Mr. W. Nolan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.
Nolan, Cloghanarold, Rathkeale, who joined the B.A.F. about two years ago, has been reported missing. There is still some hope that he may be a prisoner of war, as the only information so far available is that his plane has not returned to its base.

Ireland in May

Granted plenty of sunshine such as we experienced here during days recently, our Irish landscape probably never looks better than during the merry month of May, especially where it is planted with trees and shrubs that blossom and lend colour to the scene.

Hawthorn in Bloom

Just now, when the hawthorn so plentitiful around Rathkeale is blooming in profusion, long white hedge-rows bordering fresh green fields bedecked with cowslips and golden buttercups present a picture it would be difficult to excel.

Fogarty presided and the lecturers were Messrs. John Dee, Kilfrush, and Patrick and this was unanimously passed with acclamation.
