

FEARLESS FIGURE

The Late Ciaran O'Kelly, N.T.

(AN APPRECIATION).

The untimely death of Mr. Ciaran O'Kelly, Parteen N.S., has removed from our midst one of the most consistently loyal and energetic members of the I.N.T.O. He has ever led the good fortune to possess. Thirty-four years have passed since I first met him when he entered De La Salle Training College, a slim, handsome, debonair youth with a light heart, a cheery word, and a ready, infectious smile. Time, too, had dealt lightly with him, for fifty in the past year or two, when ill-health began to take its toll, did that glossy black head show streaks of silver, and the smile became perhaps less frequent. But through good health and ill, through fair weather and foul, he laboured incessantly, from the day he became a teacher, for the betterment of his colleagues in a badly-treated profession. Thirty years untiring service as Secretary of Limerick Branch and fourteen years as Secretary of the Limerick Co. Co-operative of which at his death he was chairman, is no mean record of endeavour in the interests of his fellow members of Primary Education in Ireland.

In all these years Ciaran displayed his uncommon ability not only as a skilful organiser, but as a fearless fighter, shirking no task, despising no danger, scornful of subtlety and sophistry. Looking his mind frankly and fearlessly to friend and foe alike, and utterly regardless of his own personal interests when the welfare of a cause or a colleague was at stake.

He will be missed in Limerick by his friends on the Trades Council, of which he was Chairman, and in Limerick generally, where his work was known and appreciated. He will be missed at our Annual Conferences, every one of which he attended for thirty years, and at which he was a well-known and popular figure. He will be regretted as a personal measure by us who were his personal friends, who had opportunities to estimate his true worth. To know him intimately was to respect his honesty and simplicity of purpose, to admire his pluck in face of difficulties, and his candour, and sometimes sparkling wit, to debate with him, differ with him, even abuse him and be abused in turn, and then laugh it off with him; but above all to love him for a sterling, straightforward, loyal colleague who devoted his life even to his detractors, without wish for fee or reward, to the interests of the profession he so long adorned.

The late work which followed his return to his last resting place, the eloquent testimony to his place in the hearts of his fellow members, many teachers travelled long distances to pay him this last tribute, and the sympathy of all goes out to his widow and eight young children in their hour of sorrow. The tears take their inevitable toll, and sad and valued friends pass on by one, but of them all none will be more sorely missed or deeply regretted than Ciaran. Adieu De go raibh a nam!

GLIN COURT

Larceny Of Turf

Before District Justice Kenny at Glin Court on Wednesday, John Hayes, Ballyglass, Glin, was charged on three counts with the larceny of quantities of turf, the property of Glin Co-operative Creamery, and the property of Wm. Halloran, and the property of Patrick Buckley, on different dates, between January and March. Supt. M. McKenna, G.S., Newcastle West, prosecuted, and Mr. P. Fitzgerald, solicitor, appeared for the defendant, and pleaded guilty to the charges. Sergt. McKeon said that after being cautioned, defendant made a statement, in the course of which he admitted stealing turf, the property of Wm. O'Halloran and Patrick Buckley. Defendant also said he subsequently paid O'Halloran 5/-, and gave him a load of turf, but paid nothing or gave no turf to Buckley. In a subsequent statement defendant at first denied that he took any of the creamery turf, but later he admitted he took a load of it.

Maurice Hartnett said that on the 22nd March he was filling a load of turf at Ballygoughlin bog. Defendant came along and asked him for a few bags of turf, and witness said he could not give him any. Defendant then filled his cart with turf from the adjoining ricks, which were owned by Buckley and O'Halloran. Witness did not report the matter, but subsequently defendant abused him and called him names.

Michael O'Connor, manager, Glin Co-operative Creamery, said that about ten kishes of turf, value about £2, were missing from the Society's turf in the bog.

Mr. Fitzgerald, solicitor, pleaded for leniency, and said that defendant was in poor circumstances. He was depending for a living on four acres of land. At the time the offences were committed defendant was unable to go out working, as he had to look after his aged mother, who was ill. Defendant was under the impression that there would be no objection to his taking turf belonging to O'Halloran or the Creamery.

The Justice fined Hayes £3 for stealing the turf, and ordered him to pay 15/- compensation, and £1 expenses, allowing him three months to pay. If the defendant came before the Court again on a charge of stealing turf he would go to prison for three months.

John Costelloe, Turaree, Glin, was prosecuted at the suit of the Minister for Industry and Commerce for failing to fully stamp an insurance card in respect of an employee.

Mr. M. J. K. Dore, solicitor, defending, pleaded guilty, and said the offence was due to an oversight. Defendant paid up the arrears in full after the inspector called.

The Justice fined defendant 5/- in respect of each of the two summonses against him. A number of defendants summoned for having unlicensed dogs in their possession were fined 10/- each.

U.S. DROUGHT

A drought threatens the vast wheatfields of the U.S. Middle West, looked to by the starving peoples of many parts of the world to provide their bread for next winter. Unless there are plentiful rains by May 15 a great part of the crops may fail.

COUNTY'S PRESSING NEED

Effective Fire Fighting Service

REPORTS BEFORE CO. COUNCIL

Suggested Use Of City Fire Brigade

An interesting discussion took place at the meeting of the Limerick County Council on Saturday, Mr. Martin O'Dwyer, chairman, presiding, on the question of setting up in the county a first-class fire fighting service.

In connection with this proposal, a comprehensive report was read from Capt. P. J. Diskin, B.E., Chief Officer, Limerick Fire Brigade, in the course of which he made many important recommendations. This report, together with one submitted by the County Manager (Mr. P. J. Meghen, B.E.) was referred to a special committee for consideration.

In connection with the provision of fire-lighting services in the County, the Manager submitted the following report:—

"I enclose for your consideration a copy of a report on fire-lighting services in the County which has been prepared by Captain Diskin, B.E. who is in charge of the Limerick City Fire Services. The report recommends a large increase in the service for the County and would require for its full adoption, the purchase of five trailer pumps and six light lorries for hauling the trailer pumps.

"However, before Captain Diskin had submitted his report I had received a circular from the Department of Local Government and Public Health which indicated that the Government had decided to distribute to the local authorities, a number of fire appliances on loan to enable them to carry on their duties under the Fire Brigades Act, 1910. This offer is subject to the following conditions: (a) The appliances will be lent to fire brigade authorities free of any charge; (b) they will be subject to recall only in the event of an emergency; (c) the fire brigade authority will be required to maintain the appliances in good order and to defray from their own resources the cost of any necessary repairs or replacements; (d) the appliances will be subject to inspection at any time by officers of the Department of Defence.

"After consulting with Captain Diskin I applied to the Department for the loan of five light trailer pumps and indicated also that the Council desired to retain the trailer pump at present stationed in Newcastle West. Accordingly it is unlikely that the Council will have to purchase any new trailer pumps but the question of providing towing vehicles for the pumps arises.

"There is also the question of providing accommodation at the five additional stations suggested by the report and finally the Council would require to reach an agreement with the Limerick Corporation both for attending fires in the area near the City and also for sending assistance to large fires in the County area. It is anticipated that the Corporation will require to increase their whole-time staff if they undertake the full responsibility under the proposed scheme and that the work would involve recruiting five or six whole-time firemen. This will mean an increase expenditure of over £1,000 per year. It will be necessary for the County Council to consider the scheme fully at the next meeting and to arrange a discussion with the Limerick Corporation so as to reach an agreement on this important matter."

CAPTAIN DISKIN'S REPORT

Captain Diskin's report to the Co. Manager is as follows:— "I wish to refer to your letter of the 4th January, 1946, to Limerick City Manager on above matter, and to inform you that I have carried out an inspection of the County fire-lighting services in County Limerick. During my inspection I visited the following towns:—Newcastle West, Rathkeale, Abbeyfeale, Kilmallock, Croom, Cappamore, Foynes, Doon, Kilmann, Bruff, Glin, Athes, Adare, Askerton, Knockrogh, Hospital, Dromcollogher, Charleville, Oola, Pallasgreen (Old and New), Nierer, Pallasgreen, etc., and as a result of these inspections I have come to the conclusion that the fire-lighting arrangements could be improved upon.

"The County Fire Brigade in Rathkeale, as organised at present, would not, in my opinion, be in a position to 'turn out' to a fire with the promptness, which is normally expected from a fire brigade. One reason for this is of course, that an officer of the fire brigade does not reside in or adjacent to the Fire Station. I would like to point out here also that the self-propelled fire appliance in Rathkeale at present, although in good condition, would not be of much use for dealing with an outbreak of fire in some country districts, where water may have to be pumped from a source to which the fire appliance may not be able to reach because of its size and weight.

"The fire-lighting arrangements in Newcastle West, where a light trailer pump is located, are not satisfactory at present, as there does not appear to be any definite arrangements as to how this pump could be put into operation in the event of an outbreak of fire. It seems that there isn't any provision made at present for towing the pump, with the result that in the event of the pump being urgently required at the scene of a fire, it would have to be manhandled, and of course this method of towing is slow and laborious, particularly if the fire were a long distance away from the Fire Station. In other towns which I visited, I found that although the caretaker of the waterworks was in possession of fire-fighting equipment, he didn't appear to have received any definite instructions as to the action he should take in the event of an outbreak of fire.

SUGGESTED REORGANISATION

"I would therefore recommend that the fire-lighting services of the County be re-organised along the following lines:—

1.—"The chief officer of Limerick City Fire Brigade to be responsible for the training and organisation of the County Fire-Fighting Services as well as the City.

2.—"The County to be divided into seven areas for fire-fighting purposes (see attached Index Map), with Limerick City Fire Brigade responsible for dealing with outbreaks of fire in the City and surrounding area (as shown in attached Map 9 in green) and a trailer pump with a towing vehicle located within each of the remaining areas.

3.—"Limerick Fire Station, to be called 'Head Quarters Station,' and the stations where the trailer pump units are to be located, to be called 'Sub-Stations.'

4.—"A Sub-Station to be established in each of the following towns:—Newcastle West, Rathkeale, Abbeyfeale, Kilmallock, Cappamore and Foynes.

5.—"The crew for each Sub-Station should consist of 6 men, one of whom should have the rank of 'Station Officer.' The caretaker of the waterworks in a town where a sub-station is to be located would possibly be capable of carrying out the duties of Station Officer and this Station Officer should reside in the Sub-Station.

6.—"The fire crews in each area should, as far as possible, be composed of ex-members of the Aux-

County Committee

Meeting

Mr. P. Fitzsimons, Co. C. man, presided at the meeting of the Limerick County Committee on Tuesday. The members present were: Mr. D. J. Madden, Co. C.; Mr. O. Donnell, Co. C.; J. Quaid, Co. C.; J. McNamara, Co. C.; T. O'Neil, Co. C.; M. J. K. Dore, Co. C.; D. McAuliffe, Co. C.; P. Ryan, Co. C.; P. M. O'Connell, Co. C.; P. T. McCarthy, Co. C.; Hayes, Co. C.; D. Clancy, Co. C. O'Connell, Co. C.

Mr. M. Gleeson, C.A.O., was in attendance. The Department wrote acknowledging the receipt of a resolution from the Committee suggesting that the Farm Improvement Scheme be continued permanently and stating that the proposal was receiving consideration.

Chairman—It is to be hoped this very useful scheme will be continued.

In connection with the resolution passed by the Committee requesting that milking machines imported, the Department was stating that those machines now stocked by a number of Mr. Dore said that the big difficulty was to procure parts.

Mr. O'Donnell said that could not get kerosene for working of the milking machine. Mr. Dore—They could not get a think supplies should be available.

The C.A.O. said that he would make representation to the Department of Supplies to have kerosene made available for users of milking machines.

The Department of Supplies wrote, in reply to a resolution passed by the Committee, stating that it was not intended to control the sale of hides.

Mr. Dore said that arising out of remarks made by him at a recent meeting regarding the sale of hides a person of neutral ground since no name was given, wrote the Press issuing a challenge to him (Mr. Dore) to substantiate statements he had made regarding the price paid for hides.

The writer of the letter disclosed name, all the facts he requested would be furnished. The fact remained that an economic was not being paid for hides though the price of leather gone-up by one hundred per cent. In pre-war years hides were selling 37/- each as compared 27/- now. There was somewhat radically wrong with the hide industry and he was of the opinion that the sale of hides should be controlled.

The Chairman said that numerous cattle were buried with their hides on because the prices offered were uneconomic.

Mr. Hayes said that he agreed with Mr. Dore. The price of leather had increased out of all proportion to the price paid for hides.

Chairman—I think we should pass a resolution requesting the Minister to control the hide industry.

Mr. Dore proposed, and Mr. Hayes seconded, that the Minister of Supplies be requested to control the hide industry so that an economic price might be fixed.

The resolution was passed unanimously.

planning purposes, and recent building had been erected near Regional Hospital site which was a damned disgrace. He said that the County Council would be even told what that building was for. If they were to organise county fire-lighting service, let be the county's affair; they should not join up with anyone else. They would be treading on very getous ground if they were to do so. If they were to give the Corporation a foot they would two. The organisation of a county fire-lighting service should be the County's baby. They should not get in with the Corporation anyone else. Let the fire-lighting service be run by the county, the county; and let them not up with other people.

Mr. Donegan-Hear, heard. Senator Madden said that need for a fire-fighting service pressing and urgent. While much had to be admitted the question of cost had to be carefully considered. The incidence of fire was going up and up. It was not due to any laxity on part of the Manager, who was helpful and who was an efficient and capable administrator. They should have no connection with the city in relation to the fighting system. During the Corporation Amalgamation Scheme the Corporation got the option of opting, but they opted out to the advantage of the county. A penny in the City brought in about £1,000 while a penny in the County brought in £2,000. In view of this big discrepancy in valuations, the County should have nothing to do with the Corporation.

QUESTION OF COST

The Manager had told Senator Madden continued, the cost of the new fire-fighting service would be very heavy. In view of that fact the finances of the scheme, and in respect which they had no details, should be carefully considered in view of the fact that the rural ratepayers would be obliged to bear his portion of the cost. He proposed that a special committee be set up to examine the scheme, especially in relation to its financial aspect. They should, in any case, be content to set up for themselves fire-fighting service without having to join up with the Corporation. The County Brigade was controlled by a very capable and efficient officer, Captain Doyle. He had done him a very competent staff, and that was needed to give a first-class service was the employment of a few additional hands. The Corporation of the County Brigade lived six hundred yards from his station. His house was not connected with the phone. That was a serious omission, an omission (Senator Madden) had alluded more than once. The captain's house should have a phone, and he hoped that this facility would be provided without further delay.

Mr. McCarthy agreed that should have a County Fire Brigade. He seconded the proposal that the matter be referred to a committee of the Council for consideration.

LIMERICK CAPITAL OF THE COUNTY

Mr. Canty said that things had been said with which he could agree. In the first place, he was satisfied that a single Fire Brigade for the county could be a better service than a number of Rathkeale or Newcastle West brigades. It could be of little advantage to have a brigade in East Limerick. He thought that the references made to the Corporation were uncalled for. He would think that the Corporation of Limerick—the Capital of the County—was the Corporation Hong Kong, Peking or even London, judging from what had been said about that body. The people of Limerick were their people a brotherly understanding should exist between them. He had heard the Corporation asking things from the County Council. The Corporation took after their own affairs and do their own business in their own way. It was unfair to launch an attack on the Corporation without any cause. The Corporation, it was true, had made a move to extend the borough boundary. While
