FIANNA FAIL

Foreign Capitalists

Editor "Limerick Chronicle."

It's healthy to note the Burke Cumann awakening, even if they are only one voice. They are in the silence; perhaps the silence of Fianna Fail will now speak for themselves, and not leave the run-ners of Cumann to the "45" players, the Social Club, and incidental organisations. The intelligent people who have become disgusted, are going and put their efforts into other organisations.

The long-fought-for Constitution has been nationalised our income or property by a cleverly contrived doctrine of no use to the unemployed and starved families. Fianna Fail are asleep on their majority, and it is Mr. Lemass who has helped the foreign capitalists and Imperialist wire-pullers to forget his own. There's a fine instance in Limerick, and all T.D.'s know it.

to the defendant's own car. The defendant in a statement stated that the car would not have mounted the footpath had her foot not slipped off the brake pedal.

The Justice said that he would regard the case as trivial but he thought that the defendant should gain more experience before driving through Limerick.

Inspector—The defendant has decided to give up driving.

Justice—In all the circumstances I will dismiss the case.

OBITUARY

Mr. Chas. M. Going, Cragg, Birdhill

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Chas. M. Going, Cragg, Birdhill, which took place unexpectedly at his residence on Sunday last. The late Mr. Going had been a member of the Grand Jury of North Tipperary for several years, and was a well-known and popular figure in Tipperary and adjoining counties. He was an extensive landowner, a successful breeder and exhibitor of livestock, and a fair-minded and reasonable business man in his capacity as agent to several estates. A prominent figure at shows and sales his passing will be regretted in farming and business circles.

The late Mr. Going was an ex-Master of the Derrycastle Harriers and was one of the best judges of foxhounds in the British Isles.

To his widow sincere sympathy is extended in her bereavement. The funeral, which was of very large proportions, took place at Newport on Tuesday. Right Rev. Dr. Harvey Bishop of Cashel, and a number of clergy officiated at the graveside.
