The School Boys' Harmonica carrying a banner the age of which now be nearing the septuagenarian, as it was first the property of the League at Knockaderry and later the property of the United Irish League. by P.P.
The units returned in formation and as they were addressed by the Rev. Father O'Connor, P.P., who said he was greatly impressed by the demonstration which he had witnessed at Knockaderry. It was, he said, great evidence of the very efficient part the women and the parish would take if the day which they all prayed would ever come into being. Father O'Connor, in conclusion, hoped that all the women and men of the parish in the units of the local forces would show the capacity which they felt they were

Sewerage Scheme

Arising out of a Press report of a meeting of the Limerick County Board of Health, a discussion took place on the proposed new sewerage scheme. It was said that the Local Government Department refused to sanction the sewerage scheme for the town until such time as the people of Hospital had their houses connected with the water mains, which the Board had laid down some years ago.

Public Meeting.

After a lengthy discussion it was unanimously decided to call a public meeting of the townspeople at which the whole matter could be discussed with the possibility of arriving at some arrangement by which the town would not be deprived of the much-needed sewerage scheme.

Late Mr. James Reardon.

The sympathy of the entire district will be extended to the well-known and popular building contractor, Mr. John Reardon, Caherline, on the death of his youngest son, James, which took place at his residence on last Saturday night unexpectedly. Deceased, who had not yet attained his majority, had been laid up for some weeks with pleurisy, but had been allowed up for some time that evening. His convalescence was proceeding normally, but a short time after retiring to bed on Saturday night he got a sudden change and died within a couple of hours. His tragic and unexpected passing came as a severe shock to his family and friends.

Popular and Beloved.

Low-sized and slight in build, but of a trim, neat and dapper figure, with handsome aquiline face, his very youth and beauty made him the "pet" of his locality. Elegant in dress and manners, and of a buoyant disposition, with all the gaiety and care-free abandon which riotous youth has at twenty, he was not only popular but was sincerely beloved by the many young people in the Caherline district. Generous-hearted and generous-minded, his beautiful character knew no meanness, and his frank, open manner easily made friends. His untimely death was the occasion of much grief in his native parish, where the deepest sympathy is felt with his sorrowing parents, brothers and sisters.

The Obsequies.

His remains were removed to Caherline Church on last Sunday evening. The funeral took place on the following day after Requiem Office and High Mass to the new cemetery at Inch St. Laurence. The attendance at the graveside was enormous, and was a fitting tribute to the memory of one whose many gentlemanly qualities endeared him to all. R.I.P.

increase in the membership of the various Confraternities, which is financially strong.

Closing Ceremonies.

The closing ceremonies of the night were most impressive, especially when the B Section was renewed with each congregation holding a light. The Papal Blessing was closed with Solemn Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, a prayer by the Parish Priest, Rev. Father O'Keefe, C.C., and a prayer by Rev. Father O'Keefe, C.C.

Very Successful Ceilidh.
Close on 100 couples took part in the ceilidh held under the auspices of the local Branch of the Rathkeale on Sunday evening. Music was supplied by the Band. Messrs. J. Hervey and J. Hervey were in charge of the evening.

Patrons Pleased.
All patrons agreed that the evening was one of the most successful attended for some time. It was pleasing, indeed, to find so much floor space of the large hall occupied by dancers who went through their dances with an ease which reflected credit on the instruction of the Branches of the Gaeilgeoirí instrumental classes.

Neat and Artistic.

Thanks to the efforts of the boys who worked in the hall and stage were very neatly arranged and who assisted were:—A. Kennedy, M. O'Connell, J. Cusack and Mrs. Cusack.

Braved the Weather

At the close of the evening Rev. Father O'Connor, speaking for the Committee, thanked especially those who had braved the weather in coming to the evening from the various parishes and districts.

Sewerage Scheme.

Work on the new sewerage scheme for Rathkeale town commenced on the 1st inst. The amount of the estimate is £6,000 and £7,000, an estimate by Messrs. P. McCarthy and J. Rathmore, Co. Kerry. The first tract of houses built under the scheme at Kilmacliff was opened by the Minister for Public Works.

Scheme is an Extension.

This new scheme is an extension of the present sewerage system. It will start at Roche's Chapel Lane and Peacock Lane and a new main will be erected near the river Deel, about a mile from the town bridge.

Work for a Year.

The contract will
