Severn project, Mr Liversedge goes on to say-"Suppose, then, that at high tide, when the eshary is full, we could drop a screen across the river at the point selected and thus hold ap all the water above it. leaving the water below to run off with the abb tide, we would than have an immense reservoir of water. and by running off this water through surbines power could be developed," In practice the water would begin to work the surbines as soon as there was a diffacance in level between the impounded water above the screen and the obbing water below of, say, 15 to 20 feet. Tarbines are available which will do seefal work when the difference of level, or the "head," is no more than 3 feet. A certain amount of the power so generated would be converted into clastricity at once and delivered to users-put into the mains-but not all the power."

Provision, of course, has to be made for the supply of power to users during hours when tidal differences are not available to produce It. Therefore some of the power available when the tides serve is to be used to pump water from the river up to a high level reservoir constructed in a billy region on one side of the river.

The water, Mr Liversedge explains, "will ran down sgain through other turbines and develop power when the tide is not working. In this way it will be possible to supply power at any time of the day or night, whatever the state of the bide."

The "screen" of which Mr Liversedge makes mention is represented in the Savern scheme by a concrete or masonry dam across the river, plaresd with many openings through which the side may flow, but which are closed by doors or sluice gaves at the proper simes. There is to question of the theoretical possibility of the scheme, we are assared, it being "quite prac" ticable in a technical sonre."

PROTEST OF CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

At a meeting of the Limerick Obamber of Commerce the following resolution W38 passed :- " That this Ohember protests sgainst. she proposed increase of 150 per cent on present Maad, who was lash seen allve at $ p m on the rases in the tolls on the Shannon navigation payable to the Beard of Works, as being unreasonable and unwarranted. It wishes to point out that these toils are levied Co Kerry. A search revealed a quantity of under the Shannon Navigation Acts, which blood, some money and a batton at the place provide that only a sufficient sum thall be where the man was seen to fall. There were raised to over the cost of the apkeep of the tracks of blood for over half a mile. The body navigation, and that a very moderate increase | has not been discovered."

on the present rates should be sufficient for this purpose. Also, that the upkeep of floodgates, said at present to be paid for out of the tolls, levied on the Shannon traffic, should be charged to drainege and paid for out of drain. age pharges on the districts perved. The River Sharpon is the natural means of communication between the sea and the central parts of Ireland, and the port of Limerick is Ite natural port of supply. While recognising that owing to the present abnornal conditions a moderate increase in the tolls is pecsesary for the upkeep of the navigation, this Ohamber wishes to point out that an increase to the extent proposed will undaiy tax the Limerick merchants who are using the waterway and will strongly millints against the trade and prosperity of the port of Limerick."

was committed in the nonres of an organical rald apon the barrack at Mailow by a number of civillans. Is was carried out in a very daring manner and was the result of very cartfal consideration of those who organised it, and was directed with skill by at least one officer who was in charge of that anierprise, and under him were a number of men, amongst whom were, counsel submissed, the six prisoners. The only question in the case was this : Had they all or any one of the man before the court who took part in that enterprise.

A soldier stated that he was sentry as Mallow Barracks on 28th September last; there is a small hole in the gate, and there was a knock as the gate ; withuse looked through thas hole and asw a man with an envelope in his hand ;

he said something and witness opened the gate about six inches; he saw the accused Murphy share; he bried to close the door, but some-

What is true of the Severa estuary is generally true of several other river months and barbours around Grent Brisain and Ireland. and to that extent, at least, Mr Liversedge's views are of widespread interest and much importance:

The Shannon, it has often been asserted, and with positive truth, has great power potenstatistes, and one of the developments of the feture may be the harnessing of the tides that day after day roll up the great waterway to Limerick and go back again to the sea without an alom of their millions of herse power being willight to the slightest extent. .

Clare Military Inquiry

A military inquiry into the circumstances that led to the desthe of two marines Privales J R Bolton and Henry Ohandler, who were killed at Ballyvaughan on Saturday morping-was held at Galway on Monday.

Medical evidence having being given, witness, who was in command, said that the party left the coastguard station to obtain provisions. While proceeding through the village fire was opened on them from all directions. He gave the order : "Take cover and open fire." He saw Private Bolton, who was on his right, fall.

A second witness said firs was opened when the head of the party reached the village. Hs ordered the rere members to take cover, and they did no. Private Chardler took cover somewhere behind bim, and witness heard him cry out, "I am hit " When the fire ceated, after about five minutes he sent for assistance.

The finding will be sphernesd.

Refusal of Witnesses to Attend Inquiry

A military court of inquiry, investigating the olroumstances surrounding the death of the Rev James O Callaghan, OO, who was shot and fatally wounded recently at the residence of Alderman Linm de Rolers, M.P. Jansmouns, Sunday's Well, reassembled at the Victoria Barracks, Oork, on Monday morning.

At the sitting of the Court a Head 'Oonstable stated that of the four summonses he received he had served three-the Rev . Father Jones, Sunday's Well; Bev Father O'Brien, The Oathedral, and Mrs Liam de Roiste. He falled to find Alderman de Holete, though he had made a careful search for him. Mrs de Roiste said she would not stiend the court, and refused to take the anomons from him. The priests told him they could not be of any assistance to the court in the svidence shey had to give, as they were not present as the shooting. The head constable added that their evidence could only be hearsay.

The court adjourned for a direction from the Military Governor as to farther proceedings.
