The police stopped her car and vans, and Mrs Van Der Elst was told that she would be summoned.

Later she addressed a large crowd, and said she guaranteed that within six months capital punishment would be stopped.

Shortly after the execution a big silver 'plane flew over the prison, and when the notices were posted announcing that judgment of death had been executed, Mrs Van Elst said they have hanged another insane man.

At the inquest on Anderson the jury insisted on seeing the body and the scaffold before returning a verdict of death by judicial execution. Evidence was given that death was instantaneous.

WOMAN'S FATAL INJURIES

Near City.

Thrown from Cart.

Norah Marshall, aged 42 years, of the itinerant class, sustained fatal injuries to-day while proceeding with her husband and child from the city in the direction of Fedamore. They were driving in a horse and light cart when the animal bolted at South Hill. After going a short distance the cart overturned and the occupants pitched on to the road. When picked up the woman was unconscious and bleeding from a head injury. Medical aid was requisitioned, and she was removed in the Fire Station ambulance to the County Infirmary, where she was found to be dead on admission. Death is stated, from a superficial examination, to be due to fracture of the skull. The husband and child escaped serious injury.
