

STATIONS OF THE CROSS.

The Stations of the Cross were executed at Oberammergau, the craftsmen numbering several actors in this year's Passion Play. Their services were secured through the good offices of the Lang family, widow and children of Anton Lang, who won renown in the role of Christ. They are the gift of a prisoner as are the tabernacle, the baptistery window, the proposed sanctuary lamps and many other items. It is proposed eventually to erect special plaques commemorating these donations. A citizen, not resident in St. Munchin's, is presenting the baptismal font in memory of his late wife. It is being executed in Hopton wood by T. Quinn, a Limerick craftsman, to the architect's design, and is silhouetted against a "Baptism of Christ" in stained glass by Miss Hone.

The seating is executed in moulded wood, the arm rests, backs and seats forming continuous curves. A great part of this seating will be in position by Sunday; the remainder will be completed within a few weeks. Alternative seating is being provided for the opening ceremony.

HEATING AND LIGHTING.

The Church is heated by electric range heaters and fitted with fluorescent light fittings. It is also equipped with amplifiers. Internally the walls and ceilings are finished in pastel shades of stone and blue, and externally the dark brown of the weather boarding is relieved by cream windows and panes with pale blue doors and shutters to roofs and covered way. The Church grounds are being laid out with young trees and flowering shrubs. Flower beds and large circular flower pots complete the scheme.

The Church has been constructed by Messrs. P. Molloy & Sons to the design of Messrs. McCormick and Co. Mr. Frank Corr was formerly architectural adviser for Limerick municipal housing schemes; he was resident in St. Munchin's Parish when the Church project was launched.

breaching laws. Supt. P. Colleran prosecuted and Mr. M. O'B. Kelly, solr., defended.

Sergeant Gahan said that at 11.15 p.m. on November 27th he found four non-bona fide customers in the bar drinking. They gave no excuse, but the publican said he thought the men were bona fide.

The defendant said two of the people, whom he knew, were cattle dealers, and he thought they were entitled to a drink.

The Superintendent said defendant was convicted of a similar offence and fined £4 on November 3rd last.

"If there's another conviction there will be an endorsement," the Justice said, fining Clarke £4. "You'd better tell your client to be more careful, Mr. Kelly."

DEATH OF MR. T. J. LANE

The death occurred recently, at an advanced age, of Mr. Thomas J. Lane (late of Roche's Street), at his residence, 4 Killoran Terrace, Catherine Place, Limerick. Deceased was a well-known huntsman in his younger days throughout the county. He was also a familiar figure in the horse-dealing business. In later years he joined the clerical staff of the Condensed Milk Company, retiring after a lengthy service with that firm.

He was brother of Mr. Michael Lane, who only returned from the U.S.A. about two years ago, having emigrated early in the present century, and of Mrs. Kathleen Coleman, Limerick.

The deceased is survived by his son, Joseph, and daughter, Angela, both resident in Limerick.

Interment took place in Mount St. Lawrence Cemetery.

be laid in asphalt from the Sa Bridge as far as the old boundary at Shelbourne. When the other thoroughfares named are treated it will mean a road from the O'Connell Monument out to Pennywell, the road surface will be of one kind—as the entire job is estimated to cost the full figure covered by the TRAFFIC SIGNS.

Councillor Sean Walsh's suggestion, made at the meeting of the Corporation during the week, that appropriate road traffic signs be erected near all city schools, is one that should be acted upon with promptitude. In Limerick most of our schools front busy thoroughfares through which motor cars, as a general rule, travel at a fast pace. In these circumstances every precaution possible should be done to give protection to children on their way to and from school. In the absence of a bye-law fixing a maximum speed through the city, warning signs are an urgent necessity. Road users may ignore these; decent motorists will not.

WILL CO-OPERATE.

The City Council has decided unanimously to act as one of the guarantors for the raising of a loan of £100,000 for the Harbour Board. The North Tipperary Co. Council had already come to a similar decision, and while the Limerick Council has not yet dealt with the Board's application it is taken for granted that the decision will be favourable. So far, the Clare Council has held aloof. This has not been taken part in the recent conference, but its absence may be due to the fact that a new Council is now in office. In any case Clare is to be given the opportunity of saying "yes" or "no," for its reputation representative of the Harbour Board and Corporation to attend the next Council meeting in Ennis.
