There was also a structure containing about one hundred tons of hay within a few yards of the conflagration, but this was untouched by the flames. After about an hour's hard work the Brigade succeeded in confining the outbreak to its source. FUNERAL OF DR JOHN MYLES.

The funeral of Dr John Myles, of Dalgelly, South Wales, a member of an old Limerick family, whose death in his 79th year we regretfully recorded in our last issue, took place at Llanelltyd (Merioneth) churchyard last Saturday. It was large and representative, and the chief mourners included Sir Thomas Myles, Dublin, and the Very Rev. Edward Myles, Dean of Dromore, both of the deceased.
