NOMINATION FOR TUDOR H'CAP

(By Arthur McGahon)

THERE was once a man who, achieving embonpoint in his early twenties, grew, with the march of middle age, more and more pear-shaped until, at a parish fruit, vegetable and flower show, he was awarded first prize in the Deyenne du Comics class and placed second in the Pitmaston Duchess, the judge being very shortsighted.
This incident led to acute embarrassment to both of them for months afterwards whenever they happened to meet in the street.

It recalled the time when the Hen.
Letitia Horsewhistle (known to her many hunting intimates as Gracebridle) was accidentally started in a race at a point-to-point meeting and came down at the third jump, injuring her off fetlock so badly that they were almost going to shoot her before the mistake was discovered.

None of these contretemps, fortunately, are likely to happen at Hurst Park to-morrow, though there are horses running there with possibly less entitlement than had the Hon.
Letitis. To-morrow I give you two races for the price of one, a bargain which is not likely to be repeated.

First there is the Kathryn Howard Stakes, for which I might have been inclined to run myself, if I had been contemporary with Henry VIII.
This is a seven furlong affair, confined to three year-old fillies, who all carry the same weight. So it should prove a genuine classic trial.

In it we have Teen-Age, which sounds a little bit advanced in years for an affair like this; Blue Sapphire the brightest jewel in Ethiop's crown; Reply Paid, but take care the original charge wasn't reversed.

Sanlinea has already shown her paces to excellent effect; But Beautiful is the female lead in any detective thriller you like to pick up; Diableretta is a little she-devil with a wicked eye, and as fast as they come.

We have Lady Abigail, a lady lady's maid, which sounds an unnecessary complication; Le Made-
