JUST THINK!

You Support Local Industry if you have your Printing done at the County Printing Works, Davis Street, Tipperary—now the only Printing Works in the Town. If all the Printing used in Tipperary which could be produced in the town were produced in it, we should be able to pay £70 or £80 a week in wages. And any Printing entrusted to us would be well done, and charged for fairly.

FROM OUR District Correspondents

KILMALLOCK.

Market Banned. The weekly market has not been held for over five weeks, since the shooting of Sergeant McGuire. Pairs are also prohibited.

Sport. A move is being made, I am informed, for the holding of a cycling and athletic sports at Kilmallock at an early date this summer.

In the Country. Farming operations are well advanced, on in other words, "the spring work is almost completed." In a few weeks, I understand, potato stubs will be three inches over the ground which locally is a very fine crop of Sunday and Monday crops.

Early Arrived. The Dundrum and the Ballydoon of the year, I understand, arrived in the town.

The Petty Sessions. The first Petty Sessions court for over ten months was held in Kilmallock last week.

"The Tipperaryman." "The Tipperaryman" is a very interesting every Saturday journal. It is published from Mrs. McCarthy, Main Street.

HOSPITAL. The French Band. The band of the late General Sir John French, who died in India last year, is being reformed.

Irish Horses on the Indian Turf. Galway Gate and Woodcock were bred by Mr. John Ryan, Killybegs, which were sent to India last year.

Curfew Relaxed. Curfew, which has been in operation in Hospital for the last eight months from 9 p.m. till 3 a.m., has been relaxed.

Recovered. Dr. Cleary, who was seriously ill last week, is up and out again, looking as hale and hearty as ever.

Bank Service Changes. Mr. A. Hayes, Manager and Leinster Bank, Hospital, who has been appointed manager at Ennistymon, will be succeeded as cashier by Mr. J. J. Meenan, of the Killybegs branch.

Fine Weather for Farmers. The weather in Hospital for the past two weeks has been beautiful, and farmers were quick to avail themselves of it.

GOLDEN. Mail Bag Rifled. About 11 p.m. on Friday evening last, when the postman carrying mails from Golden to Cashel had reached Schoonhouse Cross, a distance from his point of departure and objective, he was confronted by two armed and disguised men, who held him up and relieved him of his mail bag, which contained, inter alia, several registered letters and packets.

The High Rates. As already stated, the high rates have become a matter of public and private discussion. The City Fathers in Cashel and elsewhere are ventilating the grievances under which the ratepayers in general suffer. It appears from the figures to hand that a small ratepayer of £10 valuation, allowing £1 on buildings, now has to pay the modest sum of £24 19s. 0d. The poor man having a valuation of £23, £15 10s. 5d. nett. Nobody expects that the public service can be maintained without money, but surely there is a limit to expenditure. It is time to cry halt before the country is bankrupt. The old prophecy is coming true: "More rates than rent." What next?

CAPPAWHITE.

To Be Re-opened.

Carmahalla Creamery, in connection with the re-opening of which negotiations have been going on recently, will probably commence work again on Monday next. The date of re-opening will be definitely settled this evening. The separation of the milk received at Carmahalla will be carried out at the successful Tipperary Co-operative Creamery. The re-opening at Carmahalla cannot fail to be of great convenience to suppliers in the neighbourhood, and, linked up with the Creamery at Tipperary, it should have a prosperous future before it.

Presentation.

Mr. James Kirby, county surveyor of Co. Wexford, was presented by his friends in Wexford with a snooker's cabinet at a dinner given in his honour a few days since. Mr. Kirby is a former student of the Monastery, Tipperary, and from there obtained a University Scholarship. In the University he took the course in Engineering most creditably.

Rural Postman Held Up.

On Wednesday John Holders, rural postman, was held up on his way to Tipperary, by a party of armed men, who took the mail from him. On the morning Patrick Hogan, rural postman, Killybegs, while on his way to Tipperary, was similarly held up, and had the mail taken from him at Killybegs, midway between Killybegs and Tipperary. On Thursday the Cappawhite postman discovered the missing mailbag lying on a path just near the scene of the raid. Some of the letters contained names, and it appeared that the envelopes of all the letters bore the inscription "Censored by the I.R.A." So far there has been no word of the thieves.

Spring Work.

Spring work in the district is very advanced, all corn and pot crops being now sown under very good conditions. The weather is generally favourable to the farmer.

Robberies.

It is remarkable to hear that several of the robberies, both in the district and in the county, are being traced to the same man. The man in question is a man named John Kelly, who is a well-known character in the district. He is a man of about 40 years of age, and is a native of the district. He is a man of a very high character, and is a man of a very high character.

"Tipperaryman" in Cappawhite.

The new issue of "The Tipperaryman" is being looked forward to with much interest here. It can be purchased on Saturdays and Sundays at Messrs. J. J. Timoney's, The Square.

DUNDRUM.

Death of Mr. Daniel Carew.

Widespread regret was occasioned through the death of Mr. Daniel Carew, who died on Monday last at his residence in the city. Mr. Carew was a man of a very high character, and was a man of a very high character. He was a man of a very high character, and was a man of a very high character. He was a man of a very high character, and was a man of a very high character.

lage, the new building will add much to its appearance.

Death of Miss Ryan. Much regret is felt locally at the death of Miss Ryan, eldest daughter of Mr. Patrick Ryan, M.C.C., The Hotel, Doon, which took place on Wednesday. Deceased was a general favourite, and her bereaved parents have the sympathy of all. Mr. Ryan, who has been prominently associated with Sinn Fein for years past, is "on the run." His hotel has been taken over and converted into a barracks.

Not Sold.

It is understood that the limit for the farm recently offered by Mr. John Duggan (who has purchased a fine holding near Fethard) was not reached. In his new place he will have as a near neighbour his brother, Rev. Father Walsh, C.C., Cashel.

"IMPROVE AND GRADE THE HERDS."

THE BEST DEFENCE OF LOCAL LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY.

A correspondent writes: Tipperary town is the centre of one of the best cattle raising districts in Ireland, the centre of a fine rich county yielding pasture that is admirably fitted for dairying and the raising of young cattle. With a knowledge born of long experience, its farmers largely depend on dairying and cattle raising. It is well, therefore, that they should realise that we are at a critical juncture in the history of the Irish cattle trade.

The cry of cheap meat, as well as the cry of cheap stores, backed by very strong influences in both Canada and England, make the question of the admission of Canadian stores a very pertinent one. Those who had experience of feeding Canadian stores many years ago, and all who have since thought to this question, agree that Canadian cattle take much longer to fatten than the homegrown stores. With a view to the admission of Canadian cattle, we believe the Irish farmers would do well to consider their own and would do well to consider their own and would do well to consider their own.

ARCHBISHOP WALSH LAID TO REST.

IMPRESSIVE SCENES IN DUBLIN.

The last tribute paid to the memory of the late Archbishop of Dublin was a fitting earthly close to a great and noble career. In the capital city Church and people were united in rendering the highest heed of honour to the deceased Prelate, and the obsequies were of an impressive and solemn character throughout.

At the Solemn Office and Requiem High Mass in the Pro-Cathedral his Eminence, Cardinal Logue, with the Archbishops and the greater number of the Irish hierarchy, were present, and a dense congregation followed the sacred ceremonies. Numbers of priests were present from all parts of Ireland.

The funeral procession later from the Pro-Cathedral to Glasnevin Cemetery was a memorable scene.

Church and people united in mourning, and every class and religious denomination was represented among the 100,000 persons who joined in the last tribute paid in the streets of the metropolis.

For three hours, from noon until three o'clock, business was suspended in the city and in many provincial cities and towns.

Cardinal Logue, the Archbishops of Cashel and Tuam, and many bishops and priests of whom it is estimated there were 260 took part in the funeral obsequies.

The representation at the services and in the funeral procession was national rather than diocesan, and at the Vice-regal Lodge, Dublin Castle and the military barracks, as well as at the civic buildings, flags were at half-mast.

From all parts of the country messages of regret and sympathy in the loss of Dublin and Ireland continue to pour in.

STEERING BY SOUND.

Unusual interest has been aroused by the working of the "radi" pilotage cable laid at the bottom of the Channel leading to Portsmouth, which enables fog-bound vessels to steer an accurate course into the harbour by means of sound.

This cable, which is about twenty miles long, is laid from the entrance to Portsmouth Harbour to the Warner Light on the Channel side of the Isle of Wight. It is beneath the exact course to be followed by vessels, and its "free" end is at sea. The high-frequency electric current in the cable emits a certain "note" in Morse code.

The navigating officer on board a ship wears a set of ordinary wireless telephone receivers. These are connected to a battery, a set of "amplifiers" similar to those used in wireless telephony, and two coils, the latter being hung one over each side of the vessel, above the water-line.

When approaching the harbour the officer listens first through one coil and then through the other for the "note" of the guiding cable. It may come to him through the starboard coil; if so he knows his vessel is to the left of the cable.

As soon as he hears the "note" equally loud through both port and starboard coils, he knows that his ship is directly above the cable, and in the correct channel.

A similar cable has been laid in one of the channels of New York Harbour, and these are the only two in use at present.

GOLDEN NATIONAL SCHOOLS.

At the recent religious examination held in the above schools the junior grade (in the capable hands of Mrs Sara F Russell) scored the highest possible number—100—marks, and the senior grade coached by Mr P. J. Heffernan, B.A., scored 92 marks. We congratulate both teachers and pupils on their brilliant answerings. The children's early training in religious knowledge is evidently in most capable hands.

TIPPERARY GOLF CLUB.

The Captain's Prize.

The Captain's Prize competition was carried out during last week, with the following results:

Third Round. T. Breen, w.o.; P. Kelly, scratched. G. Mahony beat A. Darcy—1 up. J. P. Hunter beat G. Connon—2 and 1. G. Killen beat J. F. Darcy—3 and 2.

Semi-Final. T. Breen beat G. Mahony—5 and 3. G. Killen beat J. P. Hunter—6 and 3.

Final. T. Breen beat G. Killen at the 18th hole. VICE-CAPTAIN'S PRIZE—LADIES' COMPETITION.

Second Round. Miss R. Roman beat Miss M. Hennessy—1 up. Miss R. Milles beat Miss Kinane—4 and 3. Miss Kennedy beat Miss V. English—3 and 2.

Miss B. Roman beat Miss M. Thorpe—2 and 1.

SIR A. VICARS SHOT DEAD.

HIS RESIDENCE DESTROYED.

Sir Arthur Vicars, one time Ulster King-of-Arms and Custodian of the Crown Jewels, Dublin Castle, was shot dead at Kilmorna House, Listowel, and his residence destroyed by fire.

A Listowel message states the tragedy took place about 10 o'clock on Thursday morning.

From an official account of the occurrence it is learned that Sir A. Vicars was taken from his bedroom in his dressing gown and shot outside the house. "A label was attached to his neck," the official report says, "Spies and informers beware; the I.R.A. never forgets." The house and contents were afterwards fired and completely destroyed. About 30 men are stated to have participated.

A Previous Raid.

A further official statement says:—Sir Arthur Vicars' house was raided by armed men on the night of April 2, last year. He was writing in his study late at night, when he heard a knocking at the back door. On asking who it was, the voice gave the name of a well-known local district inspector of the R.I.C., but Sir Arthur became suspicious, and refused to open the door. The raiders then proceeded to batter it in with hatchets. When they entered, they seized Sir Arthur and threatened him with death unless he gave them arms which they declared were hidden in the house, but he refused, saying he would rather be killed than surrender. They then took his keys and ransacked the house, but failed to gain admittance to the strong room, the key of which they were unable to find. They then forced the opening of a bedroom in their efforts to enter the strong room from above.

The raiders then made off.

The Castle Jewels. During Sir A. Vicars' term of office in July, 1907, the sensational disappearance of the Crown Jewels, belonging to the Order of St. Patrick, and valued for £50,000, occurred. The jewels had been stored in the Ulster Office, situated in the Bedford Tower. Following the Royal Commission of Inquiry into their loss Sir A. Vicars vacated office.

Sir A. Vicars, who was in his 57th year, was third son of the late Col. H. Vicars, and half-brother of the O.M.B.M. He was educated at Oxford and appointed Ulster King-of-Arms in 1875, being probably the youngest ever to hold the office. On questions of heredity he was considered one of the leading authorities of his day. At his apartments under the Bedford Tower, Dublin Castle, he had amassed a unique collection of gems, paintings, and books connected with his office, and at one time, in addition to his official duties, edited Lodge's Peerage, the oldest of all the Peerages.

AMBUSHES NEAR CLONMEL.

EX-RUBBER PLANTER'S NARRATIVE.

For further evidence, Judge Moore at Clonmel Quarter Sessions adjourned the claim of Major Blackmore, formerly a rubber planter, and now a special sergeant, attached to the R.I.C. at Clonmel, for compensation for injuries to his toe, alleged to have been caused by gunshot wound received while cycling home after superintending defence works at Lisronagh barracks. He said he was ambushed by five men who fired at him. He dived through a hedge, and got away to a farmer's house. Some hours afterwards he was brought to Clonmel.

His Honor said it was curious five men did not do more.

Dr Dowling said the big toe bone was smashed. A piece of metal was still in the foot. An operation was necessary to remove it.

Const. C. Cranmer said a sergeant and three constables going to church were ambushed at Lisronagh. In the fight he was wounded in the foot. Const. Shelbourne said there were 20 ambushers. The police retreated. Const. Cranmer was hit, but he got away with witness. Three men were captured, and the attackers took their arms.

His Honor—Did any of you fire? Witness—I fired. A decree for £150 was given.

INSECTS THAT SNARE BIRDS.

It seems incredible that insects should trap and kill birds. Nevertheless, there is a spider which snags birds, and not flies, to step into his parlour.

He is a very beautiful fellow with slate-coloured back and breast of scarlet and gold, and in his home in the mountains of Ceylon he spins his wide yellow web.

The cords of the web are very strong. When a fat lizard strays into the net, or a bird alights upon it, the spider rapidly winds his threads about his victim, which he blinds and chokes. In the jungle are often seen skeletons of small birds which have been caught in the deadly yellow web.

AT KILMALLOCK.

VISITOR'S NOTES.

Kilmallock is an interesting little town. It was once a city. Its name is associated with great traditions. The first thing that struck me on my visit on Wednesday last was the peacefulness of the place and the beauty of the surroundings—truly rural, towering mountains on either side, with vales and wooded dells which greet the eye in no matter what direction it is cast. The road leading to the town from the Railway Station, which lies a half mile distant, is hedged on either side, and on the right as one enters there are some pretty villas, while other structures in the course of erection are peeping up. The M in St. is prefaced—so to speak—with my future home, the workhouse. It a wood-girt institution looking through a wealth of green foliage to the road close by.

From here, Main St.—a long narrow street—extends to the old Castle, and in the absence of traffic, caused presumably by the peculiarities of the times, presented a rather lonesome-looking appearance, and one—I was informed—not at all like the scene of bustle in other days.

But Kilmallock is a historic centre, and can boast of having been the home of military chiefs and sportsmen of renown. Sir Eyre Coote, the conqueror of Hyder Ali, was a native of Kilmallock, and General Lord Blakeney, who added "Minorea" to the British possessions was born at Mount Blakeney, about two miles on the Charleville road. And at the present moment the town is the home of many sportsmen whose names are household words in the cycling and athletic world.

Several old ruins greet the eye of the visitor to Kilmallock, which in the reign of Edward III was surrounded entirely by fortifications. And who would now think that it was entered by four gates, namely, St John's, Water Gate, Ivy, and Blossom's Gate. The remains show where two of the gates formerly stood: although I made several inquiries on the occasion of my visit I could not ascertain authoritatively their names. A small portion of Blossom's Gate can be traced on the south side of the town.

Siege of the City. As I have already stated, Kilmallock was once a city, and it would be tedious to recount all the sieges that it underwent. The ruins of old castles and churches stand out in bold relief to-day. It is sufficient compliment to the constant valour of its defenders to state that it was by order of Cromwell that the fortifications were destroyed.

Other Features. The nobility and gentry in other days had their town houses within its walls, and they remain in varying stages of dilapidation to import to the whole place an added touch of fallen greatness.

The fortunes of the Desmond family, who owned more land and possessed more influence in Munster than any family before or after them, are interwoven with the whole history of Kilmallock, and, I might say, with the South of Ireland, and have been the subject of many a tale from the wonderful address, the courage, the hairbreadth escapes, and the romantic career of many of its members.

LIVESTOCK EXPORT.

IRELAND'S CLEAN BILL OF HEALTH.

A conference representative of the Irish Farmers' Union, Irish Cattle Traders' Association, Cattle Salesmen, and other interests interested by the cattle embargo was held on Thursday at the offices of the Department of Agriculture to consider the question of the shipment of store cattle.

The various delegations made a strong protest against the continuance of the embargo on export, as there was no disease in the country, as was shown by the fact that the inspectors of the Department, who had inspected over 1,300 farms and over 30,000 animals, had failed to find any indication of the disease. It was demanded, as of right, that the embargo should be forthwith removed. The officials of the Department who were present were sympathetic, and promised an "Irish Independent" representative learned to make strong representations to the Ministry of Agriculture, England.

It was brought to the knowledge of the delegations that a concession may be expected in the case of stores in the shape of a quarantine of two weeks at the port of landing and a further week's quarantine at the port of arrival, which was an unreasonably long period, and would have a most serious and deteriorating effect, and would mean a substantial loss to the raisers of cattle in this country. If there were to be any restrictions they should be at the destination and not at the port of arrival.

TIPPERARY MARKETS.

The market held in Tipperary on Saturday was well attended, and large quantities of agricultural produce were disposed of. There was a further decrease in the price of bawn hay and mangolds, the former fetching from £4 to £6 per ton, and the latter £3. Ryegrass, which was in good demand, realised £6 10s. per ton. Straw sold at £5, and potatoes at from 1s. 6d. to 2s. per stone; eggs, 1s. 10d. per dozen; butter, 2s. 8d. and 2s. 10d. A few bundles of cabbage plants on offer fetched from 10d. to 1s. per bundle of 120.

The market held on Thursday was fairly large. There was no ryegrass on offer. Bawn hay fetched £6 per ton; straw, £3; mangolds, £3; potatoes, 1s. 10d. per stone; butter 2s. 8d. to 2s. 10d. per lb.
