CORPUS CHRISTI

Annual Processions

DEVOTIONAL SCENES

Over a thousand people from Killinane and surrounding districts (writes our Killinane correspondent) took part in the Corpus Christi procession, held on the Feast Day itself. This act of public homage and veneration to Christ in the Blessed Sacrament took place in most favourable weather conditions through profusely decorated streets.

The procession, four deep and almost a mile long, including practically every man, woman and child in the parish, accompanied the Blessed Sacrament through the streets of Killinane, and bore public testimony to the traditional love of the people of the Parish on the Hill for their Eucharistic Christ, a custom of wellnigh a quarter century's standing.

Occupying a place of honour was the First Communicants' class of 1948, who welcomed Christ into their little spotless hearts at the 8 o'clock Mass from the hands of their Pastor, Father Dolan.

The ceremonies proper, opened with the 11 a.m. Mass, after which there was Public Exposition of the Most Blessed Sacrament by Rev. Father O'Donnell, and which was visited by throngs of people throughout the day. At 7 p.m. the Altar was decorated with the Sacred Host, accompanied by canopy bearers, guild of honour, clerics, first communicants, flower-bearers, band and vesting clergy was borne in processional form by the Pastor, Rev. Father John Dolan, in the following order:

Parish Guard of Honour, Altar boys and the Blessed Sacrament.

ROUTE OF PROCESSION. The route of the procession was up the New Lane, to Barrack Hill, 3rd Hill, 4th Hill, through Main Street from East end to West end, to Dr. Ryan's, where it reverted to the Sacred Heart Grotto in the centre of the Square, where Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was imparted, the Act of Consecration to the Most Sacred Heart of Mary recited, and a bugler sounded the salute. The procession returned and thence proceeded to the Parish Church via Ballyroe, where the final Benediction was imparted.

Hymns were sung and the Rosary recited under the direction of the good Sisters of Charity of St. Paul, and the local teachers all along the route. Most inspiring and pleasing was the rendering of Sacred Music by the Killinane Brass and Reed Band, which was deeply appreciated by one and all.

In the history of Killinane the procession carried out with order and decorum, and on all occasions favourable comment was made complimentary to the system, teachers, school children, communicants, and above all to the general committee in charge, particularly to the Stewards and Marshals.

AT RATHKEALE.

Notwithstanding bad weather conditions (writes our Rathkeale correspondent), over 1,000 people took part in the Corpus Christi procession, held after second Mass at Rathkeale on Sunday. Fortunately there was a fine spell while the processionists were marching along the usual route through Thomas Street, Main Street and the New Road, back to the church, where Benediction was imparted by Rev. G. Enright, C.C., who carried the Sacred Host under canopy in the procession. He was assisted by Rev. T. Costello, C.C.; Rev. J. Lyons, C.C., and Rev. Father Carey, C.C.

DROMCOLLOGHER.

The Corpus Christi procession took place at Dromcollogher on the Feast of Corpus Christi. Well over a thousand people participated and the devotional manner in which the procession was carried out made a striking display of religious fervour.

The procession moved in the following order:—1. Cross-bearer and acolytes; 2. women of parish; 3. school children of parish; 4. men of parish; 5. choir; 6. flower-strewers and altar boys; 7. canopy, under which the Sacred Host was borne by Rev. P. Enright, C.C.

The route taken was from the church, via Church Street, The Square, where an open-air altar was erected at the Bank, from which Benediction was imparted, following which the procession again returned via Church Street to the church, where a second Benediction was imparted to an overflow congregation.

The other clergy in attendance were Very Rev. H. O'Connor, P.P., Dromcollogher; Rev. Father Cogan, C.S.S.R., and Rev. Father O'Regan, C.S.S.R.

The town was reverently decorated with religious banners, pictures and emblems, while at many points small altars were erected.

NEWCASTLE WEST.

Over two thousand parishioners took part in the annual Corpus Christi procession at Newcastle West on Sunday, when, despite very unfavourable weather, the yearly demonstration proved one of the most impressive and edifying of its kind ever held in the town.

WORKMAN'S FATAL FALL

Big Point In Compensation Case

TOTAL DEPENDENCY QUESTION

Effect Of Children's Allowances

For the first time in the Irish Courts, a point of prime importance to dependants of deceased workmen was raised at Limerick Circuit Court yesterday (Thursday). In a case under the Workmen's Compensation Acts—Karan Ryan (widow) and her seven children, all of 2 John's Square, Limerick, sued Daniel O'Sullivan & Sons (Limerick), Ltd., 4 O'Curry Street, for compensation for the loss of her husband, Patrick Ryan, who was killed in an accident on 24th November last, while in the employment of the respondents; and Judge Barron O'Brien was asked whether or not a claim could be sustained on the basis of total dependency, when the widow was in receipt of Children's Allowances in respect of the family.

Mr. Maurice V. Fitzgerald, B.L., instructed by Mr. M. B. O'Malley, solicitor, appeared for the applicants, the respondents being represented by Mr. Sean Kenny, B.L., instructed by Mr. D. G. O'Donovan, solicitor. Mr. Fitzgerald explained that the claim was in respect of the loss of Patrick Ryan, a plasterer's helper, who, while in the employment of the respondents on November 24th last, fell from the chimney of a house at 27 Ascot Terrace, Limerick, fractured his skull when he fell to the ground, and died. The eldest of the seven children was 12 1/2 years of age, the youngest having been born in July, 1946.

QUESTION OF TOTAL DEPENDENCY.

Mr. Kenny said all these facts were admitted, the only objection to the application being by way of a submission that there was not total dependency.

Mrs. Sarah Ryan, widow of the deceased workman, formally proved the substance of her husband's statement, and added that her husband's average weekly earnings before his death had been £4 12s. all of which he handed up to her. She was also in receipt of Children's Allowances.

Mr. Kenny said it was on this point that he disputed total dependency.

Mr. Fitzgerald briefly contested this submission. The Statute, he pointed out, did not specify that such allowances should be taken into consideration.

Mr. Kenny said he had no evidence and submitted that the only question for decision was whether the claim of total dependency could be sustained having consideration for the fact that the widow was in receipt of Children's Allowances. He submitted that it could not be sustained and that, by reason of the receipt of Children's Allowances the widow and family should be treated only on the basis of partial dependency. The only decision he could refer to as an authority was a case decided by his Lordship in Limerick some years previously, when partial dependency was held to obtain in the case of a woman whose brother had died and who was in receipt of a widow's pension in respect of her deceased husband. That, actually, was the only income the woman in question had at the time. This principle was mentioned in the 1923 edition of Willis on Workmen's Compensation, which he cited.

SOURCE OF INCOME.

Replying to a query by the Judge, Mr. Kenny said the whole income of the dependants must have its source in the deceased, whether earnings or private income.

Judge—So that if, in law, this allowance was the property of the deceased, then you admit that, even if he made it over to his wife, there might be total dependency? The question is, was the deceased the sole support of the family, not were the earnings of the deceased the only source of income of the dependants?

Mr. Kenny—Yes.

Mr. Kenny said that if the widow and children were in receipt of any other income from any other source than from the deceased, they ceased to be totally dependant on him.

The Judge asked how was the question of compensation affected, assuming that the Children's Allowances made the widow and children only partially dependent.

Mr. Kenny—Then you have the somewhat difficult problem of fixing a figure as to what is the loss sustained by the dependants.

His Lordship said he thought this question should be contingent upon what amount of Children's Allowances was being received by the dependants. In this case, there was no evidence as to the amount being received.

A VERY BIG POINT.

The Judge said the case involved a very big point which would affect nine-tenths of the households of Ireland. It was a point which was, he thought, going to convulse the Irish Courts.

Mr. Fitzgerald said his recollection of the Children's Allowances Act was that the allowances under it were made payable to the father in the first instance.

The Judge said the Act might have made this point explicit and he would adjourn the case for some time until counsel got a copy of the Act.

When the hearing resumed, Mr. Kenny said that, on reading the Act, he was prepared to concede that the assignment of the collection of Children's Allowances by the father to the mother, constituted the latter the former's agent to receive the money on his behalf under Section 20 of the 1944 Children's Allowances Act, the Minister made regulations under which a person entitled to receive allowance could nominate another to receive the money on his behalf.

Mr. Kenny said however, that he would ask his Lordship to allow him to reopen the question of the types of income of a deceased on which dependants could be in order to qualify for full compensation. He now submitted that in order to qualify for total dependency, the dependants' whole income must be from the deceased's earnings. Such was not the case in this case because of the existence of the Children's Allowances. There seemed, he went on, to be an omission in the drafting of the 1944 Act, the effect of which was that they had provided that when one was calculating compensation for the purposes of partial dependency, one had to exclude the Children's Allowances. This Section had not been amended by the 1946 Act, and, under it, the position seemed to be that the widow and children had to be treated as being partially dependent.

ASSESSING COMPENSATION.

You then have to proceed to assess the amount of compensation to be awarded for partial dependency," went on Mr. Kenny, "but when you are assessing the compensation, you have to leave out the Children's Allowances and you have to determine the sum which would be reasonable and proportionate to the injury suffered by the adult dependant. The maximum sum of £600 is payable in compensation if you establish total dependency. If the dependants qualify for partial dependency only, the amount must be less because it would be absurd to say that a person should be entitled to the same compensation for total and for partial dependency."

Mr. Fitzgerald said he conceded that on the interpretation of the Children's Allowances Act he could not maintain total dependency. But if the case were treated on the basis of partial dependency, they were bound by the relevant Section of the 1944 Act to ignore the Children's Allowances being received. So that brought them back to the question of total dependency again. Therefore, his submission was that in this case the dependants were entitled to the full £600, to which they would be entitled were the case based on total dependency. His Lordship, he pointed out, was given full discretion in the computation of compensation.

Mr. Kenny reiterated that it would be absolutely absurd to give the same amount of compensation for partial as for total dependency.

JUDGE'S DECISION.

After considerable further argument, the Judge said he would decide the case on the basis that the only difference between total and partial dependency in this case was the Children's Allowances, the amount of which had not been specified in evidence. He would find all matters as conceded by the respondents—that the accident occurred as alleged, etc. He would not allow the full £600 but would award a total of £580, £199 4s. of which he would give to the widow, the remainder, £380 16s., to be apportioned in the statutory manner between the seven children.

GLIN.

The Feast of Corpus Christi was reverently observed as usual at Glin (writes our correspondent there). Large numbers received Holy Communion in honour of the great festival. After last Mass the usual procession of the Blessed Sacrament took place from the Parish Church by front Church St. and North Main St., and back to the Church. The processionists were headed by a cross bearer, followed by the pupils of the National

'BUS SERVICE NEED

WEST LIMERICK DEPUTY'S QUESTION

In the Dail on the 19th of May, Mr. D. J. Madden (F.G., West Limerick) asked the Minister for Industry and Commerce if he was aware of the fact that the residents of Ballingarry, Kilmeevy and Peenagh, County Limerick, live from six to eight miles from the nearest railway station, and if, having regard to this inconvenience, he will direct Coras Iompar Eireann to provide a bus service from Limerick at least twice weekly.

The Minister replied that he had been informed that there had never been a bus service to these areas. He did not consider that he would be justified in asking C.I.E. to examine the possibility of providing a new bus service, while he knew that C.I.E. is not yet in a position to restore certain of the services which were withdrawn during the emergency.
