PROMISE OF A QUOTA.
Mr. Martin Tynan, solr., applied for a renewal of a restaurant licence on behalf of Patrick Hanahan, Wickham Street.
Sergeant Morgan said the premises were fitted out as a restaurant but were not run as such, as the applicant could not get supplies at present.

Mr. Tynan said his client had a promise of a quota from the department in the event of the supplies position improving. In the circumstances the Justice might consider adjourning the application. The Justice adjourned it for three months.

CHARLEVILLE WATER SCHEME

During the past week (writes our Charleville correspondent), Co. Council engineers have been engaged in taking levels in preparation for the scheme which provides for the conveyance of water from Jamestown Mountain to the town. The existing water supply has not been a very satisfactory one since the inception of the local waterworks while everything can be said in favour of the mountain scheme, which was mooted over 14 years ago by Mr. John Barry, ex-M.C.C.

FOYNES DEPARTURES

a swamy passage to reach a stream: having done so and extended their fire-hose, it did not take long until they had the flames under control. This was fortunate as a number of out-offices that stood at a short distance from the hay barn were saved from possible destruction. The origin of the fire is unknown.

PRIESTS BEREAVED

The death occurred at a fairly advanced age, at his residence, Rathaney, Hospital, of Mr. John Smyth (writes our Hospital correspondent). The late Mr. Smyth, who came of a well-known and highly respected County Limerick family, was widely popular and greatly esteemed in the district. He was an extensive farmer and was a noted and successful breeder of well-bred short-horn cattle. His entries in this class at shows and bull sales throughout the district were awarded numerous prizes.

He was brother of Rev. T. A. Smyth, S.M., St. Mary's College, Dundalk, and Rev. P. J. Smyth, S.M., New Zealand, and cousin of Mr. J. A. Smyth, Rathaney Hospital. The remains were conveyed to Knockainey Parish Church, accompanied by a large gathering of mourners, friends and relatives, and the interment took place in the presence of a representative attendance.

COURSING CLUBS

The coursing season will shortly open, and on Monday night next (writes our Charleville correspondent) the members of the Charleville and Garrinderk Club will meet for the purpose of hearing the annual reports read. The local Club are in a very satisfactory position, as the reports to be presented for adoption will show, and everything points to another successful year for the members.

The Drewscourt Club has also been re-organised during the past month, and arrangements are being made for the revival of their annual fixture in the near future.
