

of the slums in Pennywell making a decent approach. If they made a start with the other matter could take its He considered that the something to do would be to let planning go ahead in so far as coincided with the Corporation sites.

O'Malley said that it should be the business of the committee to ensure that changes imposed east hardship on owners. On going through the report it took him that great care had been taken to ensure that interference with valuable property was at least. If the Corporation were to have a properly planned city they should go forward with the scheme, and his idea was that it could be taken section by section and if necessary the committee could hear witnesses.

McGuire said that it would be necessary to visualise the whole. They would need to be careful to ensure that they did not commence a particular project from the ends and then find an obstruction. All aspects of it would have to be gone into very carefully and the committee to make recommendations would be taking a very high responsibility on their shoulders. It would take a long time to bring their recommendations.

Casey—Is there any time to this? Manager—You have adopted the plan already. What Mr. Robert wants to do is to set up a planning scheme.

Casey—So it would be necessary that the committee would state their views? Engineer—The report you have received is merely a preliminary. It is not a final draft. I think the only way to take this is paragraph by paragraph.

FUTURE "IN THE AIR."

Maguire observed that as regards the recommendation in the report concerning an aerodrome for the city no time should be lost in taking up consideration at this point. "I think," said Mr. Maguire, "the future of Limerick is in the air."

Russell—If we decide on the committee we should make it as representative as possible. All interests in the city are affected by this plan. If the decisions we are going to affect posterity to such an extent we should see that the committee represents all interests.

Cusack—Is there any possibility that a copy of the report would be made available with the report?

O'Malley—I quite agree. The report did not mean anything until I pored over the map. The Engineer intimated that a copy of the map could be produced.

The Chairman asked was it intended that a sub-committee

German infantry who launched a series of attacks at Novorossisk were wiped out.

According to the German account heavy losses were inflicted on the Russians, whose attacks at all points were repulsed.

INQUEST IN LIMERICK

Dr. J. P. Cleary, Coroner for East Limerick, with a jury, held an inquest in the County Courthouse, Limerick, on Saturday touching the circumstances of the death of James Nolan, aged 34 years, a single man, whose body was found floating in the Malue, near the Ferry Bridge.

The deceased, a tailor by trade, was a native of Pallaskey, but worked in Croom for some time. No evidence was given as to how the body got into the river.

Dr. Costello, Adare, stated that he held a post mortem and found no marks of violence on the body. Death in his opinion was due to asphyxia caused by immersion in water.

The jury returned a verdict accordingly and sympathy was expressed with the relatives.

DEATH OF A NOTABLE GAI

The death took place on Sunday at his residence, Upper Church St., Tipperary, of Mr. Gilbert Cavanagh. The deceased, who had attained a ripe age, had been several months ailing. He was captain of the famous Bohercrowe football team, which won for Tipperary the first All-Ireland championship in 1888, winning again in 1889. The team were awarded gold medals in 1889 only, as the previous year they had visited the United States, Mr. Cavanagh captaining the team on that occasion. In the 105 matches which they played they had the unique distinction of never being beaten and their goalie, the late Mr. Bryan O'Brien, never had a goal registered against him. The late Mr. Cavanagh took a keen interest in sports and athletics and was a popular and familiar figure in the town and countryside, where his passing is sincerely mourned. He leaves three sons.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne and Justice Geoghegan concurred.

Mr. Justice Black dissented on the ground that evidence regarding the fact that the accused was in prison at one time should not have been admitted at his trial for murder, as this evidence was likely to prejudice the minds of the jury.

RECEPTION TO OPERA SOCIETY

Mr. J. M. Flood, B.L., acted as host at a reception given at the Savoy Restaurant on Monday afternoon for the members of the Dublin Grand Opera Society.

A large group of prominent citizens gathered to welcome the Company on their second visit to Limerick, and the reception, which was most successful, was followed by several delightful concert pieces contributed by Mr. James John, Mr. John Lynskey and Mr. Bernard.

Mr. Flood said he was pleased to see so many of the citizens interested in the progress of the Company in the city come to welcome them. The Dublin Grand Opera Company was very pleasant indeed to have the opportunity of receiving so many talented group of Irish men and women and to find them representing all parts of Ireland. They were particularly pleased to acclaim the arrival of Miss Joan Hammett, a singer of international reputation, to extend to her a very warm welcome to Limerick. He hoped the stay of the Company would be apart from its artistic success a profitable one and thus bring encouragement to the Company to return again.

Mr. Flood paid a well-deserved tribute to Miss Hughes, manager of the Savoy Restaurant, for the dainty afternoon tea she prepared for the guests.

On behalf of the citizens the Mayor (Ald. D. J. O'Malley) in welcoming the Company said if the members got any pleasure from their visit that the citizens had in greeting them they were certain of a most successful and enjoyable week in Limerick.

Comm. B. Kelly (Chairman of the Dublin Grand Opera Company) thanked those present for the very warm reception, and they were delighted to have given such a kindly and successful
