FOX LASSOED

As Mr. Patrick Stuart, Ballybrohan, Ogonnoloe, was carting manure from his farmyard to a nearby field last week (writes our Killaloe correspondent), his dog commenced to bark from a whin fence on the roadside, not far from Mr. Cody's house. The dog was very frightened, and as Mr. Stuart went to see what caused the fright, he observed a fox sitting on his haunches in a field inside the fence.
Both dog and fox kept looking and grinning at each other for some time, until, finally, Paddy Cody came along at the back of the fox and with a looped rope succeeded n lassoing him.

CITY 'BUS SERVICE

A correspondent signing himself "Curious" writes us suggesting that C.I.E. extend the city 'bus service to the Dublin Road area. With the exception of this road, he says, all the others leading to and from the city are linked up.

Another correspondent, who signs himself "Pilgrim," writes:—"As the 17th March draws near, would it be too much to expect C.I.E. to cooperate with the people in honouring our National Apostle? Every year people from all parts of the city make pilgrimage to St. Patrick's Well for several days prior to the feast day. It would be an act of grace that would be highly appreciated if C.I.E. extended the city 'bus service to include the area in which the shrine is situated."
