whose life is largely run for her, and in her emotional moments showed that she had a true grasp of the essentials. Miss Maura McGowan's delineation of the role of Emily Cassidy was a neat cameo in which she played into the foreground the humorous idiosyncrasies, while holding in check the tragedy of her own life. Mr. Kevin Dineen's forthright interpretation of the character of Ted Meagher added considerably to the build-up of the atmosphere, and Miss Nancy Anderson as the patronising Mrs. Parton manipulated her part with a nice touch of artistry. As Dr. Sean O'Hea, Mr. Bob Swift filled a straight part with one of the most capable portrayals he has given with the group. Mr. Mark Liddy had a slightly awkward role as Michael Meagher but he showed his capabilities. Mr. Daly Carey developed the mild humour of Ger. He confessed that he had been too pessimistic to prepare a little speech, and he generously handed the bouquets for the success of the play to the Players.

under the auspices of the Barrington Trust will be held at the Technical Institute on Friday, 29th inst., at 8 p.m. and will be delivered by Mr. J. J. Horgan (Cork). He will outline the various legislative measures enacted in Eire in regard to the development of social services and examine precisely the provision of the Beveridge scheme, criticising some of its aspects, and will suggest in some respect which of its provisions could be made operative in this country. The Beveridge Plan has been a subject of national and international controversy and the lecture should prove of exceptional interest not alone to persons engaged in the study of economic problems but to all bodies interested in social welfare. Admission to the lecture is free.
