HOSPITAL ECHOES

(From Our Correspondent.)

Death of Mrs. Geoghegan.

The death took place during the weekend at her residence, Main Street, of Mrs. Nora Geoghegan, wife of Mr. James Geoghegan, who was the first manager of the local Co-Operative Creamery. A lady of kindly and gentle disposition, bright, agreeable and charming in manner, she was exceptionally popular in the town, and was held in the highest respect by all who knew her true dignity of character and genuine uprightness.

An Edification to All.

In her last illness she exemplified all the fortitude and resignation derived from her great faith and ardent piety, and was an edification to all who saw her. Her death, though not unexpected, came as a severe shock to her husband and relatives, and amongst her intimate acquaintances there was much regret at her passing.—R.I.P. Her remains were removed to the Parish Church on Sunday evening, accompanied by a large cortege. The interment took place in the adjoining cemetery on the following day, the large attendance at the graveside demonstrating the great esteem in which deceased was held and the wholehearted sympathy extended to her bereaved friends.

Late Mrs. Kate Murphy.

The Grim Reaper has gathered to himself another one of the aged residents of the town in the person of Mrs. Kate Murphy, Knockaney Road, whose death took place last Friday. A lady whose every word and act was coloured by deep religious fervour, she was one of the best-natured women of the town, and was remarkable for that traditional courtesy, kindness and true gentleness which were characteristics of many generations of Irish peasant women. A faithful member of the Sacred Heart Sodality, she was often found in the church in prayer. Her gay and bright-hearted manner, cheerful disposition and infectious good humour endeared her to everyone, and she was most popular amongst all classes.—R.I.P.

The Obsequies.

Her remains were removed to the parish church on Saturday evening, the interment taking place in the adjoining cemetery on Sunday. The large attendance at the funeral showed the regard with which the deceased lady was held in the parish. The last prayers at the graveside were recited by Very Rev. Canon McCarthy, P.P., V.F., assisted by Rev. Father Power, C.C.
