A TRIAL ORDER SOLICITED. TO THE EDITOR, Newcastle West, August 31st, 1921.

Dear Sir—I have read with interest the letters which appeared in last week's "Observer" relative to the petty thefts, larcenies, and profiteering, while not agreeing with everything that was stated in those letters, I must own that a good deal of what was written are facts, but I think that there is a remedy for this. Why not bring those men before the Courts? If you do there will be severe sentences on them.

Why not take the cattle trespassing on your land to the "Pound"? I hear the old "Pound" is shortly to be re-opened as such, and why not retain the animals on the lands until the owners arrive and demand trespass. The owners of the majority of the animals are men of means and doing business with the public. Why not adopt the "baggage" which is used in many places against profiteering, and not deal with these people until such time as they conduct themselves as reasonable citizens? The remedy is in your own hands. Take it or leave it.—Yours truly,

ANOTHER TOWNSMAN. BOYCOTT WEAPON. To Bring Down Food Prices.

The "Liverpool Post" says:—To stem the tide of rising prices, the public was urged to buy nothing, so that the tide in the cost of living, which public is able to do something to stop, especially, since it prices will remain high, a "buy nothing" representative has been making extensive inquiries in Liverpool as to the number of exhibitors who were present at the market, and what they are now doing for the purpose of overhauling the market. It is suggested that the public should not be taken in, and the only way of doing this is to buy nothing until the market is reasonable ground to believe that the prices asked for are reasonable. A slow movement may hurt innocent traders for a time, but exorbitant prices for food are a harsh injustice to the whole community, and if they are to be ended a harsh remedy must be adopted. The suggestion of a "buy nothing" campaign has already been written, while it cannot be gained that prices for these very enormous according to decency, and suggestion that there is overhauling, and an evaluation of proceeds in relation to respect of meat, farmers deny overcharging wholesalers don't it—butchers deny it. Yet a pound of best steak is to-day a luxury in households where it was formerly a commonplace. The best answer that could be given by the Minister of Agriculture, when asked to explain what lay behind such a price was that charges by butchers varied according to the cut sold as well as to the quality of the meat.
