people, and especially for the poor and the sick. If similar circumstances were to arise again on the morrow he would feel himself amply justified in helping to take any steps that would tend towards the welfare of the poor...

Mr O'Connor said that the reason which prompted the Bakers' Society to apply for the lease of the premises was the necessity for the poor. There are very few, he added, even in this body who know the exact conditions in which the poor of Limerick live...

Mr Russell said that any negotiations that had been entered into were at an end. The Master Bakers had made a fair offer which was not accepted, and after that how could it be said that negotiations could be carried further or were going on...

Horrible Outrage. The horrible outrage of the destruction of Louvain took place towards the end of August, 1914. A German officer which had advanced beyond the town surrounded Belgian troops, and were repulsed. They retired into the town, and the German soldiers, who were comrades who were retreating and dead on the ground...

Dominoes and Franciscans. The Irish Dominicans also resided in Louvain. The convent of the Irish Franciscans was founded by William de Burgh, Bishop of Down, in the year 1200. The convent was destroyed by the English in 1577, and the site was used for a garden...
