It was a rather unexpected result as Optimists, with a handicap of two points, were considered firm favourites, more particularly as Wanderers were obliged to field two substitutes in H. and Mrs. Sexton for L. O'Neill and Mrs. Siddal. It proved, however, that this did not in any way weaken the team, as the winners were successful in both the second ladies and Games won by the narrowest of ful in both the second ladies and second men's doubles, but only after a hard fight in each case. The sensation of the match was the defeat of Optimists' first men, Hannan and de Courcy, by Crean and O'Riordan. The latter were on the top of their form and gained a comfortable win in two straight a comfortable win in two straight games-15-11, 15-6.
