

Form 52 Notice of Poor Rates Having Been Made.

COUNTY OF LIMERICK.

Rural Districts of Croom, Glin, Kilmallock Limerick No 1, Mitchelstown No 2, New Ross, Rathkeale, and Tipperary No 2.

NOTICE is hereby given that Poor Rates have been duly made on the Property liable thereto in above-named Districts. The Rates for the Ordinary Expenditure of the said Districts for the service of the year ending the 31st March, 1922, chargeable to the above-named Districts, are at the following Rates in the Pound:-

Table with columns: To be levied on Agricultural Land, Sum deducted in respect of Agricultural Grant, To be levied on Householders.

Table for CROOM. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for KILMALLOCK. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for MITCHELSTOWN NO. 2. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for RATHKEALE. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for GLIN. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for TIPPERARY NO 2. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for NEWCASTLE. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for TIPPERARY NO 2. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for TIPPERARY NO 2. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for TIPPERARY NO 2. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for TIPPERARY NO 2. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for TIPPERARY NO 2. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for TIPPERARY NO 2. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for TIPPERARY NO 2. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for TIPPERARY NO 2. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for TIPPERARY NO 2. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for TIPPERARY NO 2. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for TIPPERARY NO 2. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

Table for TIPPERARY NO 2. In respect of Co Charges: Do Union do, Do District do.

PUT YOUR FEET IN OUR HANDS.

SOLE AGENTS FOR: Saxone Boots and Shoes for Men. Ariste and Nil Simile for Ladies.

JOHN DUGGAN & SONS 27, PATRICK STREET. REPAIRING & BOOT-MAKING AT 5 ELLEN STREET.

Red and White Deals and Floorings, 56-lb Department Pyramid Boxes, NOW DISCHARGING

500 STANDARDS Per S.S "Portos" GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES.

SPAIGHTS, LTD, IMPORTERS, LIMERICK.

Mulligan Bros & Todd. Agents for

RUDGE-WHITWORTH, HUMBER, B.S.A, SUNBEAM, TRIUMPH, & ARIEL CYCLES, ALSO TRIUMPH, B.S.A., SUNBEAM, EXCELSIOR, ARIEL, DOUGLAS AND A.J.S. MOTOR CYCLES.

Dunlop, Warwick, Palmer, and Clincher Tyres. LUCAS BELLS, LAMPS, WRENCHES AND OIL CANS, LUBRICATION PUMPS, MUDDGUARDS, ETC.

Try one of our "GEM" Safety Razors at 5/- All the above will be sold at the Manufacturers' or at CASH PRICES.

MULLIGAN BROS. & TODD The Sports' Warehouse, 124 O'CONNELL STREET LIMERICK

Prepare for Xmas!!! CLEANED CURRANTS STONED RAISINS CLEANED SULTANAS CANDIED PEELS, etc. etc HUGONS BEEF SUET Delicious New Season's Teas. E. G. FITT, Limerick.

THOMAS MURPHY PAINTING CONTRACTOR. House Painting, Graining, Paper Hanging, &c. ORDERS QUICKLY AND SATISFACTORILY EXECUTED. ESTIMATES ON APPLICATION | PERSONAL SUPERVISION 7 CONVENT STREET, LIMERICK. (OPPOSITE CASTLE BARRACKS)

WM. R. GLEESON FOR SECOND HAND AND NEW FURNITURE 52 Thomas Street. 210 Upwards Granted to Farmers. Griffin's Nursery Ballinacurra

Palms, Flowering Plants, Cut Flowers, Wreaths, and Bouquets. Over two thousand Curious Plants have been planted under glass to supply out blooms during the winter; large stock of Fruit Trees, Forest Trees, Shrubs and Thoro Quack; inspection invited.

PIGOTT PIANOS THE FINEST VALUE IN THE WORLD.

INSPECT OUR Model II. Complete all-over iron frame, with brass press-bar; vertical strap; full trichord; best Brooks under-damper; tape shock action; bushed keys; rosewood or ebony case; three-panel top door with Marqueterie centre. Height, 4ft 2in.

Price - - £65 nett cash Pigott & Co., Ltd 111 O'CONNELL STREET, LIMERICK.

John MacNamara & Son PAINTERS AND DECORATORS, 58, Catherine Street, Limerick. NOW IS THE TIME TO PLACE ORDERS FOR PAINTING AND PAPERING Thorough Preparation, Best Materials, First-Class Workmanship. ESTABLISHED 1860. TELEPHONE

PAINTING AND DECORATING JOHN GEARY AND SONS, HOUSE AND CHURCH DECORATORS 7, THOMAS STREET, LIMERICK Large Assortment of Papers always in stock at Moderate Prices. Patterns Books from all the Leading Manufacturers. Prices and Dates Mouldings in stock. ASK FOR ESTIMATES

"As Right As A Trivet" you will say, after you have taken a few doses of Beecham's Pills. The headache you are suffering from is probably due to disordered stomach, liver and bowels and will disappear as soon as the remedial properties of this valuable specific begin to act. Beecham's Pills go to the root of the trouble. They clear impurities from the system and restore the digestive organs to a state of normal activity. By removing the cause in this way, they banish the ailments that cause you so much distress. You will be fit and well again AFTER TAKING BEECHAM'S PILLS Sold everywhere in boxes, labelled 1/1d. (66 pills) & 2/6 (166 pills)

LIMERICK CHRONICLE (Established 1766) PUBLISHED TUESDAY, THURSDAY, & SATURDAY Evenings

READ BY ALL CLASSES. Extensive Circulation in Town and Country BEST ADVERTISING MEDIUM Telegraphic & General News Service LATEST SPORTING RESULTS RATE CARDS may be had at Office, or forwarded on Application, FULL LOCAL REPORTS Price: - - TWOPENCE

Small Advertisements

Small Advertisements, "Wants," etc One Halfpenny per Word, Minimum 1s 6d. Three Insertions, Minimum, 3s. We desire to inform persons requiring it that notices in this column should be sent to the name or address of the advertiser if not given replies should be addressed to the "Box Number," or initials distinguishing the advertisement, of Chronicle Office. No information can be given by us regarding the advertiser.

ASK for O'Donovan's "Garryowen" Mineral Waters and bottled drinks; purest and best.

CARBOLIC DISINFECTANT, few teaspoonfuls shaken up in quart of water and sprinkled about, or used as a wash, is essential. You can get this from W.D. & H.O. ROSS & CO., Ltd., 113, St. James's Street, Dublin.

DEBENTURE COLLECTING AGENCY (Established 1860). (The oldest Limerick Loan Office 1868). Debts and rents collected on commission, and money advanced on security. Office, 10, St. John's Street, Limerick. J. H. ENRIGHT, 10, St. John's Street, Limerick.

COUGHS AND COLDS, always with us, can be sent to Spain like the rain. But they can be cured speedily if you take EMBRY'S ESSENCE OF BENZOIN. This remedy is the best of all cough cures, and is used for colds, bronchitis, asthma, hoarse voice, influenza, etc. Price 1/6 and 2/6, from M. B. WIDDESS, Chemist, Limerick. Agent for Eastern Foam Complexion Cream, 1/4 per jar.

PEAR'S ENCYCLOPEDIA—Just received, the new edition of this wonderful book. Price 3s only, at Galbraith's, 33 Upper O'Connell Street.

TEETH ARE TOO PRECIOUS TO BE TRIFLED WITH—Take care of your teeth in keeping with their value. Have a dentist examine them at regular intervals, and always use a good dentifrice. Klezco Tooth Paste will cleanse, polish, and whiten your teeth without injuring the enamel. Price, 1s 6d. A Good Tooth Brush should also be used. Our assortment is complete.—LAIRD'S, The Rexall Shop.

FOR 25 YEARS DYER'S FERRICANT holds sway as being the best as well as the most humane blaster for horses, dogs, or cattle. Never blanches; does not destroy the hair roots. For lameness, sprained tendons, curbs, splints, spavins, Dyer's Ferricant has no equal. Numerous testimonials. Your Chemist has it; price 2/6, 5/-, and 10/-.

PRETTY NAILS reflect refinement. You should keep your nails in perfect condition by giving them daily attention. We make a speciality of Manicure Goods, Emuol, Nail Brush, Polisher, Nail and Cuticle Remover, Nail Files, Emery Boards, Orange Sticks, etc. Our stock of all toilet specialties is complete. If you see it advertised, we have it.—LAIRD'S, 118 O'Connell Street.

PAINTING—Oils, Paints, Enamels, Varnishes, all kinds of Brushes, Buckets, Polishers and general Chandlery.—PEACOCKE, 66, William Street.

SATISFACTION TO THE CUSTOMER OR MONEY BACK.—This is the guarantee we offer with every Rexall Remedy. There is no other quality word in our list. If you are not satisfied, there could be no stronger proof of merit.—LAIRD'S, The Rexall Shop.

ACT WISELY—The next time you are buying try "Woodford's" Delicious Tea; the best and most satisfactory.—Woodford, Bourne and Co., Ltd, Limerick. (—16)

BUILD UP YOUR CHILDREN during the coming months, give them all Udal Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Parilla's Syrup. This combination is constantly being recommended by doctors. Cod Liver Oil repairs waste tissue, builds up and forms flesh, whilst Parilla's Syrup makes firm bone and muscle, sharpens appetite, and generally tones up, making healthy and robust children. WIDDESS, the Chemist in Roche's Street, sells the Udal Brand, price 1/6, 2/6 and 5/-, postage 8 extra for any size.

OVER TWENTY TITLES IN STOCK by O. GARVIE, the Prince of Storytellers, at GALBRAITH'S Bookshop, 33 Upper O'Connell Street, Limerick.

VIOLET DULCE Toilet Preparations are the most popular toilet goods; perfumed with the famous Parma and Victoria Violets. The line is so complete that we supply any desire of the most exacting gentleman for her dressing table.—LAIRD'S, The Rexall Shop.

THE IDEAL TREATMENT FOR DYSPESIA is now within reach of every sufferer. Eight thousand Rexall Shops are guaranteeing Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. They relieve a sick or sour stomach, heartburn, sick headache, flatulency, etc; help to digest the food; are soothing, antacid, antiseptic; pleasant to take.—LAIRD'S, The Rexall Shop.

RAW FOGGY WEATHER, sharp nights, chilly mornings, these turn your thoughts at once to Udal Broochial Lozenges; always have a box handy, and pop an occasional lozenge into your mouth. It will make all the difference between a cold, influenza, etc., and good health. Udal Lozenges help you a lot, and will be found an effective mouth and throat disinfectant. Doctors themselves use them. M. B. WIDDESS, Chemist, Roche's Street, keeps a good supply on hand, get a box to-day, 9d or 1/6.

£5 to £5,000 Advanced Privately ON SIMPLE PROMISSORY NOTES. No Bills of Sale taken, and absolute privacy guaranteed. First letters of application receive prompt attention, and intending borrowers are waited upon by a representative who is empowered to complete transaction on terms mutually arranged, no charge being made unless suits are actually completed. Special quotations or short loans. Write in confidence to—ADVANCES (Lancaster) Ltd., 51 BECHQUER STREET, DUBLIN.

LOVELY HAIR. CHILDREN'S HAIR needs special attention. Soft silky tresses in after life are the result of care in youth. Hair health is assured by using Ova Pomade. It frees the scalp of dandruff and dandruff, the principal cause of poor and falling hair, and promotes luxuriant growth. Sold 6d tin by J. & D. O'Connell-street & Limerick; M. B. WIDDESS, Roche's Street, Limerick; M. A. Whelan, Rathkeale; J. & G. Boyd, Limerick; or O'Connell Co., Henry.

THESE ARE THE FAIR HOUSES FOR Printing & Advertising in the City: Messrs G. McKenna & Sons, Ltd, O'Connell-street. Messrs O'Donovan & Co., O'Connell-street. LIMERICK CHRONICLE, O'Connell-street. LIMERICK LEADER, O'Connell-street. "MUNSTER NEWS" O'Connell-street. LIMERICK NEWS, O'Connell-street. "RECORD" PAINTING Co., Cornmarket Row. R. T. Lafferty, Upper Thomas-street. CREY PAINTING Co., Limerick-street. Get Your Printing and Advertising Done UNDER TRADE UNION CONDITIONS BY THE ABOVE. On behalf of the Limerick Typographical Society, M. HARTNEY, President. C. G. GANEY, Secretary.

J. J. QUAD Secretary, LIMERICK COUNTY COUNCIL. Bated this 22nd day of April, 1921. EDMUND LUDLOW, 24 GLENWORTH SQUARE, LIMERICK. Where Berths can be secured by either—Union Castle Lines to South Africa, Atterden, Orient, P. & O. and White Star Lines to Australia, New Zealand Shipping Co., and Shaw-Scott and Albion Co. to New Zealand. American, Canadian, and White Star Lines to New York, Boston, etc. Atlantic, Oceanic, Dominion, Canadian Pacific, and Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

In consequence of the earlier departure of the morning train from Limerick, and the curtailment of the hour for posting to Limerick at the General Post Office, it has been found necessary to issue the edition of the Chronicle at an earlier hour than hitherto.

THE LIMERICK CHRONICLE

(ESTABLISHED 1763)

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1921

AGRICULTURAL TOPICS.

The monthly statistical statement of the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction just issued refers to the favourable effect of the unusually mild and dry weather of October on agricultural operations.

DEATH OF MR W J HALPIN.

It is with feelings of deep and sincere regret we announce the death of Mr William James Halpin, a resident of the 2 1/2 train to-day, and was interred in Mount St. Lawrence Cemetery.

THE FUNERAL.

The remains of the late deceased arrived in Limerick by the 2 1/2 train to-day, and were interred in Mount St. Lawrence Cemetery.

COUNTY LIMERICK FARMERS ASSOCIATION.

The large and special meeting of the County Limerick Farmers Association was held at Geary's Hotel, Limerick, on Saturday, 25th ult.

The Daicing Industry.

A very large and special meeting of the County Limerick Farmers Association was held at Geary's Hotel, Limerick, on Saturday, 25th ult.

MR DE VALERA

And Limerick Visit.

The presentation of the Freedom of the City will be made to Mr De Valera in the Theatre Royal at 3 o'clock on Monday next.

MR DE VALERA AND PEACE

Speech at Ennis.

Addressing a meeting at the Town Hall, Ennis, yesterday afternoon, Mr De Valera said that they stood in this movement for certain principles, and there was no power on earth that could make them change those principles.

LANDRU TRIAL ENDED.

Sentenced to Death

Jury's Recommendation

The Landru trial concluded at Versailles, and the jury, after a retirement of three hours, returned with a verdict of premeditated murder, forgery, and robbery.

VICOUNT LASCELLES

May Succeed Lord Fitzalan.

"There is," says Mr Gossp in the "Daily Sketch" a possibility that the Earl of Fitzalan can be found Princess Mary may be the first Royal Vicereine of Ireland.

THE COROFIN AFFAIR.

Dublin Castle issued the following communique on Tuesday evening: "Information has been received of what appears to have been an attempt to procure arms from members of the Auxiliary Company stationed at Corofin, Co. Clare.

THE RAILWAY ARBITRATION AWARD.

At a meeting of Limerick No 2 Branch of the National Union of Railwaymen, on Monday, a resolution was unanimously adopted regarding Mr. Carrigan's award, and calling "on all branches of our organization throughout Ireland to take a firm stand against the award."

DEATH OF MR W J HALPIN.

It is with feelings of deep and sincere regret we announce the death of Mr William James Halpin, a resident of the 2 1/2 train to-day, and was interred in Mount St. Lawrence Cemetery.

THE FUNERAL.

The remains of the late deceased arrived in Limerick by the 2 1/2 train to-day, and were interred in Mount St. Lawrence Cemetery.

COUNTY LIMERICK FARMERS ASSOCIATION.

The large and special meeting of the County Limerick Farmers Association was held at Geary's Hotel, Limerick, on Saturday, 25th ult.

The Daicing Industry.

A very large and special meeting of the County Limerick Farmers Association was held at Geary's Hotel, Limerick, on Saturday, 25th ult.

MR DE VALERA

And Limerick Visit.

The presentation of the Freedom of the City will be made to Mr De Valera in the Theatre Royal at 3 o'clock on Monday next.

MR DE VALERA AND PEACE

Speech at Ennis.

Addressing a meeting at the Town Hall, Ennis, yesterday afternoon, Mr De Valera said that they stood in this movement for certain principles, and there was no power on earth that could make them change those principles.

LANDRU TRIAL ENDED.

Sentenced to Death

Jury's Recommendation

The Landru trial concluded at Versailles, and the jury, after a retirement of three hours, returned with a verdict of premeditated murder, forgery, and robbery.

VICOUNT LASCELLES

May Succeed Lord Fitzalan.

"There is," says Mr Gossp in the "Daily Sketch" a possibility that the Earl of Fitzalan can be found Princess Mary may be the first Royal Vicereine of Ireland.

THE COROFIN AFFAIR.

Dublin Castle issued the following communique on Tuesday evening: "Information has been received of what appears to have been an attempt to procure arms from members of the Auxiliary Company stationed at Corofin, Co. Clare.

THE RAILWAY ARBITRATION AWARD.

At a meeting of Limerick No 2 Branch of the National Union of Railwaymen, on Monday, a resolution was unanimously adopted regarding Mr. Carrigan's award, and calling "on all branches of our organization throughout Ireland to take a firm stand against the award."

IRISH PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

New Proposals Put Forward by Premier.

A Press Association message of Tuesday morning says that the Prime Minister returned to London today and saw some of his colleagues at 10 Downing-street during the day.

NEXT GERMAN PAYMENT

Conference of Experts.

Dr. Rathenau, former German Minister of Reconstruction, has arrived in London with his private secretary.

KILRUSH BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

At the fortnightly meeting of the Kilrush Board of Guardians, Mr. Conner, Chairman, presided.

THE ULSTER QUESTION.

"The Times," in the course of a long leading article dealing with Sir James Craig's statement to the Parliament of Northern Ireland, observes:—In assuming this attitude Sir James Craig has, doubtless, acted within the strict limits of his constitutional rights.

MR DE VALERA

And Limerick Visit.

The presentation of the Freedom of the City will be made to Mr De Valera in the Theatre Royal at 3 o'clock on Monday next.

MR DE VALERA AND PEACE

Speech at Ennis.

Addressing a meeting at the Town Hall, Ennis, yesterday afternoon, Mr De Valera said that they stood in this movement for certain principles, and there was no power on earth that could make them change those principles.

LANDRU TRIAL ENDED.

Sentenced to Death

Jury's Recommendation

The Landru trial concluded at Versailles, and the jury, after a retirement of three hours, returned with a verdict of premeditated murder, forgery, and robbery.

VICOUNT LASCELLES

May Succeed Lord Fitzalan.

THE COROFIN AFFAIR.

Dublin Castle issued the following communique on Tuesday evening: "Information has been received of what appears to have been an attempt to procure arms from members of the Auxiliary Company stationed at Corofin, Co. Clare.

THE RAILWAY ARBITRATION AWARD.

At a meeting of Limerick No 2 Branch of the National Union of Railwaymen, on Monday, a resolution was unanimously adopted regarding Mr. Carrigan's award, and calling "on all branches of our organization throughout Ireland to take a firm stand against the award."

STOP PRESS NEWS

Conference of Experts.

Dr. Rathenau, former German Minister of Reconstruction, has arrived in London with his private secretary.

KILRUSH BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

At the fortnightly meeting of the Kilrush Board of Guardians, Mr. Conner, Chairman, presided.

THE ULSTER QUESTION.

"The Times," in the course of a long leading article dealing with Sir James Craig's statement to the Parliament of Northern Ireland, observes:—In assuming this attitude Sir James Craig has, doubtless, acted within the strict limits of his constitutional rights.

MR DE VALERA

And Limerick Visit.

The presentation of the Freedom of the City will be made to Mr De Valera in the Theatre Royal at 3 o'clock on Monday next.

MR DE VALERA AND PEACE

Speech at Ennis.

Addressing a meeting at the Town Hall, Ennis, yesterday afternoon, Mr De Valera said that they stood in this movement for certain principles, and there was no power on earth that could make them change those principles.

LANDRU TRIAL ENDED.

Sentenced to Death

Jury's Recommendation

The Landru trial concluded at Versailles, and the jury, after a retirement of three hours, returned with a verdict of premeditated murder, forgery, and robbery.

VICOUNT LASCELLES

May Succeed Lord Fitzalan.

THE COROFIN AFFAIR.

Dublin Castle issued the following communique on Tuesday evening: "Information has been received of what appears to have been an attempt to procure arms from members of the Auxiliary Company stationed at Corofin, Co. Clare.

THE RAILWAY ARBITRATION AWARD.

At a meeting of Limerick No 2 Branch of the National Union of Railwaymen, on Monday, a resolution was unanimously adopted regarding Mr. Carrigan's award, and calling "on all branches of our organization throughout Ireland to take a firm stand against the award."

STOP PRESS NEWS

Conference of Experts.

Dr. Rathenau, former German Minister of Reconstruction, has arrived in London with his private secretary.

KILRUSH BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

At the fortnightly meeting of the Kilrush Board of Guardians, Mr. Conner, Chairman, presided.

THE ULSTER QUESTION.

"The Times," in the course of a long leading article dealing with Sir James Craig's statement to the Parliament of Northern Ireland, observes:—In assuming this attitude Sir James Craig has, doubtless, acted within the strict limits of his constitutional rights.

MR DE VALERA

And Limerick Visit.

The presentation of the Freedom of the City will be made to Mr De Valera in the Theatre Royal at 3 o'clock on Monday next.

MR DE VALERA AND PEACE

Speech at Ennis.

Addressing a meeting at the Town Hall, Ennis, yesterday afternoon, Mr De Valera said that they stood in this movement for certain principles, and there was no power on earth that could make them change those principles.

LANDRU TRIAL ENDED.

Sentenced to Death

Jury's Recommendation

The Landru trial concluded at Versailles, and the jury, after a retirement of three hours, returned with a verdict of premeditated murder, forgery, and robbery.

VICOUNT LASCELLES

May Succeed Lord Fitzalan.

THE COROFIN AFFAIR.

Dublin Castle issued the following communique on Tuesday evening: "Information has been received of what appears to have been an attempt to procure arms from members of the Auxiliary Company stationed at Corofin, Co. Clare.

THE RAILWAY ARBITRATION AWARD.

At a meeting of Limerick No 2 Branch of the National Union of Railwaymen, on Monday, a resolution was unanimously adopted regarding Mr. Carrigan's award, and calling "on all branches of our organization throughout Ireland to take a firm stand against the award."

LATEST NEWS.

TO-DAY'S TELEGRAMS.

(SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE.)

Irish Peace Negotiations

Situation Becoming More Delicate.

Feeling in Sinn Fein Quarters

Government Hopes of Settlement.

A Press Association telegram says:—In Sinn Fein quarters the peace situation is regarded as hourly becoming more delicate, and the delegates are not expecting to arrive from the Premier any offer which they can accept.

It would be a surprise should they return to Dublin.

Possibly the Government may meet Sinn Fein later in the day.

The Government's hopes of bringing about a settlement show no signs of dimming.

WASHINGTON CONFERENCE

Japan's "Seventy Per Cent."

Admiral Kato has informed America and Britain of Japan's desire for a seventy per cent fleet as necessary to her security.

LABEL ACTION BY MR J H THOMAS.

Mr J H Thomas, in his label action in the King's Bench today, said as a Party Chairman he had often discussed industrial matters with his Majesty, and had never known him other than impartial.

Mr Thomas added that since unionism was always cured by the blessing of the communists. He had no hesitation in saying that Russian money was subsidizing the Communist movement.

AEROPLANES COLLIDE.

Four Lives Lost.

Lawson, Oklahoma, Wednesday—Two officers and two soldiers were killed in a collision between two aeroplanes at a height of two thousand feet to-day.

ARMENIAN REFUGEES AT ALEXANDRIA.

Alexandria, Thursday—Armenian refugees from Cilicia, who have arrived here on a French steamer, have been refused permission by Lord Alton to land. They refuse to continue the voyage, and have threatened the crew with drawn revolvers.

CARPENTIER GOING TO ENGLAND.

Paris, Thursday—Carpentier has arrived from La Guesche, and is going to England on Saturday to complete training for his fight with Cock on January 12.

LIMERICK STOCK LIST

Table with columns for 'To-day's Prices', 'Government Stock', 'Bank of Ireland', 'Hibernian Bank', 'National Bank', 'Provincial Bank', 'Railways', 'Miscellaneous', and 'Hunting'.

County Limerick Hounds.

Table listing hound names and their owners, including 'Fiddly', '2nd', '3rd', '4th', '5th', '6th', '7th', '8th', '9th', '10th', '11th', '12th', '13th', '14th', '15th', '16th', '17th', '18th', '19th', '20th'.

The following are to-day's prices:—

Following are to-day's prices:— Suitable Pigs (1 0 to 1 2 7) 105s 0d; Stout (1 2 8 to 1 3 0) 108s 0d; Overweight (1 3 1 to 1 3 4) 109s 0d; Heavy (over 1 3 4) 92s 0d; Unfinished (over 2 0 0) 90s 0d; Berwick (about 8 stone) 102s 0d; Sixes (bacon pigs under 10 stone) 102s 0d; Pigs over 2 cwt, 1 qr, rejected.

CAHIRDAVIN COURSING CLUB

There was a large attendance of members at the annual meeting of Cahirdavin Coursing Club on Wednesday night.

ST JOHN'S TEMPERANCE SOCIETY

At a special meeting of the above Band, held on Sunday, Mr J. Imbush, Conductor and B.M. presiding, the following resolution was proposed by Mr A. Kersley, and seconded by Mr J. Healy, and passed unanimously:—"That we respectfully tender to Mr Wm Sheehan our deep sympathy on the loss sustained by him on the death of his brother, Mr Sheehan." Passed in silence.—J.P. Hickey, Hon Sec.

LIMERICK HARBOUR TIDE TABLE

Table with columns for 'First Quarter', 'Full Moon', 'Last Quarter', 'New Moon', 'Time', 'Height', 'Tide', 'Evening', 'Morning'.

(These tides are influenced by the weather)

IRISH SEA FISHERIES.

Report on Sea Fisheries, 1921. Dublin: American Chambers, Lower O'Connell-street. 1/6 net. Postage, 6d.

The Commission of Inquiry into the Resources and Industries of Ireland has issued its report on Sea Fisheries. It is a very able and complete and altogether instructive and informative publication...

PAST CENTURY RECORDS.

1860.

In the LIMERICK CHRONICLE of April, 1860, we find the following:— Wednesday, April 11. KILKISH UNION CHAIRMAN.

Colonel V. O'Leary, M.P., Richard Studdert, J.P., and Thomas Stoddley have been re-elected as Chairmen, vice, and deputy vice, of Kilkish Union.

LIMERICK DRAG HUNT. The Limerick drag hunt is exciting great interest in sporting circles, and it is supposed that the meet will be the largest ever witnessed in the south of Ireland.

NEW INCOME TAX BILL. The new Income Tax Bill has been issued, and it contains provisions for the payment of 10d to the £ on incomes of £150, with a proviso that it is to be charged, collected, and paid for one year, commencing on the 6th April, 1920.

NEW STAMP DUTIES. The new Act came into operation on Thursday. Heretofore not only all cheques drawn upon bankers must be stamped, but also every letter to a banker directing payments to be made, or money forwarded, must have affixed to it an adhesive stamp, not a postage stamp, and must be countersigned by the writer with his name or initials, and the day on which the stamp is used.

EASTER VESTRIES. At the Easter Vestry held yesterday, Messrs Thomas Taylor and James Wainwright were appointed Churchwardens of the parish of St. Michael for the ensuing year; Alderman Carlo and William Shaw for Trinity Church; Messrs Thomas Power and William Wilkinson, for St. John's; Messrs Myles and Proat for St. Mungih's; Messrs Harrison Lee and John Peacocke for St. Mary's.

DEATH OF LORD GUILLAMORE. An account has arrived from London of the death of Lord Viscount Guillamore. The sad event will place in mourning a numerous circle of relatives.

CLOSE OF CLARE ELECTION. Yesterday the High Sheriff made his official declaration of the poll at Binnis Court-house, viz.—about, 2,493; White, 1,149; majority for Cahill, 1,344. Mr. Cahill was accordingly declared elected, and addressed the assembly.

BAND PROMENADE. The band played to-day at Pery-square to the largest and most numerous assemblage of the fashionables of the city and county that we remember to have seen grasp the gardens at Pery-square since the period when our local horticultural exhibitions were held there.

FUNERAL OF LORD GUILLAMORE. On Monday last the remains of Lord Viscount Guillamore were removed from Dover-street, London, for interment in the family vault at Knocknau, in this county. On arrival of the mournful cortege at Knocknau station they were joined by the friends of the deceased respected nobleman, a very large number of the gentry, and the numerous country on the different estates, who accompanied the cortege to the burial place, and there paid a last sad tribute of respect to their beloved landlord.

SILVER CRADLE. The silver cradle voted by the Corporation of Cork to Lady Annet, who presented her husband, Sr John, with a son during his year of office as Mayor, was presented to her ladyship on Thursday by the Aldermen and Council of that city, with an address.

HER MAJESTY'S PENNY PIECE. Her Majesty has approved of the new penny piece, which will now be issued as soon as possible.

ST MARY'S CATHEDRAL. Mr Ryan (the contractor) is rapidly progressing with the new roof over the nave of St. Mary's Cathedral, the principal having been erected during the past week, and as the remainder of the work is prepared, that part of the restoration will soon be completed.

ANTI-PROFITING COMMITTEE. A meeting of the Anti-Profiteering Committee was held in the Mayor's Office, Town Hall, on Thursday evening last, the 24th ult., Mr R. P. O'Connell presiding.

The Committee again discussed the prices being charged for new milk. At their last meeting they had expressed the opinion that 1d 1/2 per gallon (suppliers) was a fair price. It was reported that retailers were charging from 1s 1/2 to 2s per gallon.

The Committee considered that the retail price should be reduced to 1s 1/2 per gallon, and directed the attention of the traders to the variations in price at present demanded even in the same street in some instances.

Arising out of minutes of last meeting, as reported in a previous issue, the following maximum prices list was submitted from the 100 lb. dealers, which shows a reduction from previous prices charged, viz:—

Roast beef 1/4 per lb. Leg Mutton and loins 1/4 per lb. Neck mutton 1/4 to 1/2 per lb. Stags and chops 1/2 to 1/3 per lb. Boiling beef and corned beef 1/3 to 1/2 per lb. Soup meat 1/2 to 1/3 per lb.

The Committee wish to point out that these must not be considered as the lowest prices at which beef and mutton may be obtained, as they are of opinion that the prices could be still further reduced. The prices of bacon and bread were again discussed. The Committee are also going into the price charged for fuel of bread.

Complaints were heard as to overcharging to the sale of grapes and other fruits, and they were noted for investigation. A circular letter was read from the Trade Department of Dublin regarding the formation and duties of Anti-Profiteering Committees. It pointed out that "the work of a Committee in every case should include examination of the prices charged by the various traders in its district, and consideration of evidence showing whether or not such prices are excessive. When it is decided by a Committee that profiteering is being carried on it will enter into negotiations with those traders whose prices it accepts as reasonable, and direct the support of the community to such traders."

It is suggested that the Committee should keep their prices continually revised in accordance with the fall of wholesale prices and the cost of production. Where a Committee cannot come to terms with any local trader, it should invite in traders from outside its district, and organize such guarantee of support as will provide a sufficient inducement, or, alternatively, it should take steps for the immediate formation of a Distributive Co-operative Society to supply the classes of goods in which profiteering takes place. Where a Committee finds that the profiteering in any class of goods, or meat, it should take steps to arrange for the direct sale of meat and milk to representatives of the farmers of its district. Alternatively, it may prepare a scheme for the municipal distribution of milk.

Arising out of this circular, it was decided to enlarge the Committee by the addition of twelve new members, to be selected. The system of payments for goods purchased was also discussed at this meeting, and it was decided to recommend to the citizens the advisability of paying for goods, as far as possible, in the form of bank notes, or cheques, or the opinion of the Committee that such a measure would be a sufficient inducement, or, alternatively, it should take steps for the immediate formation of a Distributive Co-operative Society to supply the classes of goods in which profiteering takes place.

Where a Committee finds that the profiteering in any class of goods, or meat, it should take steps to arrange for the direct sale of meat and milk to representatives of the farmers of its district. Alternatively, it may prepare a scheme for the municipal distribution of milk.

Arising out of this circular, it was decided to enlarge the Committee by the addition of twelve new members, to be selected. The system of payments for goods purchased was also discussed at this meeting, and it was decided to recommend to the citizens the advisability of paying for goods, as far as possible, in the form of bank notes, or cheques, or the opinion of the Committee that such a measure would be a sufficient inducement, or, alternatively, it should take steps for the immediate formation of a Distributive Co-operative Society to supply the classes of goods in which profiteering takes place.

Where a Committee finds that the profiteering in any class of goods, or meat, it should take steps to arrange for the direct sale of meat and milk to representatives of the farmers of its district. Alternatively, it may prepare a scheme for the municipal distribution of milk.

Arising out of this circular, it was decided to enlarge the Committee by the addition of twelve new members, to be selected. The system of payments for goods purchased was also discussed at this meeting, and it was decided to recommend to the citizens the advisability of paying for goods, as far as possible, in the form of bank notes, or cheques, or the opinion of the Committee that such a measure would be a sufficient inducement, or, alternatively, it should take steps for the immediate formation of a Distributive Co-operative Society to supply the classes of goods in which profiteering takes place.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Ferguson Memorial Windows Dedicated.

At morning service at the Presbyterian Church, Lower Mallev Street, on Sunday last, the Ferguson Memorial windows were dedicated by the Rev. F. J. Gardiner, M.A., Kingstown, who had been specially invited to undertake the impressive ceremony. They are sacramental windows erected by the members of the congregation to perpetuate the memory of the late Mr. T. A. Ferguson, who was an eminently successful and prominent member of the trade and commerce of the city of his birth.

There was a very large congregation at the dedicatory ceremony, including representatives of the various Protestant denominations in the city. The Rev. A. W. Neill, M.A., took the first part of the service, and after the reading of the second lesson introduced the Rev. F. J. Gardiner, M.A., an old friend of the late Mr. Ferguson, who unveiled and dedicated the new windows.

At the close of the sermon from Acts, 11th Chapter, Verses 22 to 24, Mr. Gardiner made the following reference to the subject of the memorial— "I cannot conclude without a few words of his whose memory we are honouring to-day. He was a good man, and when we have said that, we have not said all that is necessary. There was no more eminent feature in our friend's character than his modesty. He shunned publicity, and declined it. And I am sure that anything like fulsome praise would have been singularly distasteful to him. I shall bear this in mind when I now say, 'He was born in this city, he lived here, and he loved it.' You know him as one of the most hard-headed business men here. His integrity, his sagacity, his talent for management, his far-seeing initiative, his enthusiasm in his work soon brought him success and prosperity. And yet his plain life was that he never allowed his wealth to usurp the chief place in his thoughts and his affections. That place was early given to our Lord Jesus Christ, whom he loved and served all his days. He regarded himself as a steward of all that he had, and he tried to be faithful to his trust. You remember his large-hearted liberality, and his ready help to those in need, and his most charitable enterprises. You know something of his philanthropy, but by no means all, for he loved to do good by stealth. He helped many in their difficulties, and put them on their feet again, and no one knew of it. And his Christian charity was not confined to members of his own Church, but was extended to all whom he thought worthy of his aid, quite irrespective of class or creed. And so it came about that in this city he was honoured, trusted, and consulted by Catholics and Protestants alike. There was one quality in our friend which should like to be mentioned all over this land. He was entirely devoid of all sectarian and political bitterness. He had the love of God in his heart, and this showed itself in love to his fellow-men, and in efforts for their good. If there were more men like Mr. Ferguson in Ireland, we should not be so much troubled by our social ills. The spirit about him, notwithstanding the keenness of his intellect. He loved little children, and was loved by them, and so his work here as Superintendent for many years of the Monday School was a joy and a pleasure to him, and he influenced for good many young boys in his own country, and in other parts of the world. He was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony, and the congregation of which he was so true a friend and so liberal a supporter did well to honour his memory. It was a great thing for this country to have as one of its Elders and as one so honoured in the community as he was. It gave it a standing in the eyes of all the cities. There was a quality in Mr. Ferguson which called forth something more than respect. He called forth affection, and so he was a great reconciler of differences. In his own country, men wished to be at one with one another, and this was his due to-day, and yet we thank God for him, and for every remembrance of him. He was an honour to you, and you do well to honour his memory. I was once staying in a hotel near Dublin, where was an Irishman from this city, who, belonging to our communion, with whom I fell into conversation. He asked me if I knew Limerick, and I said I had been there a few times. I then said, 'Do you know Mr. Ferguson?' 'I know him,' said he. 'Everyone knows Mr. Ferguson. I have known him all my life.' And here he eyes kindled, and he spoke with evident feeling and conviction—'I have no hesitation in saying that he is the finest Christian man in Limerick.' It was a great testimony