

Woman's Trial

Charged With Murdering Her Infant

At the Central Criminal Court, Dublin, on Monday, before Mr Justice Haugh,

Eileen Quigley, aged 19, of Tyone, Nenagh, co. Tipperary, was charged with the murder of her unnamed female infant in co. Tipperary on 23rd September last.

Accused pleaded guilty to manslaughter.

Addressing the accused, Justice Haugh said that it appeared at first from the depositions as if the accused had put the child alive into the kitchen fire. In his opinion the child died from neglect at birth. He considered that a period in an institution would meet the case, and he would put accused back until he would have a probation officer's report on the view of the authorities of an institution.
