HOW ARE YOU?
Many people have a very poor idea of what it is to be really well. They are quite content so long as they can manage to get about and do their daily work and keep out of the doctor's hands. Health, however, is much more than this. It means energy, vigour, good spirits. It means fitness in every sense of the word. It means a system that is perfectly nourished and free from ailments, a system in which all the organs perform their functions naturally and thoroughly. If your health is not altogether satisfactory, you will find a wonderful help in Beecham's Pills. They have an excellent, purifying, stimulating and tonic effect and do much to promote good health and physical efficiency.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

The sitting of Dail Eireann in Dublin this week is one on which the thought of all Ireland is concentrated, and the result of its deliberations is awaited with interest and anxiety not alone by the people immediately concerned, but by the people of every nationality included within the British Empire. It is not difficult to account for such being the feeling at home and abroad. For generations the Irish question and its settlement have been in evidence in one phase or another until now, when, perhaps for the first time in Ireland's history, the situation has reached the acute stage. All of us are painfully aware of the country's history during the past few years, the occurrences have been so trying as to make the truce which came as a precursor of the Dail Eireann Convention a boon and a blessing to the Irish people which, it is hoped on every side, may be a lasting and a permanent condition of things for the country. That the feeling of the people is in this direction one cannot ignore what is to be heard on every side, the expressions of hopefulness from members of every class of the community, and the practically unanimous desire that the result of the sittings in Dublin may bring Ireland the peace she longs and prays for. The terms offered by Mr Lloyd George, and the reply of Mr De Valera do not shut out the hope that the night before the dawn will go well and lead up to a bright opening of the day that is to bring peace to Ireland. That is the wish, the desire, the prayer of the people who refuse to see any insuperable difficulty in heralding that blissful event, and who remain sanguine that the end of the deliberations will prove the usher of a happy future for this much tried and distracted country. One cannot cast blame on this or that side to the settlement for doing the best and wisest they can accomplish to safeguard the interests which they seek and strive to conserve, but what the people incline to, and what the country feels, is that a give-and-take policy was never more required to be kept steadily in view on the consideration of the proposal made, and the value and the outcome of the offer in its working. The subject is manifestly a delicate and difficult one for an outsider to handle, and the work of consideration of its niceties and their application must be held free from outside matter. Happily, this has been observed, and the country has refrained from anything and everything which might eventuate in check or hindrance to the settlement of a great question with its momentous issue. Indeed, matters have proceeded with an entire absence of acrimony, actuated seemingly by the resolve to consolidate and strengthen the Empire on the one hand, and to obtain what they believe to be their just rights on the other. The proceedings appear to strengthen the feeling of hope that prevails that all will be well at the close. They certainly do not take from that feeling. Mr De Valera's statement at the Dail Eireann meeting yesterday would look as darkening the outlook, but however it may be viewed, it is regarded as no set-back to the negotiations. The proposal of the Government and the reply of Dail Eireann are extant, and for consideration. The hope and feeling, too, remain that wise counsels and resolve will bring the peace and the settlement the country awaits.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The Telephone Service.

Some striking figures are officially given regarding the loss and the gain of subscribers to the telephone since the new tariff was imposed. Twenty-eight thousand five hundred people have surrendered their instruments, and there are 35,000 new installations. The net gain is 6,500, and probably the Post Office will hold that the higher rates are justified by such a result. That is not our view, says a contemporary. It is a serious set-back when a large number of people are driven to give up a convenience in business and in ordinary intercourse, and that loss is not compensated by a growth which would probably have been much larger had fees been lower. The telephone has become a necessity in modern business, and a policy that drives large numbers of people back upon older and slower methods of communication is a hindrance to commercial development. We must wait some months to know whether, even from the financial point of view, a retrograde step has justified itself.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Subscribers to the CHRONICLE who have not paid to end of December, 1920, are requested to do so forthwith, and so facilitate closing of accounts. Attention to this notice will much oblige, especially having regard to the fact that owing to the increased rates of postage the cost of re-furnishing accounts has become very considerable.

THE COST OF LIVING

The "Labour Gazette," issued by the Ministry of Labour, states that on August 2nd the average level of retail prices of all commodities, including food, rent, clothing, fuel, and light, was 122 per cent above that of July, 1914, an increase of three points over the figure for July 1st. The advance in the percentage between the two dates is largely due to increases in the prices of milk, butter, and eggs, mainly owing to the drought and to seasonal causes, and the increase in rents, and made in connexion with the provisions of the Rent Act.

IRISH PEACE MOVE.

MR. DE VALERA ON THE TERMS.

"We Will Not Accept."

At the resumed session of An Dail Mr De Valera said there appeared to be a doubt as to whether what he had said on Tuesday or whether their letter to Mr Lloyd George meant acceptance or rejection of the Government proposals. "I think there ought to be no doubt in anybody's mind," he said. "We cannot, and will not, on behalf of this nation, accept these terms." The Irish people, he said, were not going to be fooled this time. The so-called Dominion status was only being offered to two broken pieces of Ireland. It was all "take" on the British side, and it was supposed to be all "give" on the Irish side, but the Irish intended to resist to the utmost of their power, and, if they had to give way to force, they would do it boldly, and would not seek to save their faces. In this case it is so clearly a case of right against wrong that there can be no compromise, and if it is to be a final and satisfactory settlement there can be no compromise on the side of right.

The President said they were prepared to consider the unreasonable claims of Ulster—and particularly their sentiments—and to go a long way to meet them, provided the North would consider the interests of their own country, and not ally themselves with foreigners. "The Irish people in the past," he concluded, "did not flinch when force was thrown against them to deprive them of their just rights. The Irish people will not flinch now because more arms have been sent for."

The Dail proceeded to consider in public the reports of various departments.

Premier and Speech.

Refuses to Say Anything.

London, Wednesday.—A representative of the Press Association this afternoon saw Mr Lloyd George on Mr De Valera's speech in Dublin to-day. Asked if he would make any observation upon the speech, the Prime Minister said: "I think it would be better for me to say nothing at all upon the subject at present."

DAIL EIREANN SESSION.

Yesterday's Business.

At the resumed session of Dail Eireann in the Dublin Mansion House yesterday an important speech was made by Mr De Valera, in which he said that the proposed peace terms were not acceptable, but he admitted that he was willing to go a long way to placate Ulster.

The remainder of the business consisted of the submission of reports from the heads of the various departments in which were reviewed the activities of the past year.

The Departments dealt with included Local Government, the I.R.A, Trade and Commerce, Agriculture, Irish Fisheries, the Irish Language, Home Affairs, and Publicity.

The various reports were either adopted or referred for consideration to private session.

Mr De Valera then moved that the remainder of the business be referred to a private session.

The Deputy Speaker declared the public session adjourned, and announced that the Dail would assemble in private session in the morning.

THE BELFAST BOYCOTT.

At yesterday's Dail Eireann session Madame Markievicz submitted the report of the Labour Department, and referred to its activities in dealing with unemployment and the settling of trade disputes.

Alderman McDonagh, in dealing with the report, intimated that it was their intention to oust the British Ministry of Labour, which had sought to act as an arbitrator for the settlement of wages in Ireland. It was their intention to set up a real Ministry of Labour in Ireland. He acknowledged the help given by the Labour Party of Ireland. Owing to the exigencies of the time a great part of their work was in connection with the Belfast boycott. That was a weapon placed in their hands on account of the murders that had taken place in Belfast of people because they refused to sign away their right to think as they thought fit in matters of religion and politics. It was because of that that Dail Eireann decided that a boycott of Belfast should take place until such time as the people there saw fit to put an end to victimising a section of the people on account of their religion and politics. He had taken charge of the boycott on February 1st last, and before that it had been carried on splendidly by Messrs M'Guinness and M'Lean. Four hundred committees had been appointed to work the boycott, and the result was that, except in Antrim and Down, it was impossible for a Belfast merchant to sell as much as a bootlace in any part of Ireland. (Applause.) He paid a tribute to the work that had been done in that connection by the Irish Republican Army, and said that were it not for their co-operation the work would have been very difficult. Some of the biggest Dublin firms who saw fit to trade with Belfast after the Dail decree had been made to pay fines of £100 to the Finance Department of the Dail as well as to sign apologies, while some of the English and Scottish merchants who helped the Belfast merchants, when they saw their names in the black list issued, sent their managing directors to Ireland begging that the boycott on them should be taken off, and said that not only had they business interests in Ireland, but that they had sentimental reasons for trading with the Irish people also. (Laughter.) In conclusion, he asked the members to tell the people in the country that the truce did not relieve the boycott,

INCIDENT AT THE MANSION HOUSE.

While a crowd of considerable dimensions was outside the Mansion House yesterday afternoon during the sitting of Dail Eireann some Irish Volunteers who were regulating the traffic noticed three policemen in plain clothes among the spectators watching those passing in and out, and requested them to go into the Mansion House, where it is stated they were searched. The incident was reported to Mr Duggan, Irish Republican Army Liaison Officer. Mr Duggan got into touch with Dublin Castle, and subsequently Lieut.-Colonel Johnstone, Chief Commissioner of the Dublin Metropolitan Police, and Mr Cope, Assistant Under-Secretary, visited the Mansion House and interrogated the men, who were not further detained. It is understood that one of them belonged to the "G" Division of the Dublin Metropolitan Police. The other two were members of the R.I.C.

ATHLUNKARD BOAT CLUB.

The Athlunkard Boat Club Carnival will be held this evening and to-morrow evening on the picturesquely situated Club grounds. A very attractive programme both on "terra firma" and on water is being provided. St John's Temperance and Boherbuoy Bands will attend each evening and play a choice selection of music.

The Boherbuoy Brass and Reed Band will perform the following programme on Friday evening:—March, "Minnehaha," F B Losey; Overture, 'Lustpiel," Keler Bela; Entr'acte, "The Valley of Poppies," C Ancliffe; Selection, "Il Trovatore," Verdi; Vales, "Tout-Paris," E Waltseful; Piccolo Solo, "Les Echos Des Bois," E Damare; Selection, "Irish Emeralds," John Greedy; Gavotte, "Weymouth Chimes," J S Howgill; Selection, "Les Contes De Hoffman," Offenbach; Finale, "A Nation Once Again," Davis. COAL PRICES DROP.

North Staffordshire coal owners announce a drop of 2s 6d per ton on industrial coal, thus reducing prices to pre-strike rates. Slack is reduced 1s 6d below pre-strike level. Household coal remains unaltered at 5s above pre-strike prices.

OUT AND ABOUT.

Sir Robert J. Paul, Ballyglan, and Major R J Carew, Ballinamona Park, have been appointed D.L's of Co Waterford.

Mr G Dowse, M.A (T.C.D), eldest son of the late Mr R W Dowse, M.A, has been selected out of 173 candidates as head master of Cowley Grammar School.

Tipperary Guardians granted Mr S Finn, retired master shoemaker, a superannuation allowance of £100 a year, and adjourned the granting of superannuation to Dr T Kelly, M O, until the Dail L G D received his resignation.

On Mr Martin H Donohoe, the famous war correspondent, the French Government has conferred the Cross of the Legion of Honour for notable services rendered to the Allied cause during the war, says the Paris correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle."

THE MOTION TO ATTACH ARMY OFFICERS.

Special Army Order.

In connection with the action of the Master of the Rolls in ordering a writ of attachment against General Macready and other officers concerned in a habeas corpus motion, an interesting sequel is the following special order which has recently been circulated to the troops in Ireland:—

Special Order of the day by General Right Hon. Sir C F N Macready, G C M G, K C B, Commanding-in-Chief, Ireland. General Headquarters, Ireland, Parkgate, Dublin, Monday, August 15th, 1921.

On the 26th July, 1921, the Master of the Rolls, Ireland, delivered judgment and issued a Writ of habeas corpus in the case of two men under sentence of death in the Martial Law Area.

The Military Authorities in pursuance of the well known principle that in an Area where Martial Law applies Writs of Habeas Corpus do not run, refused to comply with the Writ. On this the Master of the Rolls directed Writs of Attachment to be issued against the Commander-in-Chief, the Military Governor of the Martial Law Area, and other Officers.

Subsequently, by Order of the Government, the two men under sentence of death were released.

On the 10th August the matter was raised in the House of Commons, and the Lord Privy Seal, answering for the Government, stated that: "This action in releasing the two men was based solely upon the existing situation in Ireland, and the importance at the present time of avoiding conflict between the Civil and the Military Authorities. The releases were not due to any decision given by a Civil Court in Ireland. Civil Courts have no power to overrule the decisions of the Military Courts in the Martial Law Area in Ireland. The decisions of the Military Officer Administering Martial Law in Ireland will be upheld."

In view of the prominence given in the Press to the above cases, and in order that Officers both now and hereafter who are, or may be, called upon to Administer Martial Law may know their powers in regard to interference by Civil Courts, the Commander-in-Chief wishes the above facts to be made known throughout the Command.

C. F. N. MACREADY, General.

NEW CITY ENTERPRISE.

Mr Nevitt P Fogarty, has just opened at No. 3 William Street, a first-class tobacconist establishment. This new enterprise should ensure a wide measure of support. The premises are very artistically equipped, and all the latest and most up-to-date brands of tobaccos, cigars, and cigarettes. Irish Manufactured tobaccos and cigarettes, occupy a prominent place in the stock list of Mr Fogarty. Smokers accessories in the shape of pipes, cigar and cigarette holders are also stocked in large variety.

THE SOUTHERN MAILS

Question of Acceleration.

It is satisfactory to observe from a Dublin contemporary that the question of accelerating the morning mail from Dublin to Cork is being considered by the Great Southern and Western Railway Company. Some difficulties are being experienced in running the train at an earlier hour than at present, but it is hoped that these will be overcome, and an announcement made shortly.

As to the outgoing mail train from Cork in the afternoon, it was stated that if a later hour were desired for the departure of this train the only solution would be for the boat to leave Kingstown at a later hour.

IRISH RAILWAY BILL.

In the House of Commons last night, the Irish Railways Bill passed the Report stage, and was read a third time.

The strike of Irish railway shopmen, fixed for to-day, has been postponed pending the result of negotiations.

PROVINCIAL BANK OF IRELAND.

Mr E F M Molville, who for the past nine years has been Manager of the Provincial Bank of Ireland, Limerick, is retiring at the end of next month, after a long service. During his connection with Limerick he won the high esteem of the customers of the Bank and the citizens generally, and he will carry with him in his well-earned retirement from active work the best wishes of all who enjoy the pleasure of his acquaintance. He will be succeeded here by Mr L. H. Taylor, formerly an official of the Limerick Branch, becoming later Manager at Killaloe, from which he was promoted to Tralee, where he has been stationed for some years past, and now receives the congratulations of the Tralee people on his promotion to Limerick. Congratulations are also extended to Mr W. J. Browne, accountant of Tralee Branch, who has been appointed to succeed Mr Taylor in the managership of that Branch.

FOUR BY-ELECTIONS.

There are now four by-elections pending. The Coalition-Liberals are making a great effort to win Caerphilly, where polling takes place on the 24th inst. At Westminster, Professor Arnold Lupton is not expected to poll many votes, the real fight being between the other two candidates. It is expected that the Anti-Waste people will make a great effort to wrest Lewisham from the Coalition. It is the sort of place where the Anti-Waste party might meet with a good deal of support. West Houghton, where there is a by-election owing to Mr Tyson Wilson's death, was held by Lord Derby until his sensational defeat there in 1906. Labour has held it ever since. Mr Tyson Wilson was a Whip to the Parliamentary Labour Party.—"Evening Standard."

THE DUBLIN HORSE SHOW.

Referring to the Dublin Horse Show the "Farmer's Gazette" says:—Its attractiveness has been resumed, and there is much to betoken that the event is on the way to a still higher reputation. That this should be so is natural in a sport loving country, such as Ireland. The atmosphere of sport in Ireland is never marred by the storms of passion which rage elsewhere. Sport, it is said, is a great leveller, and without question, it unites all classes on a common ground and leads to a better understanding between high and low, gentle and simple. Further, the rules of fair play and straight dealing which are the touchstone of sport, make for the growth of a healthy tolerant spirit. Love of the horse is an instinct with many, and this is especially strong among those who share in the delights of hunting or admire the skill and stamina requisite to win a long-distance steeplechase. All the leading Irish hunting and racing men were to be seen round the ringsides, and a pleasant feature of the week it was after the stormy months which have passed. Cross-Channel and even more distant visitors gave good patronage to the Show. It should be a matter for pride to Irishmen that the Show has been re-established under such happy auspices. It augurs well for the future, and may, indeed, prove to be a genuine earnest of the peace and contentment for which the country so unitedly and whole-heartedly yearns.

ENGLISH LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

The feature of the markets during the past week has been the better demand for fat cattle, and trade is now firm with rates showing a tendency to advance, says the "Agricultural Gazette" (England). Supplies have been smaller than last week, and in several cases not sufficient to satisfy the demand. In some markets the best quality cattle have realised from 2s to 3s per cwt. more money, choice lots making up to 105s at Ipswich; but seldom is 95s exceeded. Fat sheep and lambs have been offered in fairly large numbers, and here again a firmer trade is reported with prices moving upwards. A fair display of fat pigs has met with a better demand, and rates are firm. Dairy cows have been a moderate supply, but trade is far from brisk, in some markets only half the supply finding purchasers. Prices in several cases are lower, the most noticeable fluctuation being £2 to £4 fall at Penrith on Tuesday. Fat calves are practically unchanged on the week. Although rain has fallen in many parts of the country, the prospects for autumn keep are not encouraging, and consequently farmers are somewhat reluctant to speculate freely in store cattle. Store sheep still move off slowly, but the average supplies have maintained late values. Store pigs are a steady market.

WORKHOUSE AMALGAMATION SCHEME.

Discussion at Kilmallock District Council.

At the meeting of Kilmallock District Council, Mr S Flynn, Chairman, presiding, the poor law business of the Union was first dealt with.

The following communication was read from Mr M J Hassett, Rathkeale, temporary secretary of the Governing Body under the Co. Limerick amalgamation scheme:—"Sir,—I am directed by the Governing Body of above scheme to forward you the annexed extracts from rules and regulations adopted by them at their meeting on Saturday, the 23rd July, and to request that the respective Boards of Guardians set about carrying out same as soon as possible so that when the date for the transfer of inmates will be finally fixed there would be no delay in carrying out same. I also append other rules for your information. I am further directed to inform you that the scheme is expected to be in working order by the end of September, by which time a staff of officials will be elected by the Governing Body to work the new institutions, and consequently you should give notice to all workhouse officials to resign office, and deal with them according to Rule 11." Extracts from the rules and regulations include the following:—(7) That the system of boarding out be adopted where at all practicable as tending to economy. (8) Orphans and deserted children between the ages of 2 and 7 years to be boarded out, or, failing same, to be put into orphanages; children under 2 years of age to be put out to nurse; all other children eligible for Ollu District School to be sent there. The present Board of Guardians to take immediate steps to carry out this part of the scheme. (9) Unmarried mothers with their children to take their discharge from the different workhouses. (10) Cost of transfer of inmates equipment, etc, to be a county charge. (11) That all officials who are compulsorily obliged to retire by reason of the foregoing scheme be compensated for loss of office according to the maximum scale hitherto in existence, and where a Board of Guardians considers it right to mark their appreciation of meritorious service on the part of any official, they may be at liberty to add to his or her service a number of years, as they may deem suitable, for the purpose of calculating the superannuation allowances, subject to the Department of Local Government. (12) That the rationing system be abolished in the new institutions, the equivalent in money to be allowed. (13) That the Governing Body appoint a staff of officials for the County Home and Hospital; that retired officials be re-appointed as far as possible, so as to avoid payment of pensions, and that each union get its fair value of appointments according to merit. (15) That the several Rural District Councils function for outdoor relief, medical charities, and other non-poor relief purposes.

Mr Flynn pointed out that the cost of the first transfer of inmates and equipment, etc, to Croom would be a county charge, and every subsequent removal thereto from the union area would be a union charge. All the officials would have to resign in Croom, as well as in Kilmallock. None of the old officials would remain.

Mr Kennedy—Will you have extra officials?

Mr Flynn—I cannot say that. That depends on the number of new positions that are going to be there.

Mr Casey—Is it not possible that all the officials presently employed here would be appointed in Croom?

Mr Flynn said that it was.

Mr Kennedy—It is possible for a man who never held a position before to be appointed.

Mr Flynn—The man who may be appointed may be an outsider altogether. In the re-appointment of old officials they will not be required to have a knowledge of the Irish language. The subjects for examination are in the hands of the Dail at present.

Mr Kennedy—Will you have to compensate those officials after two years if you dispense with them in case they have not acquired a knowledge of the Irish language?

Mr Flynn—I dont think so.

Mr Kennedy—Suppose there was no test, only let an official at present in office take the appointment.

Mr Flynn—The Dail will not sanction that.

Mr Casey—Even your doctors, who will be applying for appointments, they will have to stand the test of the Dail.

Mr Kennedy—I make out that if you let them as they were there would be less chance of putting expense on the rates.

Mr Casey—As regards the Irish language, all officials of the present unions are fluent English speakers, and I can't see why, after being in college for a couple of years, they should not have a knowledge of the Irish language. If at the end of two years they had no knowledge of their own language they should be dismissed.

Mr Flynn said that unfortunately they themselves were too advanced to learn the language of their country, but it was in the power of younger members and the rising generation to learn.

Mr Kennedy—When will the officials be supplied with this test?

Mr Flynn—It is in the hands of the Dail, and I cannot say when.

The question of giving notice to workhouse officials abolishing their positions was adjourned to the next meeting, the Acting Clerk being directed to summon a special meeting in the meantime if he considers same necessary.

The appointment of clerk to the District Council was adjourned to a future meeting.

IRISH INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT.

A largely attended meeting was held in the Carnegie Hall, Rathkeale, on Monday in support of the Irish Co-operative Manufacturing Society, Ltd. The Right Rev Monsignor O'Donnell, P.P, presided, and sounded a plea for practical support for Irish industrial enterprises. A lengthy address on the origin, work, growth, and aims of the Society was given by Mr P J Tuohy, organiser. He gave a general survey of industrial conditions and their possibilities in this country, as well as the terms upon which investments might be made in the Society. At the conclusion of the meeting forms of application for shares in the Society were filled by a large number of those present, and a small provisional committee was formed to carry on the work of organisation in the district.

DAIL EIREANN IN SESSION.

The Attendance.

The following were amongst the Southern representatives present at the opening meeting of Dail Eireann Session on Tuesday :- Michael Collins, Sean Hayes, Padraig O'Keeffe, Sean MacSweeney, Sean Hales, Sean Moylan, Daniel Corkerry, Sean Nolan, Thomas Hunter, Seamus Fitzgerald, David Kent, Eoin MacNeill, Austin Stack, Pierce Beasley, Finian Lynch, J Crowley, Kevin O'Higgins, Jas Lynch, Francis Bulfin, Mrs O'Callaghan, Dr R Hayes, M P Colivet, Liam Hayes, Sean MacKeon, J J O'Kelly, Dr Crowley, Ernest Blythe, Sean McEntee, Eoin O'Duffy, Cathal Brugha, Dr White, Francis Drennan, Eamonn O'Dee, Dr Ryan, S T O'Ceallaigh, Philip Shanahan, Mrs Kathleen Clarke, Richard Mulcahy, Joseph MacGrath, Philip Cosgrave, Madame Markievicz, Liam De Roiste, J J Walsh, Donal O'Callaghan, Michael Hayes, D. Ada English, Prof Stockley, Dr Cusack, and Daniel McCarthy.

When the House was fully assembled business began at once. The Speaker in a few words of Irish, called upon the Rev Father O'Flanagan, in his capacity as Chaplain, to say the opening prayer.

Everyone stood up while the Chaplain, in rich melodious tones, read a short prayer in Irish.

THE OATH OF ALLEGIANCE.

The Speaker then ordered the public to remain seated, and he administered the oath of allegiance to the members, who, with uplifted hands, collectively repeated the terms, again in Irish, after the Speaker. The English version of the oath is as follows :-

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I do not, and shall not, yield a voluntary support to any pretended Government, Authority, or Power within Ireland hostile and inimical thereto ; and I do further swear (or affirm) that to the best of my knowledge and ability I will support and defend the Irish Republic and the Government of the Irish Republic, which is Dail Eireann, against all enemies, foreign and domestic ; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same, and that I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion, so help me God."

Remarkable Scenes of Enthusiasm.

Describing the scenes at the opening of the Session, the Press Association says :-

Dawson street, in which the Mansion House is situate, was thronged with crowds, who had an impossible hope of gaining admittance to the Parliament. In a steady downpour of rain they were content to stand for hours awaiting the arrival of the Sinn Fein leaders, but they were well behaved and the organisation by the members of the Irish Republican Army was eloquent testimony to the discipline of that body.

Mr De Valera received an ovation usually accorded to a Monarch, and one which even surpassed the remarkable demonstration which marked his first appearance in public when the Irish leaders met to consider whether the President should accept Mr Lloyd George's invitation to meet him in London. Mr Arthur Griffith, Mr Michael Collins, and other members of Dail Eireann Cabinet also came in for extraordinary outburats of enthusiasm. Though a few individuals exhorted the leaders not to surrender, for the most part the public contented themselves by cheering frantically.

The scene in the Round Room, where the "House" actually sat, was one which possibly has no equal in all the historic gatherings which have been held in this building. It was in this Round Room that Parnell made some of his greatest orations for Irish freedom, and it was the rendezvous of all the assemblies in pre-Union days. The room was hurriedly built in 1821 for the purpose of entertaining George IV, and from its walls there looked down upon to-day's assembly generations of Lord Mayors, while Parnell's portrait hung behind the Speaker's chair.

There were nearly two thousand people present, apart from the members of Dail Eireann. The balcony which runs around the room was packed with people, standing and sitting. The front portion of the floor of the House had been reserved for the members, who sat on comfortable green-leathered benches similar to those at Westminster, but these had been supplemented by numbers of gorgeously-upholstered divan chairs and settees.

When Mr De Valera, carrying a small attache case, followed by members of the Cabinet and the House entered the round room, there was an indescribable scene. Two thousand men and women sprang to their feet and accorded them a welcome which could not be found apart from intense national emotion and enthusiasm. The Ministry took their seats amid renewed cheering which continued until the 'House' was duly assembled and Mr Sean O'Kelly, who returned a few days ago from his mission abroad took the Speaker's chair. Silence fell upon the vast gathering while Father O'Flanagan read the prayers in Irish. Then followed the calling of the roll which was the occasion for a further outburst of enthusiasm, when names like the President, Mr Collins, and Arthur Griffith, were mentioned. When the Clerk called the names of Sir James Craig and other Ulster Unionist members, to which, of course, there was no response, derisive laughter on the part of the public had to be suppressed by the Speaker.

Mr McKeown, the famous blacksmith of Ballinalee, who was only released after a reconsideration of his case by Mr Lloyd George, came in for a reception amounting to hero worship.

After the members had signed the roll book, the Speaker vacated the chair, and President De Valera announced that the New Dail was in session. The House then proceeded with the business of election of Speaker and Deputy Speaker, after which the House adjourned.

English Press Comments.

"The Times" of yesterday says :-In the first place, Sinn Fein should understand beyond all doubt that the Government's offer to it has been received by an overwhelming majority of the English people with profound feelings of thankfulness and relief. Signs of them can be traced in the unanimity of the comments coming from men representing nearly all shades of political opinion on the nature of the Government's offer. Whatever Irishmen may feel at this juncture, they may be assured that there is but one dominant feeling in England, and that it is that we in England have at last extricated ourselves from the morass. We stand, as we have not stood for centuries, on a firm rock. The idea of self-determination, limited only by the sovereignty of the King, is a commonplace in the political thought of five confederated nations, continues "The Times." For the first time in Irish history that status is within the grasp of Irishmen. Gone for ever are all the patched-up efforts of Home Rule Bills or Home Rule Acts, and in the last five days we of the British Commonwealth have cleared our feet from quicksands and our heads from confusion, and it is to our interest as well as to Sinn Fein's that all Ireland should know it. The corollary, if Sinn Fein has read history and understands human nature, is unmistakable. There can be no room for questions. The British Commonweal h is determined that no jot or tittle of the Government's essential reservations shall be abated. All know at last what the Irish problem is, and this could not be said a week ago. The problem is now so plain that the dullest elector in these islands can understand it, and the most perverted critic abroad cannot misconstrue it. The English conscience is now clear, and the future rests solely with Ireland herself.

The "Daily Telegraph" says that it would be a mistake to attach extreme importance to the scenes witnessed, and the words spoken, at the opening of Dail Eireann on Tuesday. It was a demonstration of extremist sentiment, rather than a representation of the mass of Irish opinion, which believes peace and settlement attainable

The speech of Mr De Valera at the opening of the Dail on Tuesday will be scanned with deepening anxiety by Ireland's well-wishers, maintains the "Daily News," but happily there are other passages in the speech which suggest that the Irish leader does not, in fact, slam and bolt the door to an understanding. It is not the mandate which is in question, but the right way to give effect to it ; and so it remains open to the Dail to act on the conclusion of General Smuts in his letter—that the same freedom and independence is possible in a voluntary membership of the British Commonwealth as in isolation—and a good deal more security.

DECONTROL AND RAILWAY FARES.

The decontrol of the British railways is not to be followed by any general reduction in fares, says a London correspondent. The reports that the odd farthing a mile would be taken off when the railways were handed back were thus premature. There are, however, to be certain concessions, such as week-end tickets, which have not been issued since 1914, and a programme of excursions is being arranged at fares which, though below those now ruling, are a good deal in excess of the pre-war scale. The day excursions are to be run not only from London to the coast towns, but also from the seaside resorts to town.

DESTROYED DUBLIN CUSTOM HOUSE

A Cat's Endurance

While a number of men were removing rubbish at the Custom House, Dublin, they came across one of the cellars in which a cat was imprisoned. One of the men thought he heard the faint crying of a cat, and drew the attention of the others to it. When the cellar was explored a live cat was found, which is described as "not the weight of a match box" The poor animal had been there without food and with little fresh air since the great fire, and when discovered by the workmen was staggering about unable to stand up on its legs. It was taken in charge by the foreman who brought it home. It was so weak that it was unable to take food, but it is now recovering and is a good deal stronger, so that the foreman expects it to live. The fire in the Custom House occurred on May 26th. The cat was, therefore, 77 days imprisoned in the cellar.

THE RUSSIAN FAMINE.

We have received the following :—

The calamity which has befallen Russia should unite us all in pity and help for the millions of her suffering peasantry. Throughout the wide region of the Volga, a burning drought has destroyed the harvest. In its southern districts the grain has withered, unharvested, in the fields. In the north what has been gathered is less than the seed that was sown. The peasants have slaughtered their starving cattle, and are wandering in great masses towards the East and South. There is a risk that as they move they will carry with them the epidemics that follow hunger. The totally destitute population of these stricken districts, which will perish unless prompt help is rendered, numbers at the very lowest computation ten millions.

Though relief is being organised in Russia, her resources cannot suffice for the emergency. Such famines have happened before in her history, and always the death roll has been long. But to-day Russia is staggering under the effects of seven years of war and civil war and revolution. The drought, moreover, has been general ; and for two successive years the harvest, with some important local exceptions, has been poor. There is no reserve of wealth to meet this need.

The appeals from Russia are unparalleled in their urgency ; and in the presence of such misery and want, no humane man, whatever his opinion of recent events in Russia may be, will allow his instincts of sympathy to be silenced. Among these hungry and desperate peasants there are millions of children, and of the elders not one in a hundred belong to any political party whatever. The appeals from Russia are echoed by the council of the Exiles in Paris, which represents the groups most resolutely opposed to the Communists. Russians of all parties are uniting in the work of succour.

In appealing for money we wish it to be known that the administration of the Fund in the famine districts will be under the control of the Joint Council of the Red Cross, or of some other international body duly commissioned by the Joint Council for this purpose, and approved.

We earnestly appeal to every organisation which can influence public opinion to make the need widely and promptly known, to organise collections, and to stir the British people to generous national effort. Of all the countries of Europe scourged by the war, none has suffered so terribly as Russia, and none has received so little of the healing gift of sympathy. It will be well for the future of the world that broken links should be restored by a common effort to save life and alleviate pain.

Owing to the extreme urgency of the crisis and the absence of many from home, it has been impossible to obtain the full number of signatories to this appeal before going to Press ; but the names of other supporters will be published in due course.

It should be clearly understood that the countries bordering on Russia, where similar conditions already exist or may shortly prevail, are included within the scope of this appeal, if found necessary.

Subscriptions should be made payable to the Hon Treasurer of the Imperial War Relief Fund, earmarked for "Russian Famine Relief," and sent to the Imperial War Relief Fund, Fishmongers' Hall, London Bridge, E.C. Cheques should be crossed Messrs Baring Bros. & Co, Ltd.

We are, dear sir, yours etc,

Referring to the fact that No. 1 grade petrol in Great Britain stands at 2/11½ per gallon, "Motor Transport" says that making full allowance for shipping and insurance charges on existing basis, the price should be 1/7 per gallon. In the United States the British gallon works out at about 1/1½.

IS WHISTLING AN ANNOYANCE?

Complaining to the Enfield magistrate about the conduct of a lodger, a woman, a landlady said she whistled shrilly all day long.

"Not only is it unladylike," she added, "but it annoys me, and she must either stop whistling or go."

The Magistrate said the County Court Judge would decide if whistling was an annoyance.

"For the Blood is the Life."

Sufferers from Eczema, Boils, Pimples and Eruptions, Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Piles, Glandular Swellings, Rheumatism, Gout, should realise that these complaints are simply the symptoms of deep-rooted blood impurities, and while outward applications may give temporary benefit, they can do no more, because they cannot get below the surface of the skin.

The One Way to Real Relief, complete and lasting, is to rid the blood of the poisonous waste matter, the true cause of such troubles. "Clarke's Blood Mixture," by reason of its remarkable blood purifying properties, promptly attacks, overcomes and finally expels the impurities, that's why so many lasting recoveries stand to its credit. Pleasant to take and harmless to Old and Young alike.

SCIENCE NOTES & NEWS.

THE EARTH'S TWIN-SISTER.

The planet Venus is usually regarded, says Mr. Joseph H. Elgie, author of "The Stars Night by Night," in Conquest, as the earth's twin-sister. She is almost the same size as the earth, her diameter being about 7,800 miles, and her density not quite so great as that of the earth.

When Venus is nearest to us, however, any observers on that planet would see (if atmospheric conditions allowed) the earth as a much more resplendent object than we see Venus, as it is clear the earth must have its full illuminated disc turned to the planet. Then the beauty and grandeur of the spectacle would be enhanced by the presence of the moon, which would be seen appearing first on one side of the earth and then on the other. The inhabitants of Venus, also, would be privileged to see that side of the moon which never shows itself to us.

It will be observed that I have not assumed Venus to be inhabited. The question of her inhabitation is one difficult of solution, and in the present state of our knowledge can only be the subject of pure conjecture, which, after all, can avail us little or nothing at all. The planet receives twice the light and heat that the earth does, so that if intelligent beings do exist there, they must be capable of living under conditions very different from what we experience here.

This leads us to the point as to whether or not the surface of the planet is protected by a thick screen of cloud. For a very long time observers have caught glimpses of various markings. While some of the observers assert that these markings are actually on the surface, others just as emphatically assert that we do not see the body of the planet at all but only the upper surfaces of its clouds.

Many of the observers, however, agree as to the persistence of the markings which they have detected and drawn. One eminent authority (Mr. Evershed), after a careful study of the whole matter, as a result of long-continued observations in clearer skies abroad, has come to the conclusion that the atmosphere of Venus is not cloud-laden at all, but that its lower strata contain much dust in suspension, which effectually veils the surface features.

In any case, it is difficult to imagine how any inhabitants of this beautiful planet could ever get a glimpse of either the sun or the earth, let alone the moon and the stars. For them to be seen the cloud canopy, or dust-screen of Venus would have to show at least occasional rifts. Personally, I am of the opinion that such rifts in the Cytherean clouds do occur, thus revealing the glory of the sun and moon, earth, and stars to any observers that may exist.

And if none such do exist now we cannot logically assume that none will exist at some future time. Probably Venus is as yet merely in preparation for its coming teeming millions which will be suited to their particular environment just so much as we ourselves are suited to our particular environment. Indeed, when I think of it, the suggestion has been thrown out (I forget by whom) that the dense atmosphere of Venus at present resembles that of the earth in the carboniferous period.

CHEMICAL CHAMELEONS.

There are a number of chemicals which, when raised to a temperature other than normal, assume a new colour appearance. Some of them which are red at normal temperatures turn yellow and black when heated to about 80deg. to 100deg. Centigrade.

These chemicals, when mixed with varnish, such as copal or bronzing varnish, have been applied, says Experimental Science, to the bearings of high-speed turbines to make them indicate by their colour-change that the bearings have become too hot and need attention, and the shutting down of the turbine. There is a chance, even if the bearing is watercooled by a steady stream of water, of the bearing becoming over-heated, and on a machine, travelling at such a high speed, the result is quite evident. The application of a chameleon chemical will simplify things considerably.

These heat-changing chemicals can be used very prettily in some physical experiments. It can be shown that hot water is lighter than cold, and will, therefore, float on cold water, by mixing the chemical with a little varnish or glue and painting it on a half-inch strip of cardboard. If the cardboard be immersed in a beaker half-full of cold water and hot water cautiously poured in via the sides, the upper portion of the cardboard will turn the characteristic colour, depending on the nature of the paint.

CURIOSITY OF WIRE-STRANDING.

You know, says a writer in the Engineering Gazette, that electric cables are always made up of the following numbers of strands : 7, 19, 37, 61, or 91, and this has doubtless seemed to you quite an arbitrary series of numbers, or possibly it may seem to have been arrived at by trial to see the number fitting best round any particular core with a certain lay or pitch. The latter applies certainly to the 7, for we all know the compactness of six circles round one, producing the hexagonal plan of a honeycomb. All these numbers, however, possess this curious characteristic—that they are the cube of a number less the cube of the whole number next below. Thus, the cube of 3 equals 27, that of 2 equals 8, the difference being 19. Or again, the cube of 6 equals 216, that of 5 equals 125, the difference being 91. And so on through the whole series. The mathematicians may decide whether this is inevitable or a mere fortuitous result of the gearing in a stranding machine.

INDUSTRIAL SKIN HAZARDS.

It is becoming more and more in evidence that skin diseases of various types are prevalent among workers, and that in many instances these conditions result from the manufacturing procedures in which the worker is engaged. Very little information is available as to the frequency of these diseases, the industrial processes that produce them, the kinds and severity of the skin lesions, the methods of profitable treatment, the methods of protecting the workers against exposure, &c. For this reason a committee has been appointed by the United States Health Service Section of the National Safety Council to compile all obtainable information of this nature, and to make such recommendations as appear to be helpful in the prevention and control of these industrial skin conditions.

This committee will serve as a clearing-house for the collection and dissemination of data on the best methods of preventing and controlling skin diseases, and the most satisfactory methods of treatment.

Under "industrial dermatoses" the committee includes any noteworthy abnormality of the skin (hair or nails, &c.) that originated incident to industrial working conditions, or was aggravated by such conditions. This will include such lesions as rashes, eruptions, and inflammatory processes, hypertrophies (thickening or hardening of the skin) from hard use, such as on the hands or on the lips, low grade chronic skin diseases from long exposure to peculiar light rays or from certain heat processes, skin diseases from constant friction or pressure, loss of hair, &c. Properly speaking, most burns are likely to involve the skin, but inasmuch as the common types of burns from fire have been so well studied this committee will not include this particular skin lesion. Such burns as chemical burns, X-ray or radium burns, &c., are, however, of special interest.

POSTAL APPOINTMENT.

The official announcement is made that Mr W H Hancock, Postmaster Surveyor of Belfast, has been promoted to the position of Postmaster Surveyor of Leeds. Mr Hancock was for some years Postmaster in Cork, where he gained the esteem of the citizens.

FIRST BAG OF GROUSE.

Grouse shooting has started well despite the effects of the rain falling on the Scottish moors. The first bag arrived in London, and according to a leading poultry-dealer in the Central Market, the samples of birds received indicate that there will be a very good season. He said that it was years since he had seen birds in such fine condition. Birds are particularly plentiful on the northern moors, and as the season advances should become cheap. They were selling on Saturday morning at 12s 6d each, and by to-day they may be down to 7s 6d each for young, and 5s to 6s for old grouse.

A little 3-year-old boy named Hazel, son of Mr C Hazel, Bantry, fell into a barrel of water outside his parents' house, and was drowned.

Twenty-eight acres of ground have been acquired and given to 28 ex-Service men at Knockalton, near Nenagh. Houses are to be erected on the plots as soon as possible.
