SAID THE COWS WERE NOT

HIS!

A Kilfinane farmer was asked by a Guard if a number of cows wandering on a public road were his. The farmer disowned them. But, hiding under a hedge, Guard P. Conroy soon afterwards saw the farmer, Michael McCarthy, Castle Street, drive the cows home.

At Kilfinane Court the Guard prosecuted McCarthy. He told Justice O'Connor that the defendant strongly denied the cows were his. Suspecting the contrary, witness hid himself nearby and saw the defendant driving the cows off the road.

McCarthy told the Justice that he spent a considerable lot of his time trying to keep his cows quiet. He couldn't help their being on the road that day.

detailed report from the sub-committee appointed to examine the proposal for the erection of a memorial cross to commemorate the observance of Holy Year in West Limerick. At a meeting of the sub-committee held during the week the project was discussed at much length and the joint hon. secretaries (Messrs. J. J. Culhane and Richard Nash) were instructed to obtain estimates of the approximate cost of the projected memorial.

The proposal is that a suitably inscribed cross should be erected on the summit of one of the high hills to the west of the town, in order to mark the occasion of the observance of Holy Year. The project has aroused widespread interest and enthusiasm and there is every indication that all sections of the public in the town and surrounding district are most anxious to assist in bringing the proposal to a head.

LATE MR. C. NOONAN,

GORTROE

One of the largest funerals seen in Ballyagran for years (writes our correspondent there) was that of the late Cornelius Noonan, Gortroe, Castletown, McEniry, which took place on Sunday from Ballyagran Church to Kilmeedy Cemetery. The great concourse of people which followed the remains testified to the respect in which the deceased was held by all who knew him.
