THE POSITION OF PARASITIC CARETAKER

(To the Editor, "Limerick Leader")

Dear Sir—In reply to "Nil in the perandum's" letter of 17th inst., I beg to inform him that I have never wished to enter into any controversy with any person who has not shown the moral courage to sign his name and address to his letter, instead of flying under a nom de plume. Furthermore, I cannot place your correspondent in either one of two classes of people, viz. an employed or an unemployed man. If he is of the former class, then he can afford with his salary of £3 or £4 a week to sit back and write such a beautiful letter, which he has already done. If he is of the latter class, I ask, why then does he not himself take the position of caretaker, when I would consider keeping him company to "write away those monotonous hours."

Sincerely yours,

TONY FITZPATRICK,
