N DAY
day of George
the principal markets were ur of the occa-

covered hill;
The song of the brook as it glides to the sea,
The whispering wind stealing over the lea.
The lilt of the lark, as he poises on high,
The swerve of the swallow pursuing the fly;
The sun as he sinks in the goldburnished west,
The mother that fondles the babe to her breast
The lion in his lair, or the lamb on the lawn,
The hare on the hill, the pranks of the fawn;
He sees not the beauty that nature bestows
On snow-drop or tulip, or daisy or rose.
The stars in the heavens that sparkle at night,
The pale moon that's shedding her silvery light;
The storms that shatter the ships on the main,
The thunder and lightning, the tempest, the rain.

Though pomp be his portion and fortune his friend,
His earthly enjoyments seem never to end;
Though fame may have crowned him, his life seem serene, 'Twere better for him that he never had been.

For man, mystic man in the image of God—
His soul of the spirit, his frame of the sod—
With heaven-sent graces of Faith,
Hope and Love,
Was destined by God for His missions above.

country life more satisfying and richer and in the growth of drama, festivals played an essential part.

Mrs. O'Callaghan welcomed the groups that had entered, saying that they were coming from Clare, Tipperary, Kerry, Cork, and even distant Carlow. These groups were helped by most intelligent and discriminating audiences, and everything was set for a most successful venture.

MISS MOONEY'S NEW TASK.
The Organising Committee was very happy to secure the services of Miss Ria Mooney as adjudicator.
She was a splendid actress and most successful producer, and all who loved the theatre wished her well in the new task which had been given her as producer at the Abbey.
There had been much controversy recently about the quality of the work in the Abbey Theatre, and if improvements were needed there, she (speaker) had a very strong feeling that Miss Mooney could do the job (applause).

WORKERS' PROTEST

NATIONAL LABOUR AND COALITION

At a specially convened meeting of the employees of Limerick Shoes, Ltd., members of the Transport and General Workers Union, a strong resolution of protest was passed against the action of the National Labour Party in their joining up with Fine Gael in the formation of a Coalition Government, as their action is detrimental to the workers' interests and national feeling, and, therefore the quarterly levy on contributions from which the party derive financial aid will cease to be paid.—Signed, John O'Brien, hon.
