
Death of Diamond Jubilarian

The death took place during the week at his residence, O'Connell Avenue, of Mr John Lee, monumental contractor. He was a most popular citizen, well versed in local lore, and was an agreeable raconteur on matters relating to local history. He was a diamond jubilarian of the Archconfraternity of the Holy Family. The funeral To-day was very largely attended. He had been one of Limerick's oldest artificers in his art.
