EVERY LITTLE HELPS.

Help by your alms, by your money. I know the times are hard. I know the many calls made upon you. Still I come before you confident of a generous response. If you are not beset with an abundance of means, give "the widows mite"; every little helps.

If God has given you abundance, then, of your abundance, give, and that generously. If the Good Shepherd will reward for the cup of water given in His Name, surely He will reward you for helping Him and His daughters in this, the noblest of all works—the saving of souls. Help, then, you who can; help to keep this great Spiritual Liner—the Good Shepherd Convent—a float. By your alms it will, I trust, still continue searching the seas of this world for weak souls tossed about the winds and waves of temptation; for shipwrecked souls to bring them safely on to the haven of Eternal Rest.

May Jesus, Who long ago bade the winds and waves be still, and there came a great calm, to-day bid the winds and waves of life's troubled sea be still, and many souls saved therefrom. And may Mary, Star of the Sea, help by her all-powerful prayers. Amen.

EIRE AS MEDIATOR

If it were within the powers of the Irish Government to aid in composing the differences between the warring nations, it would gladly face such a task, said Mr. Oscar Traynor, Minister for Defence, at Howth yesterday. But human weakness, he feared, would see its folly to the end and God only knew what the end would be.
