contrast in prices and is only one of numerous similar instances. The person who sold at 8d., you may be quite sure, did not sell without a fair profit. I don't envy the other two their elastic consciences. It may be right to explain, in order to avoid any false conclusions, that none of the shops belongs to any of the multiple group. What about forming a consumers' league?

Yours faithfully,
"ANTI-FLEECER."

warning notice hanging up and the question he had to decide was did that absolve the proprietor of the restaurant from any responsibility.

Mr. Killeen submitted that the notice had no meaning in law.

The Justice said that he would not give any immediate decision in the case, but would adjourn it for a month for the purpose of looking up some authorities. It was a very important point for restaurant proprietors.

JUSTICE AND MONEY LENDERS

"I know these money-lenders," remarked District Justice Flood, B.L., at Limerick Civil Bill Court this morning. "I have no sympathy with Jewish money-lenders and I won't give them any consideration," he added, in a case in which a committal order was sought against a defendant.

The defendant stated that he had originally borrowed £15 and had paid back £17. He was not as well circumstanced as heretofore.

The applicants claimed that the defendant owed £9.

The Justice said that he had no sympathy with Discount Firms, "or with Jews trading under high-falutin names," he added. "It is persecuting poor people in this country. Any company that comes before me like that will get no sympathy or consideration. It is a form of persecution and torture."

The Justice refused the order.
