"A Night At The Opera" (Metro: Wednesday and Thursday) is a revival which took London by storm—and that city does not "go" for re-issues. The Marx Brothers are at their most hectic in this booking—providing plenty of their own inimitable slapstick comedy and musical interludes. The opera scenes are really beautiful. The love interest, if it can be called interest in a comedy, comes from Allan Jones and Kitty Carlisle.

The week concludes with "Her Primitive Man" (Universal), the story of a lady hunter who goes into the jungle to capture a wild primitive man and bring him back to New York, to study his reactions to civilization. What she does not know, however, is that he is a white man and her future husband. Before that is explained to her, however, there is fun galore from Louise Allbritton, Robert Paige and Edward Everett Horton. The support, "Silver Spurs"—(British-Lion) stars Roy Rogers, whom "up-town" audiences find a tonic.

THE CARLTON—Paulette Goddard and James Stewart head the cast of "The Golden Hour," coming to the Carlton on Monday next. This is a very enjoyable film—and has an appeal palatable to all tastes. Charles Winninger and Horace Heidt and his musical Knights have prominent featured roles. A Western will be screened in support.

"Melody Parade" (coming Thursday from Pathe) is a musical with Eddie Quillan, Mary Beth Hughes and two famous bands. "The Unknown Guest" (the support) stars Victor Jory in one of his best portrayals for years.

THE THOMOND — "Slightly Honourable (United Artistes: Monday and Tuesday) is a gangster story with a unique asset—great comedy scenes. Edward Arnold and Ruth Terry head the cast.

Wednesday's "Gambler's Choice" from Paramount tells the exciting story of a gambling king who had the town by the tail—until his best friend became his worst enemy. The stars are Chester Morris, Russell Hayden and Nancy Kelly.

Friday's "Sing Neighbour Sing" is from British Lion and has for its setting a girl's college. Brad Taylor, Ruth Terry and a number of famous American variety acts make this an enjoyable offering. Paramount's "Secrets of the Wastelands," which will be screened in support, is a "Hopalong Cassidy" adventure.

THE ATHENAEUM — Dorothy Lamour, Jack Benny, Betty Grable, and "Rochester" are only four of the many famous stars in "Man About Town," coming to the Athenaeum on Monday next. This is a comedy with gorgeous settings, lovely girls and some lavish costumes. The supporting feature in this big programme from Paramount will be "The Monster and the Girl," starring Ellen Drew.

"The Straagst Case" (Columbia: coming on Thursday) is a detective story with a swift succession of thrilling incidents woven into an absorbing plot. Warner Baxter is in the lead. The support from the same company, "Hey, Rookie," is a musical.

the same conditions, the same household life and duties, all equally learning and mutually helping. Valuable experience is gained, valuable friendships formed in this coming together of town and country people for a common purpose.
