
Popular Citizen's Death

The death took place in a Dublin nursing home during last week of Mr Thomas J Moody. A native of Ulster, Mr Moody came to Limerick nearly 40 years ago. He opened a grocery and provision warehouse in O'Connell street, and his enterprise was rewarded with a large measure of success. Mr Moody, who had a discriminating taste in literature and was a well informed citizen, made numerous friends in Limerick and his death deprives the city of an esteemed citizen. His widow, who is sister of Mr James O'Keeffe, manager of the Limerick Steamship Company, has the deep sympathy of the community in her bereavement.
