of very large proportions, testifying to the deep regret which is expressed at the premature demise of one who was prominently identified with trades union life in the city, and was a popular and estimable citizen. All classes and creeds were represented, and the coffin was strewn with beautiful wreaths sent by relatives and friends. At either side of the hearse walked a bodyguard of the Labour members of the Borough Council.

The clergy present included—Very Rev. Canon O'Dwyer, P.P., V.F., St. Munchin's; Rev. Fr. Rice, Adm. St. John's; Rev. Fr. Mortell, C.C., St. Munchin's, and Rev. Fr. Kelly, C.C., St. John's. Canon O'Dwyer recited the prayers at the graveside.

Mr M. J. Key's delivered a touching address.
