

which make friends—sin-warm-hearted. He was ageous—a noble charac-
nate love of his native may be truly said he or the liberty of his

ENT AND SOLDIER.

work for the Irish self sufficient to entitle remembered in affection.
of the mother tongue he
of his many-sided activi-political and economic for little without a Nation. When he stepped anger on his election as thought of himself, and links carried what was a in the concluding sen-
time comes, if ever it
one hundred per cent.
able." George Clancy, and soldier, really merits glory perpetuated in the d.

STRIKE.

id repeatedly and insistrial peace is the first omic prosperity. When strike, employees suffer, e forced to look on and erted. The abrupt ces-Limerick Wire Products
sday was, if information is accurate, vexatious. ustry, set up with Irish by a Limerick man,
ll local labour, deserves upport and encouragenot be hampered in any
it is gratifying to learn nded as quickly as it be-the mediation of the ers.

District Justice Flood, was no visionary when he stated at the first exhibition of paintings it was the intention to put together a collection creditable to Limerick and bequeath to posterity a tangible municipal asset. How that avowal is being gradually fulfilled and propagated is best illustrated by the fact that at the moment acquisitions have touched the hundred mark. That is a fine achievement, worthy of the object and of the Trustees. When it is rem mbered that bequests in money to make purchases are confined to a Corporation annuity it is more remarkable.
But the Gallery has other good friends, men and women who have made valuable presentations, placed a civic duty above personal considerations.

DEATH.

QUILLIGAN—January 20, 1940, at his residence, 1 Broad Street, Roger Quilligan (late Munster and Leinster Bank, Nenagh). Remains will be removed this (Saturday) evening to St. John's Cathedral at 8 p.m. Funeral to-morrow (Sunday) at 2 o'clock to Mt. St. Lawrence Cemetery. R.I.P.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

MERRICK—Miss Agnes Merrick acknowledges with sincere appreciation the great sympathy shown her by her friends on the passing of her sister, Mary; the beautiful letters sent and expressions of sorrow made to her sustained her immeasurably in her grief. She hopes that all those who sympathised so graciously with her will accept this acknowledgment.