LENSES FOR THE EYES

The average man who has to wear glasses usually thinks little of the mounting, the adjustment and the eye examination. The lenses are the important thing. You look through the Lenses from the time you begin to wear glasses until your eyes can no longer see. TORIC Lenses are the greatest improvement in lenses in the last hundred years. Shaped like the cornea of the eye they prevent eye strain, give a wider angle of view without touching the lashes or your seeing the edges of the lens. They cost a little more than ordinary flat lenses and are worth MUCH more.

SIR EDWARD CARSON SPEECH AT TORQUAY

Defence of Coalition Government

Sir Edward Carson, speaking at a crowded public meeting held by the Torquay Union... "I should like to speak with great candour in a somewhat detached position," he said. He noticed that he had been described as a lonely and isolated figure, but he was not in the least distressed.

SIR JOHN SIMON ON THE IRISH QUESTION

Government's Policy Explained

Sir John Simon addressed a mass meeting held under the auspices of the Northern Liberal Federation in Sunderland on Saturday night... "A letter was read from Sir Walter Renshaw, Bart., Chairman of the Federation, in which he said that he was really gratified to hear of those egotistical political adventurers, Mr Lloyd George and Mr Bonar Law, advising the country even now that it would be a great disaster to do away with the Coalition while they were carrying out a process of reconstruction."

MR JOHN DILLON ON THE IRISH SITUATION

Reply to U. I. L. Resolution

Mr John Dillon, replying to a resolution of the U. I. L. League, said that the Government's policy was to bring about the reconciliation of the forces of Sinn Féin and the U. I. L.

I should be very much interested to learn whether the members of the Branch have any ideas as to the nature of the action which could be taken with such an object in view.

I have kept a very close watch on the situation in Ireland for the past year, and I have not been able to discern any possibility of a union of those who still believe in the programme and policy of Sinn Féin with the forces of the U. I. L.

The result of the general election of December 1918, whatever might be said of the methods by which it was secured, was that the Irish race all over the world was given a national mandate to elect a Government to attempt to carry out their policy.

I felt, therefore, that having put the issue as to the election of the Government, and the country and my own constituents having decided against the Government, it was my duty to maintain silence, and to abstain from any further action in the matter.

My information goes to show that a very large number of those who voted Sinn Féin, or abstained from the polls at the last election, have changed, and now deeply regret the result of that election.

While saying this, I feel bound to state that I am not in the slightest degree shocked in my mind by the fact that a large number of those who voted Sinn Féin, or abstained from the polls at the last election, have changed, and now deeply regret the result of that election.

This policy was entered upon in April, 1918, in the belief that the Government would be able to bring about a reconciliation of the forces of Sinn Féin and the U. I. L.

Through all these three years, so far as my information goes, no section of the Irish people has been consulted by the Government as to the nature of the policy which it has pursued.

With Mr. Lloyd George in force, the Government's policy is to bring about a reconciliation of the forces of Sinn Féin and the U. I. L.
