SCIENCE NOTES & NEWS.

HOW CARBON BLACK IS MADE. Carbon black is a pure, flocculent form of carbon which is manufactured from natural gas, writes Henry P. Westcott in the Scientific American. It is made by burning gas under very low pressure in a low flame with not enough air admitted to produce complete combustion.

HOW RADIUM IS KEPT. Three kinds of ray or emanation are emitted from the radium salt, and one of these—the "gamma ray"—is in every way similar and probably identical with Roentgen or X-rays. This is one of the interesting facts given in an article on "Radium in the Hospital" in the August issue of the Scientific American.

"KOKA SOKI" AND ITS USES. "Koka Soki" is a variety of pumice stone which, as far as known, reports Vice-Consul H. T. Goodler of Yokohama, is only found in the small group of Nijima Islands (New Islands), which lie off the coast of the Izu Peninsula, about ninety miles south of Tokio.

GEOTHERMAL DATA OF THE U.S. United States Geological Survey Bulletin 701, by N. H. Darton, is a collection, by State, of all available data of subterranean heat in the United States. Several hundred of the observations recorded in this bulletin were taken by the author and his associates with the Darton self-registering maximum thermometer, which is a slight modification of that used by William Hall.

FRESHENING WALLPAPER. Wallpaper can be freshened by being cleaned with a ball of dough. A few cupsful of water, mixed with water, kneaded well, and rubbed down the wall in long strokes from top to bottom, has a wonderfully reviving effect.

MUNSTER WINTER ASSIZES.

Limerick Cases.

Fatal Affray at Doeks. At the Munster Winter Assizes at Cork on Saturday, December 3, the case of James Godley v. Christopher Sheppard was heard.

Mr. George Daly (instructed by Dr. Douglas, solicitor), for the prosecution, said the evidence would show that this was a deliberate murder.

Christopher Sheppard, examined by Mr. Heardley, said he was a coloured sailor who along the quay was very drunk, and appeared to be mad.

His Lordship—You are here on your solemn oath, and you were on your solemn oath before the military inquiry, and you were on your oath that you didn't see the man who stabbed the other man?

Mr. Heardley—When you were examined before the military inquiry did you say: "I saw the man going up deliberately to stab the man coming down in what appeared to me to be his stomach"? Did you say also: "I was 13 or 14 feet away at the time, and could not see him distinctly"? This was written out and read to me to know if it was correct.

Did you say: "I now identify the man under arrest as the man who stabbed the deceased"? No, I said, "The man with the khaki trousers. I said he resembled the man. I could not distinguish one black from another."

Mr. Heardley—Did you swear before the magistrate: "When the police arrived they were about to arrest another man"? I did not.

His Lordship—You are here on your solemn oath, and you were on your solemn oath before the military inquiry, and you were on your oath that you didn't see the man who stabbed the other man? You swear now that you never said it? Witness did not answer.

As a matter of fact, when the police arrived they were about to arrest another man? No, I did not. I saw the man who was about to stab the man who was about to stab the other man? No.

How did those things come into your depositions? They were said in court, but it is not I said them.

His Lordship—Who said them in court except yourself? I was cross-examined. You were not, for the deposition said that some of the coloured men on board were all right, but that others seemed to be recovering from drink.

Mr. Dalton, of Barrington's Hospital, having given evidence of the nature of the fatal wound, Mr. Daly addressed the jury on behalf of the prisoner, and argued that the main evidence should not be accepted.

His Lordship said he thought they ought to reduce the crime from murder to manslaughter, but it was a matter entirely for the jury.

The jury, after an absence of an hour and a half, found the prisoner guilty of manslaughter.

His Lordship said he thoroughly concurred with the verdict. The prisoner, in a long statement, said they had all been drinking in the ship, and then they started fighting. It was impossible to tell who was the aggressor, but he did not, and did not have a knife in his possession.

His Lordship sentenced him to twelve months' imprisonment with hard labour.

ROBBERY. Kate Clarke (Limerick) pleaded not guilty to a charge of robbery from Ellen Crawford of a purse containing a deposit receipt for £125 on the 23rd August last. The prisoner was undefended.

Ellen Crawford stated that about 6 o'clock on Friday she had been out for a walk in the park, and she gave it and they took it away. She had a purse about her neck when the prisoner came, and the prisoner might have seen it. After some time the woman returned with the vessel and asked for her bag.

His Lordship—What became of the man? Mr. Seantley—The man disappeared. When witness found her purse in the house later the 24th in a note, were gone, but it was not until the 25th that she was in a silver. The prisoner had then been taken to the barracks.

LIMERICK CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

At the meeting of the Directors of the Limerick Chamber of Commerce, held on Tuesday, December 6, 1921, Mr. George J. Morley, President, presided.

A special resolution altering the rule fixing the quorum of Directors at five and making the number three, was after some discussion, passed unanimously.

A proposition to submit an invitation to the agricultural interests of the County Limerick to nominate a representative to the Executive Committee of the Limerick Chamber of Commerce, was also discussed.

A letter of complaint from Captain J. D. Lyote, Croon House, with reference to the train services and postal deliveries was considered, and also a complaint from Mr. Bryan Sheehy. They were referred to the Directors to frame a case to be presented to the L.R. and W.R. Co., who were also urged, in view of the statements of the Postmaster General in his letter to the Limerick Chamber of Commerce, to resume pre-war services.

The Directors decided to communicate with the Limerick Postmaster with reference to the facility of service at the public counter, and the great delay thereby by the public owing to understaffing.

Correspondence was read from the Association of Chambers of Commerce in reference to the necessity for the resumption of Sunday collection and delivery of letters, and was dealt with.

WAR ON POACHERS.

Saving Irish Inland Fisheries. "The future of the Irish inland fisheries is seriously threatened by poaching."

This statement was contained in a circular letter from the Fisheries Department of Dublin, issued by the Director of Fisheries, which was read at a meeting of the South Dublin Rural District Council.

The circular also stated that the salmon fisheries of Ireland, and, in a lesser degree, the sea and brown trout fisheries, constituted an important part of the wealth of the nation.

It was computed that the salmon fisheries of Ireland yielded a free Government, by raising an annual value of £3,000,000. The proper preservation of the spawning fish, the protection of the immature from poach, and the introduction of hatcheries were necessary means to this desirable end.

In the past many of their people engaged in poaching, simply because they did not understand the disastrous consequences to the industry that the destruction of spawning fish entailed.

Authorities estimated that, approximately, a salmon produced 1,000 eggs for every pound the fish weighed. Therefore, a salmon weighing 15 pounds would produce 15,000 eggs. A poacher killing such a fish was, therefore, responsible for the destruction of 15,000 salmon.

It was notorious that poaching was now more prevalent than ever. In the national interest, the poacher must be prevented from carrying on his work of destruction.

The public boards could render invaluable aid by educating public opinion to locate the wanted poacher or spawner of fish. The Irish Republican Police, the circular added, were engaged in the great work of saving a national industry. The assistance of members of public boards in aiding the police would be of immense value.

As a result of the circular was ordered to be furnished to each councillor.
