LATE NEWS

HOME ON HOLIDAY

AFTER ABSENCE OF 34 YEARS

After a lapse of 34 years, all of which period was spent in the City of New York, Mr. Michael McNamara, has returned on a short visit to his native Killaloe, where he is spending a very pleasant holiday amongst his many friends in the town and county (writes our Killaloe correspondent). He is brother of the late Paddy McNamara, who took a prominent part in the Anglo-Irish war, and later on the Republican side in the civil war. When a young man, Michael McNamara was a fine hurler and an Irish language enthusiast. His homecoming was a source of great joy to his many friends in Killaloe, who bade him a warm cead mile failte to his native town. Mr. McNamara was delighted to meet many of his school and hurling companions. He is as Irish and natural to-day as when he first left his native village and though a rich man is entirely devoid of pomp and ostentation. He was delighted to see the great progress the country had made, the only the remaining to the way in the world to-day where failte to his native town. Mr. country in the world to-day where peace and tranquility reigned.

SOCCER AT NEWCASTLE WEST

The ever increasing number of soccer fans in Newcastle West district were treated to a really fine exhibition of the code at the local venue on Sunday when the Limerick League team defeated a Limerick junior selection by three goals to two in an exhibition game (writes our Newcastle West correspondent). Despite counter attractions a big crowd turned up for the game, in which the Limerick team were seen at their best against a junior selection who gave an exceptionally good account of themselves. The first half ended without a score but in an exciting second moiety. Limerick had two goals, to which the selected team replied with two equalising scores. Limerick succeeded in securing the winning goal before the long whistle, Mr. McNamara (Limerick)
