

Kelly, P.P., Templeglantine, v. Father Ryan, P.P., well as Mr. D. O'Briain, Keyes, T.D.; Senator D. J. members of the Co. Council, from a platform on the IGNOR HANNAN.

Monsignor Hannan, who subsequent meeting, said proud to preside over that gathering of the manhood of West Limerick, had answered their country's ve of the party they before. They knew their danger. There was danger of invasion, and he was right be danger of invasion that awful danger should at least would have the f knowing they had done an invader came, and they d that he would not, they not make the task an easy and they would remember in a fighting race, and that worthy of the great tradi forefathers.

AND'S PROGRESS.

ylan, Parliamentary Secretary for Defence, in the address, said the battle for had been a long one, and wing one. They had won t of an imposed serfdom, political power and the free implies lie in Irish hands, Irish tongues, and were the benefit, the enlightenment protection of the Irish re of freedom which they he fruit of the unselfish effort of many Irishmen, and lions of Irishmen.

of the L.S.F. was a significant statement made in Limerick years ago, that while water runs there will be found to dare and die for also significant of the fact re men in Ireland, and here io fully appreciated that the national service and for office was one likely to be

TIMES RECALLED.

Kelly, P.P., Templeglantine, of his address referred to he had presided at a meetrict's Day, 1916, at which lot, who was executed after spoke. On that occasion the f the time faced a critical and had before them a long struggle. They had won the position which they

"the Government

rence."

It is assumed from the above that the German Foreign Office having accepted responsibility for the attack on the "Kerry Head," the German Government will compensate the owners.

The "Kerry Head" was holed near Kinsale, but no one was injured. The vessel sustained some damage.

Management are gratulated. But they do something more than the support of the general pu was forthcoming in unst was no cause for surprise since acknowledged that Show is now only second in importance and influ

* *

*

STEADY PROGRESS.

Since the Show was decade ago it has progr and bounds, and in that is generally admitted that respects it has surpassed fixtures. That is especia regard to the horticultural has been acclaimed year an exhibition par excell too, has set an example w in the industrial ar tries section. This d attracted wide attention and on this occasion the ironage given eclipsed records.

* *

*

WELL EQUIPPED.

But, perhaps, the magn Committee of Management in the Show grounds, equipped with arcades, cultural hall and many suitable for the display and produce of every de progress made in this c best and most convincin the capacity of those the heavy, and, let it be a thankless task of mak what it now is the fore in the Provinces.

* *

*

CANNOT BE OVER-EST

The value of the Show turial community cannot be estimated, yet it does n measure of support to w from those who live by after year the Committe for an increased membe last annual meeting it the five hundred mark

ADARE NOTES

(From Our Correspondent).

LATE REV. FATHER COLMAN O'CONNOR.

The sad news of the death of the above clergyman, which occurred as the result of a motor accident in Australia, particulars of which are not yet to hand, was learned in Adare with very deep regret. The sympathy of the residents generally is extended to his brother, Grand Daniel O'Connor, who has been stationed in Adare for a number of years, and who is deservedly held in the highest esteem by the people of the district.

DIED IN COBB.

I also regret to record the death of Mr. Michael Conway, late of Kileen, which occurred, after a brief illness, at his residence, Cobb. The deceased, who was attached to the Customs and Excise for a long number of years, was one of the most popular officials in the service. He came from one of the most respected families in the district and his passing away is deeply regretted. He was a brother to the late Mr. John Conway, The Hotel, Glin; to Mr. Patrick Conway, Kileen, and to Mrs. E. Hassett, Castle-roberts, Adare.

FLOWER GARDEN COMPETITION.

The annual inspection of the flower gardens in the village took place last Thursday. The gardens in general presented a very nice appearance; consequently the competition was very keen.

IN FORMER YEARS.

In former years the County Limerick Committee of D.A.T.I. offered prizes for the best flower and vegetable gardens in the county, but that grant was withdrawn about 12 years ago and the competition lapsed.

Lord Dunraven's Generosity:

Immediately Lord Dunraven took over Adare Manor he inaugurated a scheme to make the village still more attractive by encouraging the cultivation of flowers in all the village gardens, and with his usual generosity offered five pounds to be distributed in prizes as an encouragement.

PRIZE WINNERS.

Michael Naughton, The Avenue, 1st
T. McGrath, 2nd (fl 10s.); D. Fitz-