SAD DISCOVERY

WORKER FOUND DEAD IN BED

Thomas Walshe (73), of Kilfinny, Croom, labourer, was found dead in bed at his residence by Mr. W.
Cussen, Ballinaguile. Deceased, who lived alone, was helping Mr. Cussen at the hay, and when he did not appear in the morning to help at hay saving as usual, Mr. Cussen went to his cottage. He found the door unlocked and went in, to discover the deceased dead in bed.
Spiritual aid was rendered by Rev.
D. O'Dea, C.C., and, following the carrying out of a post-mortem examination by Dr. D. Costelloe, an inquest was not deemed necessary.

18th, displeas'd at his reception.
He had engaged with Mr. Clarke, the manager, to play twelve successive nights. He only played five nights and those to almost empty houses. It is supposed his receipts did not cover his expenses. He returned for the races and fulfilled his engagement, playing alternately tragedy and comedy. Country families attended the plays."
