PIG MEAL; ALSO
A Calf and Cattle Meal

Barley Meal alone is not a perfect food. Though high in carbohydrates, it is low in oil and albuminoids. We are making up a meal consisting of 45 per cent. good kiln-dried barley, 10 per cent. of the best fish-meal low in oil, and the balance of 45 per cent. of imported food stuffs.

An ounce of practice is worth a ton of theory. Seeing is believing. The proof of the pudding is in the eating.

A TANKARDSTOWN FARMER writes:— "Send me half a ton of the same Pig Meal as you sent my neighbours."

Another Farmer writes:— "I put in a pen of slips with their backbones sticking through their backs. After feeding them for a fortnight on your meal I did not know them. In four weeks and three days from putting them in I sold them, weighing 14 stone each."

Analysis—64 per cent. oil and 161 per cent. albuminoids.

Also a first-class Calf and Cattle Meal suitable for dry or wet feeding. This Meal contains 9 per cent. oil and 15 per cent. albuminoids.

Terms:—
 Pig Meal - 15/- per cwt.

FARMING NOTES.

POTATO VARIETY TESTS IN WESTERN, ETC., COUNTIES.

During the past season special trials were carried at 121 centres, in County Donegal, in all the Counties of Connaught, and in Counties Clare, Kerry, and Cork (West) in Munster, to test the cropping qualities and suitability for cultivation in these counties of Kerr's Pink, a comparatively new maincrop variety. The trials were carried out by farmers, under the supervision of the assistant agricultural overseers—under ordinary farming conditions.

At 17 centres in Co. Donegal the average yields per statute acre were: 12 tons 1 cwt. saleable (seed and ware); 19 cwt. 3 qrs. small; 3 cwt. 1 qr. discarded; that is, a total yield of 13 tons 1 cwt. per statute acre. At 17 acres in Counties Mayo, Roscommon, and Sligo, the average yields were: 11 tons 10 cwt. 2 qrs. saleable; 1 ton 10 cwt. 3 qrs. small; 4 cwt. discarded; a total yield of 13 tons 2 cwt. 2 qrs. per statute acre. In Counties Galway, Clare, Roscommon, and Leitrim, 111 centres, 9 tons 17 cwt. 3 qrs. saleable; 1 ton 10 cwt. 3 qrs. small; 2 cwt. 3 qrs. discarded; a total yield of 11 tons 1 cwt. 1 qr. per statute acre. In Counties Kerry and Cork (West), 10 centres, 10 tons 10 cwt. 3 qrs. saleable; 1 ton 10 cwt. 3 qrs. small; 2 cwt. 3 qrs. discarded; a total yield of 11 tons 1 cwt. 1 qr. per statute acre. The average yields per statute acre were: 12 tons 1 cwt. saleable (seed and ware); 19 cwt. 3 qrs. small; 3 cwt. 1 qr. discarded; that is, a total yield of 13 tons 1 cwt. per statute acre.

partment clearly showed. But in no case were the results obtained with the raw or ground phosphates used in these experiments so profitable as those obtained with superphosphate or high-grade soluble slag, and so long as superphosphate and basic slag of a high degree of citric solubility are obtainable at anything like the same price per unit as raw phosphates or mixtures of raw phosphates, and slag, the Department have no hesitation in recommending farmers to give superphosphate and high-grade slag a decided preference.

Should farmers desire to put to a test for their own information the relative merits of raw phosphates and of superphosphates of basic slag, the Department would advise the use of the ground rock phosphate by itself and not in admixture with slag. In the purchase of ground phosphates it is of great importance to insist upon guarantees of (a) source of origin, (b) total phosphates, (c) citric solubility, (d) percentage fineness of grinding; in no case should the degree of fineness be less than 80 per cent.

It is understood that at the moment certain Irish farmers are in a position to offer on special terms supplies of basic slag containing 20 per cent to 25 per cent total phosphates but with a high degree of citric solubility. Ordinarily, basic slag of this description is so far from being a source of concern, relatively to the citric solubility and the slag of the material, and for this reason the Department would not be recommended to look for such a special circumstance.

PROSPECTS FOR THE CHRISTMAS POULTRY TRADE.

Supplies.—Reports received from the various counties indicate that supplies of poultry for the coming Christmas trade will be well up to average. From very few counties have supplies of geese been reported to be less in number than usual; flocks in most counties are said to be as plentiful as in other years, and in some counties even more plentiful. Owing to the wiltness of the early spring there was little mortality among young turkeys during the critical period after hatching, and in consequence the supply of these birds will be decidedly over average. Ducks also are in average numbers over the country, and chickens as well as old fowl are to no extent behind last year's numbers.

Enquiries made recently in London indicate that turkeys will be plentiful this Christmas. The French Government are allowing poultry to be exported free of duty from December 1st to January 15th next. Supplies are also expected from Italian, Hungarian, and Jugo-Slav sources.

Condition of Birds.

The condition of both geese and turkeys varies in description from good to very good, and in only one instance is it stated to be fair. Ducks, chickens, and old fowl are also reported as in good marketable order. The condition of the birds, it is stated, has been much improved, especially since food-stuffs have become cheaper. The reduction in prices has allowed poultry-owners to purchase good feeding meals for use with their own home-grown products, and so to supply a better fattening diet for the birds.

Weight of Birds.

The estimated weights of birds show that geese are likely to range from 9 to 14 lbs., with an average of about 12 lbs. The estimated range for turkeys is from 11 lbs. to as much as 20 lbs., with an average of about 15 lbs. each. This latter figure is based on the differing weights of hen and cock turkeys. In one county the average 10 lbs. and of cock turkeys at 18 lbs.; in another county turkey hens are estimated to weigh on an average 10 lbs., and cock turkeys at 18 lbs. The range of weight for ducks is from 2 to 6 lbs., with an average of about 4 lbs.; for chickens from 2 to 6 lbs., with an average of about 4 lbs., and for old fowl from 6 to 10 lbs., with an average of about 8 lbs.

Export and Foreign Trade.

The Department of Agriculture has the honor to inform you that the following list of exhibitors at the International Potato Show, held at the Agricultural Hall, Dublin, in 1920, has been published in the Department's Report on the Potato Industry, 1920, and is available for sale at the price of 1s. 6d. per copy. The list is printed in the Department's Report on the Potato Industry, 1920, and is available for sale at the price of 1s. 6d. per copy.

System of Marketing.

Little change is reported in the system of marketing, which is mainly conducted through the medium of local poultry buyers, who in turn export to cross-Channel firms. The existing high railway freights are referred to as having a prohibitive effect on poultry owners sending consignments of poultry direct to cross-Channel markets, and this practice would appear to be on the decrease, except in certain counties where very poor prices are being offered by local buyers.

Advice to Producers and Exporters.

Producers are advised when bringing turkeys to market not to carry more than sixteen to twenty birds—depending on size—in a farm cart, and to provide a thick bed of straw to protect the breasts of the birds. As geese are inclined to huddle together in a corner of a cart, with the result that large birds may walk over smaller ones and injure the latter, the feet of each bird should be tied together. The birds should then be placed on a thick layer of straw to prevent damage to the breasts. Poultry should not be thrown from a cart to the ground. Exporters are reminded that railway companies

PARTITION AND THE LAW.

Solicitors View Its Effects With Concern.

Blow To Profession.

Discussion at Incorporated Law Society.

References to the Partition Act were made at the half-yearly meeting of the Incorporated Law Society, held in the Solicitors' Buildings at the Four Courts on Monday.

The annual report stated that the division of Ireland into two systems of judicature had always been disapproved of by the council. When the Bill was in Committee an amendment was moved at the instance of the council with the object of effecting the continuance of one judicature for the whole of Ireland, but the Government did not accept it.

From larger and professional standpoints, said Mr. Charles Gamble, president of the society, this division was full of difficulty, and afforded no guarantees of increased efficiency.

He deplored this partition as a great blow to the legal profession and opposed to that unity which, in any shape of national life, especially in a small country, stood for strength, uniformity, and efficiency, and unity would depend on keeping the law and procedure in both parts of the island.

The speaker of his country, the president of the society, who is a member of the Council of the Law Society, said that the law in the two parts of the island was not uniform, and that the law in the two parts of the island was not uniform, and that the law in the two parts of the island was not uniform.

He referred to the burning of the Custom House, and said that with it was involved the destruction of all records relating to the various classes of Crown duties affecting the landed and other property of this country, and concerning the devolution of these lands and property during the past century—a loss which had imposed on them as a profession additional work, complication and responsibilities. Many of these records could only be reconstructed from the records in solicitors' offices, and when it was remembered that in the transfer and conveyancing of all landed and house property the first enquiry on title for the protection of the purchaser was to be satisfied that no unpaid claims for duty attached to the property sold, it could be readily appreciated what a block was thrown to all sales and transfer of property in Ireland. Special provisions, however, were introduced into the Finance Act of the current year, which had enabled a Court, such as the Land Commission, in which any sale was in process, to distribute the proceeds of sale without making any reserve or provision for payment of Crown duties chargeable in respect of it. It was provided, however, that the Commissioners of Inland Revenue should be empowered to call for evidence and particulars from any person claiming to have discharged duties or to be entitled to a certificate of discharge therefrom, and that they should satisfy the Commissioners such liability had been duly discharged, remuneration for the extra work involved to be defrayed by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue. The council suggested that the power of disposing of the proceeds of sales without regard to outstanding claims for duties, might be extended to all private properties, but the Inland Revenue Commissioners could not see their way to accept the suggestion. In the interest of the public, however, he was able to say that no additional burden was imposed on them as the State accepted responsibility for the additional cost and expenses involved. In conclusion he urged that conciliation and diplomacy were the proper weapons for the settlement of national disputes. (Applause.)

Mr. Edwards seconded the adoption of the report, which was carried. Mr. James Brady, referring to the paragraph in the report dealing with the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, said he thought the Act should be entitled the "Government of Ireland Act." He hoped in time they would sign that such arrangements might be made as would enable all the law in the country for the future to be administered under the control of one central authority. At present, with a population of only four millions, they had actually existing and trying to function, three legal systems, all working under different regulations, with courts, judgments, and attempts made to control them by the Government trying to legislate for the people of the country, and each system a separate Parliament, and the Local Government, all these interfering to deal with the legal affairs of the country. The whole position existing was to his mind grotesque, and personally, he thought every thinking Irishman should form a league to better the existing conditions. (Applause.)

Mr. Quinn proposed that be moved at the meeting to make an immediate recommendation to the Executive Government that the provisions of the Colonial Solicitors' Act be so extended to Ireland as to comparatively operate between Ireland and Great Britain. Mr. Quinn seconded the motion. Mr. Quinn proposed an amendment was adopted on the suggestion of Mr. Brady, regarding the question of reciprocity between solicitors practicing in England and Ireland to the council, the council to report to the May meeting, or earlier if deemed advisable.

WAR ON POACHERS.

Saving Irish Inland Fisheries.

The future of the Irish inland fisheries is seriously threatened by poaching.

This statement was contained in a circular letter from the Fisheries Department of Dail Eireann, signed by Mr. S. Etchingham, Director of Fisheries, which was read at a meeting of the South Dublin Rural District Council on Tuesday evening.

The circular also stated that the salmon fisheries of Ireland, and, in a lesser degree, the sea and brown trout fisheries, constituted an important part of the wealth of the nation.

It was computed that the salmon fisheries of Ireland could, under a free government, be raised to an annual value of 25,000,000. The proper preservation of the spawning fish, the protection of the immature fish from pests, and the introduction of hatcheries were necessary means to this desirable end. In the past many of their people engaged in poaching, simply because it outraged Englishman's laws. They did not understand the disastrous consequences to the industry that the destruction of spawning fish entailed.

Authorities calculated that, approximately, a salmon produced 1,000 eggs for every pound the fish weighed. Therefore, a salmon weighing 15 pounds would produce 15,000 eggs. A possible killing each fish was, therefore, responsible for the destruction of 15,000 salmon. It was notorious that poaching was now more prevalent than ever. In the national interests, the poacher must be prevented from carrying on his work of destruction.

The public would render invaluable aid by advancing public opinion to battle the venial destroyer of spawning fish. The Irish Republican police, the constabulary, were engaged in the arduous work of saving a national industry. The assistance of the public would be of immense value. A list of the names of the poachers was ordered to be published in each constituency.

WOMEN WARRIORS.

Joan of Arc's Marvellous Career.

"Joan of Arc and Rheims" was the title of an interesting lecture delivered in the presence of a numerous audience at Alexandra College, Dublin, on Friday afternoon by Miss White, principal, in aid of the College Guild. The first portion of the lecture was devoted to a history of the town, with special reference to the Cathedral, now in ruins as the result of German vandalism. Rheims, the lecturer explained, was one of the oldest towns in France.

Prefacing her remarks regarding Joan of Arc, Miss White said that, while no one thought that woman's place was on the battlefield, and no one was desirous of seeing women soldiers, women had done extraordinary things in war. Apart from Boudicca and Cleopatra, and even Joan of Arc, there had been many famous women soldiers, not the least of whom was the Russian woman, who, in the late war, raised a battalion of women, with the consent of the Tsar, and did splendid work. This woman's sufferings were terrible, and her escape was marvellous, but she was now safe in America.

The career of Joan of Arc was the most marvellous episode in all history. She was an unlettered peasant girl. Yet she challenged comparison with the greatest Generals of history, with Alexander, Caesar, Napoleon. As a woman she had done what White did on the battle of Verdun, when Joan of Arc at Orléans, she had gained one of the most decisive battles in the world. At Rheims she was crowned, and she was the saviour of France. She was a General, and she was a warrior. She was a woman, and she was a hero.

WHOLESALE PRICES OF IRISH PRODUCE.

The following is the return issued by the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland of the average wholesale prices of agricultural produce at certain Irish markets during the week ended November 26th, 1921, as compared with the previous week. The prices shown are the average wholesale prices paid in the markets mentioned for the particular quality of produce sold there. In some centres the better qualities of produce are purchased by merchants direct from producers without passing through the regular market.

Hen Eggs.

Prices for eggs showed a hardening tendency in Northern markets. At Belfast, the dearest market, prices advanced from 40/8 to 45/4, and at Londonderry from 30/10 to 32/6. At the latter quotation prices were unchanged at Birmisforth, but at Dublin prices rose from 30/8 to 31/7, at Cork from 27/10 to 28/4, and at Limerick from 20/7 to 21/11.

Duck Eggs.

Practically on the same level of prices as hen eggs, except at Limerick, where the previous week's value of 10/7 was again reported.

Farmers' Butter.

There was little or no change in the market value of butter. At Londonderry, the dearest market, the previous week's price of 2/7 per lb. was repeated. At Belfast the price advanced marginally from 2/5 to 2/6 per lb., and rose slightly in Dublin from 4/21 to 4/22. Below at Birmisforth, Cork, and Limerick, the price was 1/10, 1/11, and 1/12 respectively.

The price of butter in the various markets is as follows: Belfast, 2/6; Londonderry, 2/7; Dublin, 4/22; Birmisforth, 1/10; Cork, 1/11; Limerick, 1/12.

For being in possession of what was described as a "small arsenal"—revolvers, ammunition, time fuses, high explosives, and the standards of four German machine-guns—John Fitzgerald, fifty-two, Bootle, described as a labourer, was, at Manchester Assizes, sentenced to ten years' penal servitude. Mr. Madden, on his behalf, said he was not an ordinary criminal, but owed his position to the unfortunate state of things that existed between Ireland and England. In his bedroom, it was alleged, was found an unsigned form purporting to be the oath of allegiance to an Irish Republic.

£1,000,000 PORT.

Cork's Ambitious Scheme.

Cork has in contemplation a scheme for the improvement of its port which will cost £1,000,000. The Harbour Commissioners, in their report on Friday of last week, proposed that a new pier should be built, and that the old pier should be widened and deepened.

The scheme was originally sanctioned to consider a proposal to build by Mr. Nicholson, advisory engineer to the port of Seattle, Washington, to discuss in consultation with the board's engineer, Mr. Price, plans in connection with the scheme.

The chairman (Mr. F. J. Daly), in proposing that Mr. Nicholson be called in at the fee of £2,000, said that Cork could not stand this huge charge, which they expected would be undertaken by their own Parliament.

The Lord Mayor, who seconded the motion, said that the scheme might not be completely in operation for years, but it would stand as a guiding line.

Sir John Scott took exception to the fact that the chairman corresponded with Mr. Nicholson without the authority of the full board.
