

of indigestion
a terrible pain
your heart?
11, you're in Why? Because
e been granted rieve. Rennie's need combina-
of 15 ingredients neutralize that s acid in your ach and set you
m now on.
you are when the
e's no need to be t have to fuss with l spoon. Just pop pleasant-tasting outh, one after the m like sweets.
me Rennie's bring nd pain are soothed k forward to your eal pleasure. Get r chemist to-day.
100 for 2/-.

Backache

Rheumatic Pains

on starts when the kidneys slackens
ss uric acid and purities to remain

el tired, miserable
our back aching,
ts stiff and sore.
ered by lumbago,
s, urinary and

Backache Kidney
s of healthy men
fy that this well edicine has rid ng ailments. Why the same for you?

AN'S 1/3, 2/-

& Beautify
S HAIR
MADE

the Hair
n Vermin
Chemists

Mr. Hurley, Charleville, and Mrs. Ryan, Kilfinane.
The day concluded with the open American tournament dance in the People's Hall, Kilmallock, where upwards of 500 patrons spent a most enjoyable night. Excellent music was supplied by Mick Delahunty and his band, Clonmel.
The Kilmallock No. 1 team will visit Rathbane (Limerick) on next Sunday to compete in an inter-club tournament with the local side.

HOSPITAL CLUB.

Hospital Club are making arrangements to hold their open tournament (mixed) on Sunday, the 22nd instant, and it is expected that the entries for this year should beat all records. A dance, with Mick Delahunty's Dance Band supplying music, is being held on the same night.

In our last issue it was incorrectly stated that Misses T. Daly and M. Kirby reached the final of the home tournament played at Hospital on Sunday the 1st inst. The finalists were Mrs. Barry, Bruff, and Master J. Hopkins (winners) and Miss E. Woods, Hospital, and Miss P. Slattery, Hospital (runners-up).

BURIED WITH MILITARY HONOURS

The death of Mr. James Hogan, member of the National Army, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hogan, Board of Works, Killaloe, is deeply regretted (writes our Killaloe correspondent). On Monday evening of last week he returned to Killaloe on a fortnight's leave. On Friday he took ill and was removed to Raheen Hospital and subsequently on the same day to Ennis Hospital, where he expired early on Saturday morning. The remains were brought by military lorry from Ennis to the Parish Church, Killaloe, on Sunday evening and were met outside the town by a large concourse of people including his former comrades of the Killaloe Group L.D.F., in charge of Coy. Leader Kieran Power.

Requiem Mass was offered up on Monday morning. At 1 o'clock the same day interment took place in the family burial ground, Templekelly. The members of the 12th Batt., Castleconnell, under Lieuts. Stapleton and Doyle, formed a guard of honour and were pall bearers. After the recital of the burial service by Very Rev. Canon O'Molloy, P.P., V.F.; Rev. Father Harty, C.C., and Rev. Father Casey, C.C., three volleys were fired and the Last Post and Reveille sounded.

normally being made by election. That the assembled unit commanders did not seek to have this election system adopted—the right to which they were perfectly aware they could enforce under the Constitution of the Irish Volunteers—was of itself evidence of their bonafides, and of the genuineness of their difficulties in choosing a leader in the circumstances already mentioned. This attitude, by the way, tends to refute the charges of mere factionism to which are sometimes ascribed the features of the Irish character exhibiting a lack of the sheep-like quality of being easily led and which in reality, as previously suggested, arise from a deeply seated sense of individuality and independence.

WHY SEAN WALL WAS CHOSEN

The choice of the G.H.Q. representative had fallen on Sean Wall, an officer of the Bruff Battalion, or, as it subsequently became in the brigaded organisation, the 3rd Battalion East Limerick Brigade. It is of interest to record the general reasons for the selection of this officer—until then acting as a company commander—in the G.H.Q. delegate's own words:—

"From all the investigations I had made I was satisfied that I was justified in taking this action and subsequent events fully confirmed the stability of his character, strength of purpose and determination and qualities of leadership which Sean Wall possessed, and in a higher degree than might be ordinarily required. He not alone possessed those qualities but he also exercised them in the handling of that very delicate situation which existed before my arrival in the area, and perhaps to a greater extent immediately afterwards. He had been, as it were, planted in authority and others had been dispossessed of even the right to attain that authority, and yet, despite these obvious disadvantages, Sean Wall rose above them all and had his Brigade one of the best fighting units in the Volunteer Organisation up to the time of his heroic death in action."

Born in 1888, near Bruff, of farmer stock, the newly-appointed brigadier was of more mature age than the great majority of those he was now to command. For long a prominent and very energetic worker in the Sinn Fein, Gaelic League and Volunteer movements, and coming of a family closely identified with the national cause, he was well known either personally or by repute throughout the county. His brother, Father Tom Wall, was one of the two curates of the Limerick diocese round

motor ated
as th
last s the Sheeh
TH
Like
ration mover servic largel
adher
A ma
par
Barra
being on th single myste
was to wh
know ment
Kilma
Wit
of mi
of the tion i grants
his su
false
of th tempo
by th
party ing I
in the
First
The
of a
ness,
to po
rests milita rected
age o
ranks ally
Comp
comm
areas, propa
policy
nator
ing, f
Crisis
the fa vert t uncon
The
and 1917 f
raisin
Fein
ing to Volun
worke
the G came who c tuency
the g