NEW CHURCH TO OUR LADY OF LOURDES.

LOWER GLOUCESTER-STREET, DUBLIN.

A TEMPORARY edifice has been erected on the site secured for the New Church, which is badly needed in this locality.

It is already crowded, and the Sorites has aroused a deep spirit of Devotion to Our Lady of Lourdes, with most beneficial results among the people.

The Accommodation afforded by the Temporary Structure is inadequate. The Administrator accordingly appeals to the Oatholders of Dublin and of Ireland for the means to undertake the building of the New Church. The District being one of the most densely populated and poorest in the City, "Bible pecuniary aid can be expected from it."

The Holy Scriptures of the Mass will be offered EACH WEEK for Subscribers.

Subscriptions will be thankfully received by any of the Clergy, or by

SALE OF BREAD

Committee's Reports

The Inter-Departmental Committee on the Sale of Bread by Weight, and the Food Controller to consider the provisions of the Bread Acts and the Bread Order relating to the sale of bread by weight, issued their reports.

The majority report, which is signed by nine out of ten members, recommends that the Bread Acts of 1892 and 1896 be repealed, and a new Act, applicable only to England and Wales, be passed, enacting that all bread other than bread sold for consumption on the premises of the seller shall be sold by weight, and not otherwise. An obligation should be laid on local authorities who appoint inspectors under the Weights and Measures Acts to administer the Bread Act, and the Board of Trade should be given power to make instructions and regulations for the guidance of inspectors.

Fancy bread and bread in loaves or rolls weighing 13 ounces or under should be exempt from the operation of the Act.

No loaf of bread should be sold unless the weight be one pound or a simple multiple of one pound. The custom in Scotland is to have this weight stamped on the loaf, and the committee recommend that this point might be considered with reference to England and Wales.

This proposal is not to apply to bread supplied under contract to hospitals, asylums or other public institutions, hotels or restaurants when the contract provides that the quantity supplied is to be ascertained by weighing on delivery and the bread is for consumption within such institutions, hotels or restaurants.

The legal procedure under the new Bread Act should be brought into accordance with that under the Weights and Measures Acts and the Summary Jurisdiction Acts. Severe penalties than the penalties specified in the Bread Acts should be imposed for offences, especially for offences subsequent to the Act, provided that no conviction takes place in respect of the short weight of a single loaf.

The minority report seeks exception to the definition of "fancy bread under 13 ounces," and declares that the recommendation that bread should be sold in multiples of one pound would involve a restriction on the trade.

THE IRISH DELEGATES

The Press Association says—Mr de Valera and his party motored out of London yesterday, stopping en route at St. Anthony's Hospital, Geneva, where the Lord Mayor of Dublin's son is resident surgeon. They received an enthusiastic reception from the staff and were entertained to tea.

BERRINGS CREAMERY RE-OPENED

The Co-operative Creamery at Bertragh, which was closed by military order for the month of July, has now received an official writ cancelling the order, and business is resumed as usual.

UNUSUAL CASE

At Dublin Courtmartial

Michael Kerrigan (17), was charged with having a revolver, before a Courtmartial in Kilmallock.

There was an alternative charge of acting in a manner prejudicial to good order in associating with a man named John O'Connor.

Accused, who pleaded "not guilty," was defended by counsel.

The Prosecutor said the accused and John O'Connor were on July 2nd met by a military force posted in the vicinity of Britain Street and Granby Row.

Kerrigan was seen to warn O'Connor of the approach of the patrol by nudging him, and they immediately separated.

O'Connor going back to Granby Row, while Kerrigan proceeded along Britain Street.

O'Connor was found in possession of a revolver which was not loaded. No ammunition or anything else incriminating was found on him.

Kerrigan was arrested, but nothing incriminating was found on him.

The Prosecutor contended that Kerrigan was guilty of associating with O'Connor, knowing that he had the revolver in his possession, and his conduct on the approach of the patrol showed that he knew O'Connor was in possession of the revolver.

A military officer stated that on the approach of the patrol one of the men "nudged" the other and both made off.

A military sergeant deposed to seeing the accused with O'Connor, and immediately accused gave him (O'Connor) a "nudge" and ran away; when arrested O'Connor had an unlicensed revolver on him; nothing was found on accused when searched.

Counsel for the defence said their case was that Kerrigan never knew O'Connor, and never spoke to him.

The accused then made a statement in the course of which he said that he had been about 4 o'clock on the day in question, having arranged to meet his mother at Findlater's Church. He was a bit early, and walked down Granby Row.

O'Connor passed him, and suddenly turned as he passed and looked at him. He never saw O'Connor in his life before, and was not in any political organisation.

The mother of the accused corroborated. The Court closed, and, on re-opening, the accused was found "not guilty" on all charges and was released.

At the same Courtmartial a young man named James O'Connor was charged with having a revolver.

The accused refused to recognize the Court, and a plea of "not guilty" was entered.

Similar evidence to that in the last case having been given, the Court closed.

The trial also took place of John Aloysius Haslam, James Clusky, and Maria Heugh, Dublin, who were charged, Haslam with having a revolver and five rounds of revolver ammunition, Clusky with the possession of a count, and Heugh with associating with the others.

All three refused to recognize the court.

The prisoner said on June 21 a party of police was patrolling Richmond Street. The accused were held up, and one was found in possession of a revolver, another in possession of a bomb, and the third man was with them.

The police witnesses gave corroborative evidence.

The accused man, John Haslam, said that Haugh was not in their company.

Haugh said he was not with the other two men, but he fell into line with them when they were halted and searched.

The Court closed.

Before a courtmartial at Kilmallock Court-house, James Doyle, 268, O'Connell Road, Drumcondra, Dublin, was charged with having a revolver and ammunition in his possession on July 7 1921, at Dublin.

Accused declined to recognize the Court.

A police witness deposed to arresting accused from information received that he had a gun in his pocket; on being searched a fully loaded revolver was found in his hip pocket, as well as 14 rounds in his breast pocket; accused was taken to Dublin Castle after his arrest.

Accused said he had no questions to ask, but wished to state that he was beaten when taken into the Castle.

The witness, in reply to the prosecutor, said he did not see the accused receive any beating. He handed him over to the guard, and there his duty ended.

The prosecutor said he was beaten when taken into a place called the "reception room." He had no more to say.

The Court closed.

FACTS AND FANCIES

KARAKUL

Karakul is the name of a large tribe in Turkestan, and it has been given to a breed of sheep, the pelts of whose young are sold as Persian lamb, one of the most beautiful and durable of furs.

The sheep are natives of Bokhara, in Central Asia, and are especially valuable only because of their pelts, especially the pelts of the lambs.

In appearance the Karakul sheep is no handsomer. It is long of body, of medium size, with steep or sloping hindquarters, broad tails, and drooping ears.

In comparison with the well-bred Cheviot or Shropshire it looks like a scrub. On a mature Karakul the wool is long, coarse, and hairlike, and in colour varies from light grey to brown.

The wool of the lamb is curly and silky, and if the lamb is killed within three days after it has been born the pelts are of the highest quality.

From Bokhara the pelts come to the Western world, where they are dried and dressed and then go on the market under the name of Persian lamb, probably because the pelts first came out of Bokhara by way of Persia.

SO WHAT IS A GIRL TO DO?

An address on marriage, given to young women by a clergyman contained these "don'ts":

"Don't think you cannot be happy unless you are married."

"Don't jump at the first offer of marriage because you fear you will not get another."

"Don't marry a man unless he is well spoken of all round."

"Don't marry a man for whom you do not have the highest respect."

"Don't marry a man simply because he is gallant and dashing."

"Don't marry a man because he remembers you with beautiful flowers."

"Don't marry a man who neglects his mother and sisters."

"Don't marry a man to reform him."

"Don't marry a man who is selfish."

"Don't marry a man for his money."

"Don't marry a man who ridicules your religion."

"Don't marry a man who is cruel."

"Don't marry a man to spite another man or woman."

"Don't marry a man about whose habits you are not quite certain."

WHERE THE POTATO CAME FROM.

It is customary to speak of the potato as a native of the mountain districts of tropical and sub-tropical South America, but it is not known where the plant had its original home.

This much, however, is certain, long before the Spaniards reached the New World the potato was cultivated by the Incas of Peru and other kindred peoples of that part of South America.

It seems to have been taken to Europe by the Spaniards from the neighbourhood of Quito, Ecuador, in the beginning of the sixteenth century, and to have spread from Spain into the Netherlands, now Holland, into south-eastern France and Italy, but only to be cultivated in a few gardens as a curiosity, and not for general use as an article of food.

The names of three famous navigators and sea-fighters are associated with the introduction of the potato into England. Sir John Hawkland is said to have taken the potato to England from Virginia in 1682; Sir Francis Drake in 1582, and Sir Walter Raleigh a little later. He planted potatoes at his birthplace, Hayes, in Devonshire, and of his estate in Munster, Ireland.

FOOD VALUE OF PEANUTS.

Experiments on the digestibility of soy beans and peanuts, conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture, prove that these are especially valuable for human food and are well tolerated by the human body when cooked for two hours by steam at fifteen pounds pressure.

VARIETY IN THE BARK OF THE DOG.

To a student of such matters, the bark of a dog can express every shade of emotion from joy to terror. There is the rattling bark of a watchdog. There is the gaily trumpeting bark of the dog who sees his master after a long absence or who is about to be taken for a walk. There is the howling bark of the pup that meets a tortoise in his path for the first time, and there is the snarled bark of the same pup when the turtle hisses at him.

To one who has bothered to make a study of it, a bark is as expressive of any of several emotions as human speech, and as easily classified. Learned scientists, Leback among them, have declared most solemnly that the bark of a dog is an effort at imitating human speech. They have backed this statement by proving that wild dogs never bark, nor do such few domesticated species, and as easily classified. Learned scientists, Leback among them, have declared most solemnly that the bark of a dog is an effort at imitating human speech. LARGE FAMILIES.

The difficulties in paying family allotments, family allowances, compensation, and war risk insurance due to errors of the soldier himself and to the frequent changes of residence of his family without giving any notice of changed address, are not fully appreciated by the public. Mr. J. H. White, of the War Office, says a circular issued by the U. S. War Department. In order to emphasize the tremendous task confronting clerks in the department, the circular continues: "It should be noted that the Johnson family has 53,000 names in the United States; the Williams family 51,900; the Browns, 48,000; the Williamses, 47,000; the Joneses, 28,000; the Andersons, 22,000; the Walkers, 18,500; and the Millers, 2,500. There were fifty-two John J. O'Briens fourteen of whom made allotments to wives and children. There were thirty-two John J. O'Briens, 2,032 William Johnstons. The Rodriguez family from Porto Rico sent 894 men, having only seven first names, Domingo, Francisco, Jose, Juan, Ramon, Thomas, and Antonio. There were fifty-one Jose Rodriguez in the 87th Infantry alone."

WHERE MEN STEAL NOT.

According to a correspondent, all property may be left unguarded in the Marquesas Islands, situated in the Southern Seas. It is said that the natives of these islands, after the second story room of a Manila hotel, by the eyes and fingers of the Tagalog log-ladron, while I washed my face, and stood against the mystery of their disappearance with door locked. I have given over my watch to the going to bed in all the village, or anything that answered the purpose of one.

BRUTE CENTENARIANS.

Elephants are perhaps the longest-lived members of the animal kingdom, averaging between 100 and 200 years. There are records of elephants living 250 years. Most mammals show the whole about the same length of life as the elephant. The camel comes next, averaging about 75 years. The average life of a lion and a tiger is forty and twenty-two years respectively.

CAUSTIC COMMENT

By Assize Judge

At Tyrone Assize, Judge Dodd referred to the breaking up of the North West Circuit, and he was sorry for this, as that was the occasion in which he was senior Judge that circuit. However, they had seen Justice in the subject, and all said to come right yet. One thing, he said, that he was recruited in the North and South of the county, the farm, the shop, from Oram and Nationalists, and they all went together in the library without any dispute as to the individuality of each for a Now they were going to be set in two, but was sure that the Bar in the North-West would still maintain its dignity. The only thing he knew which could survive being set in two was a woman.

CALL FOR AMNESTY

The Home Secretary (Mr. Short) will save a deputation during the week from the English Free Speech League Committee which will urge the granting of a general amnesty to political prisoners and the repeal of the Navigators' Powers Act and also 3/4
