

Jordan, a former gatekeeper.
Mr. R. G. O'Sullivan, solicitor, appeared for the plaintiffs, and said that a notice to quit had been served on the defendant, which was ignored. He did not want it to go out that the defendant was treated with any harshness. In fact the contrary was the case and he had a job that anyone might envy.

The defendant said he was looking for time to get a house and only got a week's notice.

Replying to Mr. O'Sullivan, Rioran said he had £2 a week and a free house. He was supplied with milk and vegetables and three tons of coal every year. At Christmas and Easter he also received presents.

Mr. O'Sullivan said that the nuns were terrified of the defendant because of his attitude and therefore they wanted immediate possession.

The Justice made the order sought.

DEATH OF MR. CON. MADIGAN.

G.A.A. and coursing circles in Co. Limerick (writes our Ballyagran correspondent) have lost an old and active supporter as a result of the death of Mr. Con Madigan, Ballyagran. He was one of the foundation members of the old Ballyagran Hurling Club, as well as of Drewscourt Coursing Club. At all local and inter-county hurling fixtures he was a well-known and highly-popular figure. Two of his sons are members of Ballyagran Junior Hurling Club, one of them being also hon. secretary of the Club. He possessed a wealthy store of sporting anecdotes, in the relation of which he excelled. In former years he was a close acquaintance of "Carberry" and possessed a remarkable faculty for recalling particular individual performances of note at athletic and Gaelic events over a long period back. Recently the Ballyagran Hurling Club cancelled their championship engagement as a mark of respect to his memory and all old Gaels throughout West Limerick have learned of his unexpected passing with deepest regret.

ORDAINED IN CHINA.

On May 10th, Rev. James Thornton, S.J., son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Thornton, Spiddal, County Galway, was ordained in Ti-Ka-Wei, Shanghai. He is probably the first Irishman to be ordained in China. He studied at St. Ignatius College, Galway, and at Mungret College, Limerick.
