Young Man's Death

A painful sensation was created in East Clare on Sunday evening by the untimely death of Edward Hogan, Coolreagh, Bodyke, a member of a well-known hurling family. He was on his way home from a hurling match when he became ill on the road. At the time he was wheeling his bicycle up a hill and was accompanied by five or six companions. He was unmarried and about 26 years of age. An inquest revealed that death was due to natural causes.
